Army Rallies to Top AFA Falcons, 14-10

Jubilant Crowds Welcome Buddhist Viet Nam Regime

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

CHICAGO — Muscling their way nearly the length of the field in the final minutes of the game, Army captured its first victory in a short series against the Air Force Academy here at Soldier Field Saturday with halfback Ken Waldrop running over for the deciding touchdown.

The 198-pound senior from Dallas, who scored both touchdowns in the 14-10 victory for Army, rammed over right end on a power sweep on fourth down and two yards to go. The play carried all the way to the goal line, 17 yards away, as he slipped off two Air Force tacklers and bulled his way into the end zone with 1:21 left in the game.

The Falcons from Colorado Springs, who had gone ahead in the game for a second time only minutes before the winning score, tried to pull out another desperation drive in the last minute. However, this time they

Marines Reported On Their Way to Southeast Asia

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Elements of a crack U.S. Marine Corps regiment are en route to southeast Asia to be on hand in case the South Viet Nam situation requires U.S. military action, reliable sources disclosed today.

The regiment was identified as the famed "striking ninth" of the Third Marine Division, stationed on this island 300 miles south of Japan.

Marine spokesmen refused to comment on whether the Marines commanded by Col. George Stallings of Augusta, Ga., will land in South Viet Nam.

Military policemen swept through the bars of Naha Friday a few hours after word was received here of the military rebellion in South Viet Nam. The MPs were out to round up military personnel.

W. R. Armstrong, Springs Banker, Dies at Age 86

Willis Roberts Armstrong, chairman of the board of the Colorado Springs National Bank, and one of the most prominent bankers in Colorado, died Saturday morning at a local hospital, after a short illness. He was 86 and his activities in business, educational, historic and civic affairs were many.

Mr. Armstrong was born in Orient, Ia., Dec. 11, 1876. He attended Grinnell College, in Grinnell, Ia., for three years and was graduated from Colorado College in 1899. For more than 50 years he was a member of the board of trustees of Colorado College.

He was a founder and cashier of the Colorado Springs National Bank when it began business in 1907. In 1920 he was made president of this bank and served in that capacity until 1951 when he became chairman of the board, an office he had held continuously until his death.

He was a former president of the Colorado Bankers Association, a charter member of the Colorado Springs Kiwanis Club, a member of the El Paso Club, the Winter Night Club and of SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Jubilant crowds celebrated the downfall of President Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu Saturday.

Victorious military leaders freed Buddhist monks from jail and set up a Buddhist-led provisional regime, suspending the constitution and dissolving the National Assembly.

They declared the president, 62, and his adviser-brother, 52, committed suicide. The junta of 16 generals said the brothers shot themselves upon being captured after once slipping through the troops surrounding their shell-pocked palace.

There was a rumor that the two were shot resisting arrest, another that they had in fact escaped. But it appeared likely that the two brothers — Roman Catholics who guided this largely Buddhist nation for the last nine years—were indeed dead.

While Vietnamese crowds exulted in the streets, Gen. Doung

JOHN H. GATELY

John H. Gately, Former Springs, Attorney Dies

John H. Gately, former Colorado Springs and Chicago attorney, died Friday at Roswell, N. M., it was reported here Saturday. He was 60.

Private services are scheduled at the Nolan Drawing Room, with rosary services at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The ranch is between here and Canon City and was bought by Gately in 1949.

He was active and prominent in politics in Colorado Springs and the 4th Judicial District in 1956.

He became comparatively well known when he entered a then hot local political fight over the way the city garbage disposal service was being handled on a contract.

From this he moved into attacks on the city police, the district attorney and the sheriff's office and then became an

Penrose Hospital Presented Two Research Grants

Penrose Hospital announced Saturday the receipt of two additional grants for the continuation of research work in the chromosome laboratory. Dr. Kenneth W. Dumars is director of this laboratory and in charge of all research operations.

The first of these grants was from the Milheim Foundation for Cancer Research. This foundation is located in Denver and was established by the will of Clara Milheim Wheeler. The grant, approved for a nine month period beginning on Friday is for $9,844.

The second award, in the form of a direct contribution of $150, was from the Colorado Association of Medical Assistants. This group is comprised of nurses, receptionists, secretaries and others employed in doctors offices thruout the city.

These funds will be used for the continuation of studies to determine the genetic factors present in cancer and in retarded or handicapped children. It has been demonstrated that certain forms of both of these problems occur within the same family.

Therefore investigation of the family tree may reveal a greater than expected incidence of cancer and congenital defects including retardation.

The studies are concerned with attempts to define how frequently these problems occur together and what chromosomal or genetic factors may be present, which influence the production or cause of these conditions.

The service aspects of chromosomal analysis will aid the physician in his evaluation and management of leukemia, mongolism, intersex and other like problems.

U.S. Is Preparing To Recognize New Viet Regime

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is preparing to recognize the new South Viet Nam regime early this week — probably Monday—following the formation of a mixed military-civilian government.

U. S. officials disclosed this Saturday after President Kennedy canceled plans to attend an Air Force Academy-Army football game in Chicago to confer with top military and State Department advisers at the White House.

The major concern at the conference was the steps to be taken in the U. S.-backed war against the Communist guerrillas.

Among those in attendance were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Rob-

Bus Strike Scheduled To Start at Midnight

The strike of the Colorado Springs bus drivers apparently will come off as scheduled tonight at midnight.

C. M. Shaw, international vice president of the transit workers union, said Saturday night that, "There is not a thing new."

"I haven't heard a thing in the world," he answered when asked if he knew of any moves that might forestall the strike.

He added that the company had asked all drivers to turn in their change fund.

Drivers customarily have a change fund of about $70 that is provided for them by the bus firm, and which they have permanent custody of as long as they are working, he said.

Shaw said that asking for a turn-in of the funds seemed to be an indication that the Colorado Springs Transit Company does not plan to make any moves to prevent a strike.

The busy drivers asked for a raise in pay, and the company has offered an eight-cent an hour increase on a new two-year contract, but the union membership rejected the offer.

How far apart the company and the union are on the wage figure is not known. The union earlier denied that it had projected a 12-cent an hour raise to the company.

Trianon Headed For Destruction, Reports Indicate

The Trianon apparently is headed for destruction despite some rumors around town to the contrary.

John W. Metzger, president of the Trianon Foundation, said Saturday that he plans to continue taking an inventory of the art works in the building which are ticketed for sale early next year.

It was reported Saturday that Keith McBurney, chairman of the county board of commissioners, held out hope for saving the Trianon by rezoning that portion of the county, thus reversing an earlier decision of the commissioners about two

American-Soviet Joint Moon Shot Proposal Fades

MOSCOW (UPI) — Western diplomats said Saturday they see no prospect of a joint Soviet-American moon project anytime soon despite Premier Nikita Khrushchev's qualified approval of the idea.

The diplomats said Khrushchev is unwilling at present to join in a joint venture like that suggested by President Kennedy in his U.N. speech Sept. 20, presumably because it would include disclosure of Soviet rocket secrets.

They recalled that the Russian premier rejected a similar proposal outright when Kennedy suggested it at their 1961 meeting in Vienna. He is somewhat cordial to the idea now, perhaps because of the recent U.S. gains in the space race.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, her voice choked with sobs, told a news conference Saturday that "any crime committed against the Ngo family cannot be hidden under the label of suicide."

Shoup Is Asked To Be Colorado Goldwater Chief

Merrill E. Shoup, long active in Colorado Republican circles, may become chairman of a state committee backing Sen. Barry Goldwater as the 1964 presidential candidate.

Goldwater, a Republican senator from Arizona, is reported to be a front-runner at this time for the nomination.

Shoup said Saturday that he had been asked to act as chairman but that he had not made up his mind about the offer.

He said his health would determine whether he would accept the post. Shoup, 64, suffered a heart attack last winter.

Shoup said he had been approached by a group of Denver Republicans, but declined to name them.

He is the son of a former Colorado governor, Oliver A. Shoup. Now chairman of the board of Holly Sugar Corp., he served for years as president of the firm and also as president of the Golden Cycle Corp., a precious metals mining company with holdings in the gold fields of Cripple Creek and Victor.

Judge in Denver Defers Action in Newcomer Case

DENVER (AP)—U.S. District Judge William E. Doyle has deferred action on a request to compel the bankrupt Joe Newcomer Finance Co. to pay off a $36,400 note on a housing development north of Colorado Springs.

Mrs. Lena Meier, head of a committee of creditors of the Colorado Springs firm, said the Columbine Estates tract is the firm's most valuable asset. She said if the note is paid, the firm will have a clear title to the land.

Algeria, Morocco Break Cease-Fire Agreement

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—Morocco dispatched troops to its eastern frontier with Algeria Saturday as both sides riddled the Bamako cease-fire agreement with artillery and machine-gun fire.

Each side accused the other of violating the midnight ceasefire only minutes after it went into effect. Artillery duels shattered the short calm in the three-week conflict in an area straddling the frontier with the Moroccan town of Figuig on the north end and the Algerian town of Beni Ounif on the south end.

Morocco's dispatch of troops to the eastern frontier switched attention from the vast Sahara area south of the Atlas Mountains. While the Sahara is an unmarked wasteland, the mountainous eastern frontier is well

Stumbling Blocks Reported In U.S.-Soviet Grain Deal

By SUSAN K. POLLOCK
United Press International

The cry "wheat to Russia" placed the bread grain in the international spotlight nearly eight weeks ago, and Washington officials and Soviet traders refuse to let her slip back out of sight.

The latest major stumbling block is a provision that President Kennedy put in his approval of wheat trade with Russia.

A Soviet trade mission arrived in Washington over one week ago with intentions of buying about 160 million bushels of wheat, but they balked at the stipulation that wheat be shipped only in American vessels. Rates of American ships are about 30 cents a bushel higher than foreign carriers.

Sources in Washington indicated the tie-up could be untangled by a formula under which U.S. flag ship operators would agree to lower rates and the Russians would agree to use a fixed percentage of U.S. vessels. The latest reports indicate that U.S. flag participation in wheat and flour movement will be less than 50 per cent.

Despite the thrashing the cereal is taking in Washington, wheat futures have rocketed more than 30 cents a bushel in the last two months. The question currently looming over the Chicago Board of Trade is — What will happen to wheat prices if the Russians go stomping home without any wheat?

14th Man Dies In Colorado's Hunting Season

RIO BLANCO, Colo. (UPI) — A heart attack killed another hunter Friday to raise the death toll of Colorado's big game season to 14.

The victim was identified as Gale M. Beck, about 50, of Oakland, Calif.

His son, Allan R. Beck, said he found the body in a camping truck, parked on a ranch about two miles north of here. He said he and his father had been hunting in the area five days.

The elder Beck had eaten breakfast Friday morning and returned to the truck for a nap.

He was a stationary engineer for an Oakland packing firm.

Cosmonauts To Wed, Says Moscow Report

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet cosmonauts Valentina Tereshkova and Andrian Nikolyaev will wed today in a Moscow palace of weddings, the Soviet foreign ministry announced Saturday.

The ceremony will take place at 11 a.m. A reception will follow at the government house of receptions, according to a foreign ministry spokesman.

Space Platforms Planned By Soviets for Moon Trip

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet scientist said Saturday that the new space ship Polyot-1 is the forerunner of vehicles which may be used for building a moon-shot launching platform in space.

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted Prof. Valdimir Dobronravov, a mechanical engineer, as saying that with the perfection of the Polyot space ships "it will be possible to create such spaceships which will solve the task of cosmonauts meeting in outer space."

Such meetings will be necessary in the future, for building big orbital space stations and for manned flights to the moon and other planets," he added.

The new Soviet spacecraft was launched Friday. It is unmanned.

Compared with the Polyot-1, the maneuverability of earlier sputniks and manned spaceships was limited, he said.

A Tass science commentator said the Polyot-1 would be used to study radiation belts at various distances from the earth.

He said the space craft could be guided to the same altitude and location several times to provide checks on information gathered.

Business-Science Talks Featured At Liaison Meet

A businessman and a scientist will address luncheon meetings at Colorado's first university-industry liaison conference Monday and Tuesday at Colorado Springs.

David Packard, president of the Hewlett-Packard Co., Palo Alto, Calif., will speak Monday on "A Businessman's View on the New Technological Revolution."

Prof. Lewis M. Branscomb, chairman of the Joint Institute for Laboratory Astrophysics (JILA) of the University of Colorado and the National Bureau of Standards will talk Tuesday on "The Present and Future of Astraphysics and its Effects on Industry in Colorado."

The conference will attract 150 leading Coloradoans along with several nationally known speakers to discuss the development of an industrial-scientific complex in Colorado. The two-day event is sponsored by CU, Colorado State University and the University of Denver.

Packard helped found his electronic equipment manufacturing firm in 1939 and was partner in the company until 1949 when he became president. The Hewlett-Packard Co. has two manufacturing plants in Colorado — one in Loveland and another in Colorado Springs.

JILA, of which Branscomb is chairman, is a unique academic unit established in 1962 by the University of Colorado and the National Bureau of Standards within the CU physics and astrophysics department. It is devoted to research and advanced training in areas vital to the expanding U. S. space program.

Orbiting Camera Being Readied to Scan Space

An orbiting satellite, which can be operated almost like a hand camera by scientists nearly 500 miles below, is being readied to scan space, inaugurating a new age of astronoical exploration.

The spacecraft, known as the Orbiting Astronomical Observatory and now under construction, can be pointed to an object in space and be held in position long enough to acquire, store, and transmit data all under command from Earth.

Clears the Fuzz

Man's study of the universe has been severely hampered because the atmosphere blocks much radiation from space and distorts that which reaches Earth. OAO will make it possible to observe the universe from a vantage point above the shimmering haze of the atmosphere.

OAO will see celestial bodies shining steadily against a black background, clearly delineating features which from Earth are either fuzzy or indistinguishable.

Stabilized Platform

OAO is one of the largest, heaviest and most complex satellites developed in this country and, in its role as an Earth-maneuvered observatory in space, promises breakthroughs in astronomy that stagger the imagination.

The OAO will consist of a basic stabilized platform which will accommodate various types of astronomical observing equipment as its payload.

3,500 Pounds

The scientific payload will weigh about 1,000 pounds and will be more than nine feet long and four feet in diameter. Total weight of the first OAO satellite, the S-18, will be around 3,500 pounds at launch.

An Atlas Agena B will hurl it into orbit.

EATING OUT

CC ICE RINK IN USE—Colorado College students are now enjoying the large, well-lighted ice skating rink located on Cache la Poudre Street in back of Rastall Center. The rink will be used exclusively for practice by the freshman hockey team and the varsity will use it for part of their practices. In addition it will be used for an intra-mural hockey program and recreation skating. Its use is restricted to students, faculty and staff members and their families. The rink is part of a $750,000 project which will also include a new swimming pool. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

FAR-OUT FURS IN

NEW YORK (AP) — New fur fashions are so off-beat in design and so all - inclusive in material that no fur or pelt-bearing animal is safe from the fashion faddists. Everything from shunk to sable is being used for items from boots to turbans. One haute couture shop offered a shift or straight jumper made entirely of hamster skins — presumably for the Woman Who Has Everything, except pet-loving children.

Medic Discusses Nicotine Effect On Heart

The main effect of nicotine on the heart parallels that of physical exertion, causing a rise in the heart's output of blood and in coronary flow, Dr. William Dock, Brooklyn, N. Y., said today.

In an editorial in the current Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Dock said among a few sedentary men who have normal blood pressure and show no rise in blood pressure when smoking, a cigarette might possibly substitute for exercise, often praised as protection against hardening of the arteries.

On the other hand, he said, in a few men with severe conorary disease, the increase in cardiac work due to smoking is not accompanied by a rise in coronary flow and "real harm is done by smoking."

"Even in those in whom coronary disease is minimal, other actions of nicotine. . .probably outweigh the 'packaged exercise' effect and explain in part why men who smoke a pack a day die earlier than nonsmokers, and die more often from coronary disease," he said. "The relaxation due to smoking has a price."

Dr. Dock drew his conclusions from a study he reported in the (October) AMA Archives of Internal Medicine in which the effect of smoking on the heart was traced by means of the ballistocardiogram, a device for measuring heart output.

Altho previous studies indicated a coorelation between coronary disease and abnormal heart beat patterns detected by this device, Dr. Dock said his study showed that the most commonly found abnormality was merely due to the relaxation of the patient when he begins to smoke.

His finding does not disprove the correlation between coronary disease and abnormalities uncovered by this smoking test, Dr. Dock said.

It is not latent heart disease but the type of individual predisposed to heart disease that is revealed by the ballistocardiogram, he said.

"In testing subjects, it is obvious that most men with this reaction are tense and restless when deprived of tobacco for an hour or more and are relaxed in mind as well as in muscle when they start to smoke," according to Dr. Dock. "Most of them are highly addicted and find it difficult or impossible to give up smoking. Any vascular damage which nicotine can cause will therefore be likely to occur in these subjects."

The only abnormal heart beat pattern produced by smoking which indicates organic heart disease was found almost exclusively in men with severe coronary disease, he added.

Dr. Dock is affiliated with the department of medicine, State University of New York Downstate Medical Center.

Mikoyan Back on Scene After Illness

MOSCOW (AP) — Anastas I Mikoyan, first deputy Soviet premier, appeared at a public reception Friday night looking bronzed and healthy after a reported illness. He is 68.

He attended a reception for Premier Souvanna Phouma of Laos.

The lines in his face, always rather deep, seemed perhaps deeper than usual. He has been ill at least twice in the past year, though no official announcements have been made.

There were 2,100 junior colleges in the United States at the beginning of the 1962-63 school term, according to the U.S. Office of Education.

AFA Band Has Musician Openings Now

The USAF Academy Band has immediate vacancies for exceptionally well qualified instrumentalists. There is a particular need for clarinet, oboe, flute and French horn players. Assignment to the academy band is unique among military musical organizations because its members can be permanently assigned — provided they maintain a high performance level.

Another attractive feature is the promotion opportunities. They are better than in most other military bands. All qualified band members can be promoted to Staff Sergeant and above.

A variety of educational opportunities are open to everyone assigned to the USAF Academy. Many band members have obtained their bachelors and masters degrees thru nearby schools. A part of the costs of these off duty studies is borne by the Air Force.

Anyone interested in auditioning for this topflight service band should get in touch with the Commander, USAF Academy Band, USAF Academy, Colo., to arrange details. The individual must bear travel and living expenses.

ADC Symposium To Meet in Colorado Springs

The Air Defense Command Data Automation Symposium, a pioneer program originated by Col. Herbert Waldman, ADC director of data processing, will meet Nov. 12-13 in Colorado Springs. Lt. Gen. Herbert B. Thatcher, commander ADC will make the welcoming address.

As stated by Col. Waldman, the Air Force is engaged in a continuous search for significant improvements and effectiveness in all areas of managerial responsibility. Most of the improvements realized are made possible by the transfer of conventional data processing and computational work to more efficient automatic equipment have been realized.

It is evident that further benefits from automation can only be achieved thru advanced and sophisticated management information systems. This symposium will present ADC management with practical example and actual cases where modern theory and techniques can be or are being applied.

Some of the outstanding guest lecturers for the conference will be: Dr. Harold Asher, Office of the Secretary of Defense, Washington, Lt. Col. William C Parker, Air Force Systems Command; Dr. John Mayberry, Hq., USAF; Fred G. Wolff, Burroughs Corp.; Herbert Brown, Space Systems Div., Air Force Systems Command; R. T. Marino, IBM; and Sol Pollack, Rand Corp.

The keynote address will be presented by Brig. Gen. L. B. Grossmith, USAF Director of Data Automation. His speech is titled, "Scientific Management and Automation."

Panel Discussions and questions and answer forums will also be employed in the symposium. All Air Defense Command headquarters staff agencies will be represented at the two-day meet.

IN THE VELVET—A six-point, velvet-antlered stag was dropped Tuesday by Don Hajek, 3218 Poinsetta Dr., while he was hunting in rugged, timbered country 30 miles southwest of Canon City. Hajek said that the stag was one of a group of deer his hunting party flushed into flight. "The antlers of the stag loomed out among the horns of the other bucks in the group," Hajek said. A stag, the equivalent of a steer in the domestic field, is unusual, and because he was a stag accounts for the fact his horns were still in the velvet stage, Hajek said. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Lefevre Explains Value Theory to Employe Group

Employes of The Fashion Bar were told Saturday morning that a merchandize item's value has nothing to do with its cost of production.

The exponent of this "subjective or market place theory of value" was Robert LeFevre who was invited to speak at the store to the store's personnel by manager Ben Langella.

LeFevre, editor of the Gazette Telegraph, explained to the group that the "labor theory of values"—the presumption that a value is derived from the labor expended on goods is wrong.

Value has nothing to do with the cost of production, LeFevre said, pointing out that "value means different things to different people."

The value of an article is what a prospective customer thinks it is worth to him, the speaker explained, stressing that value is a state of mind and every person has a different state of mind and evaluates things from an individual point of view.

LeFevre said that if sales people would keep in mind the fact that value does not come from labor in dealing with customers, they would build a better loyalty to themselves and to their stores.

Exploring the idea that each person, as a human being, is motivated by the desire to make a profit, LeFevre said that "we, as customers or sellers, always make exchanges in the market place to get the best value for our dollar."

Therefore, he went on, an item's value is only worth what two people are willing to exchange for it.

Debunking the theory believed by many that high profits are "evil," LeFevre said profits can be as high as possible if the customer gets his money's worth.

"No such thing as a fixed price can be placed on any item," he said; rather, the price depends upon what a person is willing to pay to acquire something he wants.

A sales person must have the ability to convince a prospective customer he is getting his money's worth, LeFevre said, adding however that this should never be done by fraudlent means.

LeFevre said there was a tendency among sales personnel to develop guilt feelings about "mark-up" of goods, believing that this is "immoral."

This "general belief," he said, should be discarded since it is up to the customer to judge whether he wants to pay the price listed on an item.

"You cannot make profits unless you please your customer," LeFevre pointed out to the salemen and women, "not once, but many times to the extent where he will keep returning to your place of business."

"For what you're interested in is making a profit in a business," he concluded "and value derives from competitive businesses which can only operate in a free society."

Local Drivers Receive Patrol Commendations

S. National Bank are: Jack C. Wells, 1125 Pando St., and Regina R. Youngs 3002½ N. Arcadia St.

Jacquelin L. Adams, of Cripple Creek, also has received such a commendation from Colorado State Patrolman Lloyd M. Carothers, 234 Elmwood Dr., Colorado Springs.

Senior Citizen Recreational Aids Checked

The over 65 population of Colorado Springs is larger than the national average, likely to go even higher, and the question is, "What to do?"

By 1970 metropolitan Colorado Springs will have more than 16,000 citizens over 65. What can be done to best maintain their talents and interests and to make their retirement years pleasant and profitable?

An additional fact is that most of the older folks live near the center of town.

These facts and the questions as well were brought out by reports of four sub-committees of a self study group of the United Fund Planning Committee.

The committee is determining recreational, cultural and educational advantages available to this age group.

The study committee is working under the direction of Mrs. Verna Rensvold, Kansas City, field consultant of the National Recreation Association who was in Colorado Springs last week.

Earl Bryson, chairman of the committee on statistics concluded that, "Colorado Springs has a special appeal - for active-minded reasonably vigorous older people."

Mrs. Rensvold agreed. "Your many advantages here for the retired person makes Colorado Springs attractive to those in their upper years," she said.

"It is important that recreational, cultural and social activities be provided for this age group. Many of them have 20 to 30 years ahead of them, and we can either waste their abilities, or provide programs that can be productive and meaningful," she said.

The local average is more than one per cent above the average.

Nationally, the number of citizens over 65 comprises 9.2 per cent of the population, according to U.S. Census figures.

In Colorado Springs, the figure is 10.8 per cent and expected to go up.

Mrs. Rensvold pointed out that concern with senior citizens is a comparatively recent one, dating back only about 20 years.

Bryson's study indicated that sub-division and outlaying areas are populated mostly by young people whereas closer to town contain the residences of the vast majority of the elderly. The only outlying area with a significant number of older people is the Broadmoor area.

Mrs. Dorothy Wing, chairman of the committee on the program, reported on the results of a questionnaire to all agencies and churches, asking information about their plans and programs for senior citizens.

She pointed out that these activities all operated independently.

By late December, a report of recommendations for future plans about senior citizen activities is expected to be released.

Jubilant Crowds Welcome New Viet Buddhist Rule

Van Minh and his revolutionary junta named Nguyen Ngoc Tho, 55, a Buddhist, as premier for a provisional civil government. He was vice president under Ngo Dinh Diem but had little power.

Diplomatic sources said they believed the United States will recognize the new government as soon as it is officially formed.

Whether Tho becomes a real administrator or a figurehead under military control, U.S. officials expected South Viet Nam to drop preoccupation with its political-religious crisis and step up the American-backed war against Communist guerrillas.

Censorship imposed in Saigon at the outset of the uprising Friday was eased. Censors permitted transmission of a backlog of news stories, some long delayed.

Detachments of the army, marines and air force headed by the junta battled down resistance of palace guard and elite special forces in an 18-hour fight that ended shortly before dawn. A cease-fire was called.

The generals told newsmen the brothers slipped out of their hands during the cease-fire, apparently boarding a departing truck while casualties were being hauled from the blasted grounds of the palace.

The brothers sought refuge at a church in a Chinese quarter of suburban Cholon. Though the Roman Catholic Church condemns suicide, Radio Saigon said the two took their own lives after being arrested.

Indicating they had been free several hours, the junta said they killed themselves at 10:45 a.m.

The junta announced casualties on the revolutionary side had been only about five killed and 20 wounded. Casualties of the loyalist troops were not known, but they also appeared fairly light.

Crowds around the shattered palace cheered tank drivers, marines and other troops who spearheaded the revolution.

Wild scenes of enthusiasm greeted Buddhist leaders when they returned to their pagodas after release from jail.

Emotional Buddhists flocked around them in the cloisters in Xa Loi and An Quang pagodas that had been deserted since Diem cracked down on pagodas Aug. 21.

One of the foremost monks released was Thich Duc Niep, regarded as a key organizer of the Buddhist cries of persecution into a movement that eventually led to Diem's downfall.

Crime Committed Against Family, Mrs. Nhu Says

incompatible with our religion," Mrs. Nhu said at her hotel shortly before going to Mass at the nearby Roman Catholic Church of the Good Shepard.

In a prepared statement she said many Asians had told her: "Whoever has the Americans as allies does not need any enemies."

"I did not believe them," she continued, "but if the news is true, if really my family has been killed with either the official or unofficial blessing of the American government, I can predict to you all that the story in Viet Nam is only at its beginning."

Mrs. Nhu said "no one can seriously believe in the disclaimer that the Americans have nothing to do with the persent situation in Viet Nam.

"Because of this, anything which would happen to my family would be an indelible stigma against the U.S. One cannot forget either that my family includes three other children 15, 11, 4 who all had to bear at least three or four murderous seizures provoked by coups incited and backed by Americans.

"Moreover, the world knows perfectly that the Ngo family has only one crime in the eyes of a few shortsighted and arrogant Americans. The Ngo only want to give Viet Nam its own identity which cannot be the same one wanted by those few Americans.

"To stab them in the balck or to suppress them while they are winning the war will only bring to them more glory."

The slender former first lady of South Viet Nam countered rumors that she might seek asylum in this country by saying: "Surely, I shall return to Viet Nam."

There was no immediate word whether Mrs. Nhu would meet with her father, former Viet Nam Ambassador Tran Van Chuong, when he flies here from Washington Sunday to talk at Chapman College.

He refused to see her several weeks ago in Washington, but Saturday he said, "There is no reason not to see her, especially if the reports of her husband's death are true. She is my daughter and if she is unhappy and needs me I will see her."

However, McBurney said that report was inaccurate.

"All I said was that the county commissioners would hear hear the case again if it came to them," he said.

McBurney pointed out that he was not indicating in anyway how the commissioners might vote if such a hearing did come up again.

The chairman pointed out that a request for rezoning would have to begin with the county planning commission as it did in 1960. The planning group approved the rezoning plan when it first came up.

Further, McBurney said, the request for a hearing would have to come from the Trianon Foundation.

The foundation was organized as a non-profit firm in 1960 for the purpose of buying the Trianon.

Metzger is chairman of the board of trustees, and two of the other founders of the corporation are listed as Joe Little, and David Little, father and son attorneys in Denver. Metzger also is an attorney who practiced in Denver and once served as attorney general of Colorado. He is a Democrat.

Metzger said that inventory must go on as the London firm which plans to auction off the art treasurers in the Trianon has planned the sale for January in Los Angeles.

Soon after the sale, work to tear down the building is expected to begin, according to Metzger.

Metzger pointed out that making another atternpt to have the area rezoned so that the art school could be advertised would be a lengthy, time consuming process. "We don't know if they (the members of the planning commission and the board of county commissioners) would be favorable," he said.

He said that the owners feel they have too much invested to wait longer with the sale of the art works and subsequent sale of land in half-acre lots.

Carson Soldier Hurt When Car Upsets

Charles W. Boyd, 29, a soldier with the 5th Infantry Division at Ft. Carson, was taken to the post hospital early Saturday after he was thrown from his car when it rolled over south of town, according to the Colorad State Patrol.

Boyd was reported in satisfactory condition. He suffered head, face and hand cuts and bruises, according to Patrolman Nathan Boals.

Boals reported that Boyd's car went off the highway while making a left-hand turn on Kelker Road, went 176 feet along the ditch, then rolled over, throwing out the driver and coming to rest on its wheels. Damage was estimated at $800 to the 1958 model car.

Paint Sprayed On Nude Girl, Statue That Is

A bronze statue of a nude girl was sprayed with red paint at the Fine Arts Center, 30 W. Dale St., Friday night or Saturday morning, police said.

Jeff C. Allen, an employe of the center, discovered the vandalism Saturday morning. It is not known what it will cost to restore the status to its original condition.

The statue is kept on the patio of the center and Allen said the vandals had to climb a stone wall to get at it.

An obscene word was written on the marble block on which the statue stands and the paint was sprayed all over the statue, police said.

John H. Gately, Former Springs, Attorney Dies

independent candidate for district attorney.

That made it a three-way race, Gately, incumbent Republican James Quine, now a justice of the peace, and Leo Rector, Democrat who won. Some political observers were of the opinion that Gately split the Republican and independent vote sufficiently so that a Democrat could win.

He later was rumored as a candidate for the City Council and then projected by his backers as mayor, on the assumption that he would win in the election. Nothing ever came of that.

In 1958, Mrs. Madeline Diesing Gately was granted a divorce from Gately in district court here on mentally cruelty grounds in a bitterly fought case that was heard by a jury.

Gately died of a heart attack, funeral authorities said, and it was in 1958 that he suffered his first heart attack.

He was back in the news again in 1960 when he became an independent candidate for district attorney and then was indefinitely suspended from practicing law by the Colorado Supreme Court for an incident that had no connection with his political ambitions. He made a very weak showing in the November election.

Gately had charged earlier in the year that a Denver real estate man had given a supreme court justice $3,500 to obtain a favorable decision in a civil damages suit.

On July 24, 1961, Gately was disbarred in Colorado by the state high court.

He later moved to New Mexico and then ran in to trouble there and in October 1961 he was found guilty of contempt of the supreme court of that state for practicing law without a license.

Man Charged With Impersonating An Air Officer

A 26-year-old man who claims to live in Atlanta, Ga., was being held in Brady's Hospital Saturday while law officials charged him with impersonating an Air Force officer and attempted to find out more about him.

The man came to town Friday night and registered at Scotty's Motel, 1921 E. Platte Ave., as Capt. Billy Cameron Browne, Air Defense Command, Atlanta, Ga.

The man told Leon Heidelberg of the motel that he had business at Ent Air Force Base and that he then intended to leave for California. The traveler arrived at the motel in a taxi and paid for his room in advance with cash. Heidelberger reported to Deputy Sheriffs Albert Moore and Lee Quein.

The man also told Heidelberger that he wanted to talk to "General Partridge."

The motel keeper became suspicious and so called the air police at Ent to report his suspicions. He explained that he thought it odd that the visitor had arrived in a taxi instead of a military vehicle and that he had paid cash for his room instead of using a military form.

The air police called the sheriff's office and the two deputies were sent to talk to the man.

They reported that the man had an enlisted man's overcoat and officer's cap.

The man had a social security card made out to Capt. Billy Cameron Brown, and a personal calling card made out the same way, with an address at 888 Oak Hill Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

Police contact with Atlanta was no help, as police there said that the man was not known at the listed address.

Local officials hope that his fingerprints, which were sent to the FBI lab in Washington, will help lead to his identification.

Vandals Spray Paint On Cars, Garage

Henry E. Proal, 501 Hallem Dr., and Ralph Lykens, 213 Everett Dr., both Security, reported to sheriff's deputies Saturday that they were victims of paint spraying vandals.

Two Windows Smashed In Ivywild School

Two windows were broken out of the Ivywild School Friday night, it was reported to the sheriff's office Saturday.

L. C. Runyon, custodian of the building, told Deputy Vincent Denboske that the windows were not exceptionally large. Damage was not estimated.

GT Editor Warns Farmers Of 'Majority Decisions'

By JACK HOPPER
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

"The American Farm Bureau is politically vulnerable because it has won a victory," Robert LeFevre, founder-president of the Gazette Telegraph, told 200 members of the El Paso County Farm Bureau Saturday at their annual meeting and dinner, held in the Acacia Hotel.

He was referring to the farmers' rejection of the administration's wheat plan.

He compared the farmers' position with that of the United States in World Wars I and II. "We win the war," he said, "and lose the peace."

He said that farmers are in much the same position. They permit rule by the government, which, supposedly, is the decision of the majority.

"We have got to the place where we are so dependent upon the government," said LeFevre, "that when we get to a fork in the road, we cannot make up our minds which one to take, but must wait for a 'majority' decision."

LeFevre said he feared for the future of the country, which is in bad condition because of lack of individuals capable of making individual decisions. "The majority decision is not always right," LeFevre said.

He urged the farmers to make their own decisions instead of waiting for government decisions to solve their problems.

"The only way to prevent government decisions," he said, "is to return to the right to manage your own affairs."

The government takes away the profit of profiting by mistakes, he said. By making mistakes, people will learn to correct them and improve their own future.

Socialism, LeFevre said, prevents people from trying and keeps them from learning.

"If I am capable, let me do it," LeFevre emphasized. "Let me alone. Let me try to do my best. And, if I make money, let me keep it."

Farmers should be in the business to make money, he said. But "majority decisions" are bad for farmers. They should make their own decisions.

He urged a return to rugged individualism. "Where did the rugged individual go?" he asked. He pointed out that this country was built by rugged individuals. "The spirit of those rugged individuals may rise again right in this room," he told the meeting.

"Your problem is not simply to win decisions," he advised the farmers. "You must educate the young people. Teach them to rely on their own decisions and stand on their own feet."

Included in other business at the meeting was the annual election of officers.

ert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Beside the question of recognition, informants said the top officials discussed the composition of the new Saigon government and the resumption of U.S. economic aid programs, which have been curtailed in the last two months.

The military group headed by Gen. Duong Van Minh is expected to continue to hold sensitive Cabinet posts such as the ministry of defense, interior, police administration and all activities connected with the war effort.

The United States apparently bends in the public announcements of the military committee assurance that South Viet Nam will return to a constitutional democratic form of government.

The suspension of some aid programs has not led to food shortages, but there have been speculative price increases and hoarding of flour, cement, chemicals and steel products. The cost of living has risen.

The new government is not expected to solve all economic and military problems, but after two months of virtually no communication with Washington there is a sense of relief here that the emphasis can be put now on the major task of winning the war against the Communist guerrillas.

Three Cars Pileup, One Woman Injured

A three-car accident at the intersection of Pikes Peak Avenue and 30th Street Saturday morning resulted in an injury to Wilma Faulkner, 23, of 11 Red Rock Ave., police reported.

Mrs. Faulkner was taken to the Ft. Carson Hospital with a head laceration.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Cora Strunck Griffith, 22, of 429 N. 30th St., who was ticketed for taking the right of way at a stop sign after her car struck another automobile being driven by Solan Henery Morris, 55, of 612 Echo Ln., police said.

The impact forced the Morris car into a third car which was being driven by Crystal Virginia Rhodes, 40, of 3326 W. Pikes Peak Ave.

Total damage was estimated at over $1,000.

Car Smacks Tree, Man and Girl Injured

A man and a girl received head custs and abrasions when the car in which they were riding hit a tree Saturday afternoon, police reported.

The accident happened two miles west of Evans Avenue on North Cheyenne Canon Road.

Mary A. Peterson, 16, of 1220 Bristol Ave., was taken to St. Francis Hospital for treatment. She was driving the car which skidded out of control on ice before hitting the tree, police said.

Charles E. Meyers, 24, of Ft. Carson, was treated at the Ft. Carson Hospital.

day, Khrushchev said "cooperation between states in exploring outer space would be materially advanced" if it were possible to attain "a relaxation of tensions ... supported by practical steps in disarmament."

The premier was toasting the Soviet scientists responsible for the launching "Flight-1," an unmanned spaceship which the Russians say can be maneuvered from the earth by remote control.

The Soviet agency Tass said the "guided, maneuverable spaceship" has already boosted itself from one orbit into a different and larger one.

Observers said such maneuvers make it at least theoretically possible to link up two or more spacecraft to form a "space platform" which might be used as a way station for flights into deep space.

There was immediate speculation that the Russians may soon launch a second spaceship, probably called "Flight-2," and attempt a rendezvous in orbit.

MIGHTY HUNTER—Dale Olsgard, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin H. Olsgard, 2514 Jay Place, is the mighty hunter of this year's season. He shot an elk 15 miles west of Pagosa Springs, Colo., last Wednesday and while getting the fallen animal looked up and there, 12 feet from him, was a brown bear. He seized his rifle and killed the bear with one shot, between the eyes. Besides this exploit he also got a doe in the same Wolf Creek Pass area. At the time of his bear adventure he was hunting with a grandfather, Henry Olsgard, and an uncle Harold Olsgard, both of Gridley, Calif.

defined by the remnants of an electrified fence and mine field barrier set up by France during the Algerian war.

The new fighting was near the south end of the line where the north-south frontier cuts southwest. Algerian authorities said 105mm Moroccan shells ripped into Beni Ounif 23 minutes after midnight and kept coming for 20 minutes. Civilians had been evacuated after shelling Friday.

The Algerians said another barrage started at 5 a.m. and Algerian artillery was ordered to reply at 7 a.m. Fighting was still going on in the late afternoon, officials said.

The Algerian reports mentioned the Moroccan firing on Beni Ounif, and did not say they were firing on Figuig as Morocco charged. The Moroccans were equally silent on the shelling of Beni Ounif.

The Moroccan government said it moved troops toward the eastern frontier for defense not attacks. It vowed it intends to abide by the Bamako agreement calling for negotiations. This was the accord reached in Bamako, Mali, last Wednesday between President Ahmed Ben Bella of Algeria and King Hassan II of Morocco.

Algerian officials likewise said they would comply, and warned against any hasty conclusions that the fighting meant the end of the Bamako accord.

Unofficial reports in Morocco placed the civilian casualties at Figuig, killed or wounded, at about 60. Eight other persons were killed when two vehicles hit mines west of Figuig. Three members of Algerian mine-laying squads were captured.

$1,000 Dog Stolen Police Report

A German Shorthair Pointer dog worth $1,000 was stolen from Stewart Alward, 823 E. Kiowa St., Tuesday night, police reported Saturday.

Alward told officers the dog was taken from the back yard. He said the dog was chained was taken from the back yard, and could not have wandered off.

Alward did not report the theft until Friday, police said.

In another case of theft, $35 in cash was stolen from Joseph H. Martin of Ft. Carson. Martin said he was waiting for a bus at the Union Bus Depot when the theft occurred.

He said there were many soldiers waiting for the bus and he was jostled by them while waiting in line.

Martin discovered the billfold was not in his pocket just as he was boarding the bus. He later found it near the door of the bus, but the money was missing, Martin told officers.

Four hubcaps worth $40 were stolen from the car of Phillip Mondragon Friday night or Saturday morning. Mondragon, of 2421 W. Kiowa St., told police the car was parked at his home or at the Chidlaw Building when the theft occurred.

Hurd Painting Exhibition Scheduled for Art Center

An exhibition of the paintings of Peter Hurd, renowned New Mexico painter, will open at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center Thursday.

Recognized as the foremost painter of Southwestern landscape, Hurd is a native and resident of Roswell, N.M., and the exhibition has been organized by the Rosewell Museum and Art Center from among the artist's recent works.

Included are watercolors and tempera landscapes and portraits of the people who inhabit the strange and beautiful Southwest.

Altho Hurd is a realistic, regional painter, even the most dedicated modernist is appreciative of the aura of near uniqueness that this artist commands.

Dr. F. M. Hinkhouse, Director of the Phoenix Art Museum which selected Hurd to head the Spring 1963 exhibition program, said: "Here is a painter of stature who has the courage to hoe a lone furrow and has earned repute in the face of fashion's dictates."

While a product of the West, Hurd by no means cut himself off from outside contacts. Two years of study at West Point gave him a taste of another world, but he soon realized that all that really mattered to him was the "exciting and infinite world of painting."

In 1924 he went to study with the noted artist and illustrator N. C. Wyeth, to whom Hurd says he owes everything in his early development.

His first important exhibition in New York was in 1937 and in 1938 he was adjudged the winner of a mural competition for the U. S. Post Office in Dallas. In that year, also, he sold a painting to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

More recognition preceeded a commission in 1942, along with six other American painters, to make a pictorial record of U.S. Army Air Force subjects which were reproduced in "Life Magazine" in 1943.

Another assignment from "Life Magazine" in 1944 took him for five months to United States Transport Commands in South America, Arabia, Africa, India and Italy and drawings that he made at the Ascension Island Army Air Force Installation were reproduced by "Life" in 1945.

Exhibitions and assignments followed in rapid succession and his paintings became part of many notable collections including not only the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, but the National Gallery at Edinburgh, Scotland, Art Institute in Chicago, Nelson Gallery in Kansas City, and of course, his home town of Roswell.

In 1942 he achieved the honor of being elected a National Academician.

Also opening Thursday at the Fine Arts Center is an exhibition of Japanese Sumi paintings, a selection of 50 abstract paintings by the leading contemporary artists of Japan.

Sumi ink painting has long been a favored means of expression by Japanese artists and this exhibition provides an unusual opportunity to see the best work being produced today. The exhibition is being circulated by the art department of Oregon State University.

On exhibit thru December is the Taylor Museum collection of artifacts concerned with the life of desert peoples of the Southwest. Included are utensils, textiles, sandpaintings, masks and kachina dolls.

The Fall showing of rental pictures and sculpture from the rental gallery will open Sunday with a tea from 3 to 5 p.m.

Health Insurance Programs Are Growing Rapidly

Health insurance protection against the cost of doctor calls and other nonsurgical care by doctors is growing rapidly, the Health Insurance Institute said today.

This type of protection, known as regular medical expense insurance, has grown from 35,670,000 persons insured at the end of 1952 to 98,204,000 persons insured at the end of 1962, according to the Institute.

The growth of this coverage is one measure of how the American people have materially broadened their health insurance protection over the past ten years, the Institute said.

At the end of 1952, more than 91 million Americans had hospital expense coverage, indicating that approximately four out of every ten persons with hospital insurance also had regular medical insurance.

At the end of 1962, more than 141 million persons had hospital insurance, so that nearly seven out of every ten persons with hospital insurance now have regular medical insurance, said the Institute.

Coverage under regular medical expense insurance can be expected to continue to grow, the Institute said. It is estimated that at the end of June 1963 some 100 million persons had this coverage.

Benefits paid by insurance companies to persons covered by regular medical insurance have been increasing two and one half times as fast as the climb in the number of persons protected, the Institute said.

From the end of 1957 to the end of 1962 the net insurance company coverage of persons with regular medical expense insurance climbed from 33.2 million to 47.0 million, a 41.4 per cent increase which was slightly ahead of the rate of growth in this type of coverage by all insuring organizations.

At the same time, the total amount of benefits paid by insurance companies for regular benefits for such expenses received under major medical expense policies, increased 103.9 per cent, from $132 million to $269 million.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

Manitou Citizen's Advice Sought On Home Rule Form of Government

"Should the city go forward with plans for changing Manitou Springs from a statutory second class city to a home rule city?"

This question will appear on the ballot Tuesday in the Manitou municipal election and is classified as an advisory vote only.

Home rule is now the form of government for 29 cities in Colorado. Of these, 10 municipalities have a population of 5,000 or less. Seventeen of these charters have been adopted in the last 10 years. The Colorado constitutional grant of home rule was established in 1902.

Voters are advised that a majority yes vote on the question is in no way binding to the city or its officials. The question is asked only to obtain the consensus of the electors so the City Council will know whether to continue exploration of home rule.

The most significant principle of home rule government is that a city may adopt methods of operation which are different than those prescribed by state law.

Home rule is not a guarantee of good government, but rather, establishes conditions to allow the highest and broadest expression of democratic government level.

Proponents of home rule are most outspoken about the inherent advantages related to elections and city officials. For example, under a home rule charter, it would be possible to elect members of the City Council at large rather than electing two from each ward as required by Colorado statute.

A home rule charter could prescribe term of office for council members, allowing for rotation, rather than the present system of electing a complete six-man council every two years.

One principal disadvantage outlined by participants of home rule government is the complex set of mechanics related to adopting the system.

If voters indicate Tuesday that they want to pursue home rule, the next step will involve another election whereby 21 taxpayers would be elected to a home rule charter convention.

Nomination for charter convention members is by petition of 25 electors filed with the city clerk within 25 days of the election date.

After the charter convention is elected, the group must draft a charter or constitution within 60 days and present it to the electors. If rejected by the voters, the entire procedure is repeated from the point of nominating and electing a new 21-member charter group.

However, it is noted by home rule participants that once the system is installed, the advantages far outweigh the disadvantages.

Youngest Shavetail in U.S. Army Now Officer

By SAM MARLER

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — Every man who ever packed a rifle for his country has fond, or unfond, memories of a baby-faced shavetail superior. But the youngest of them all today is 2nd Lt. Brian Hamilton Chermol of Exton, Pa.

Chermol, 19, enlisted in the Army June 14, 1962, the day after he finished high school. Today, he is a commissioned officer, has completed paratrooper school at Ft. Benning, and is enrolled in Ranger School.

After Ranger School, one of the Army's toughest, he was scheduled to take over a platoon of the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Chermol was 17 when he enlisted, but 11 days later had his 18th birthday. While in basic training at Ft. Dix, N.J., he took a series of tests to qualify for Officers Candidate School. His commanding officer gave him a high recommendation. He went before an Officer Selection Board and was accepted into OCS.

He was then given temporary Military Police duty at Ft. Dix, and reported at Ft. Benning for OCS Jan. 13, 1963.

Six months later, June 25, 135 of the 230 candidates who started the school were commissioned second lieutenants. Chermol was one of them. He had celebrated his 19th birthday June 24.

Chermol is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Chermol of Exton, which he described as a "town near Valley Forge, Pa., which is near King of Prussia, Pa." His father runs a laundry and dry cleaning service.

Asked if he liked parachuting, Chermol said, "I love it." He had a rather odd reason for wanting to be a paratrooper. He said his father had been a "medic" in World War II, and his mother a nurse. He said they both had told him stories of operating on wounded paratroopers.

Chermol said he had taken and passed the one-year college equivalency test offered servicemen. He said he hoped to build up to three years' college credits through correspondents courses and take the final year at the University of Omaha (Omaha, Neb.) under the "boot strap" program under which the Army sends promising officers to college while on active duty.

Chermol said he had been "looking forward very much to the challenge of Ranger School."

Jaycee 'Man of Year' Held as Extortionist

SWEETWATER, Tex. (UPI)— Residents of this town of 15,000 were shocked today at the arrest of a Junior Chamber of Commerce "Man of the Month" on charges he threatened to blow up the city's schools, hospitals and its courthouse unless he got $250,000.

Ronnie Marion Mason, 25, was arrested Friday night by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and charged with using the mails to defraud and using the mails to threaten to destroy property.

Mason, an active civil leader, church worker and securities salesman, was arrested in a Sweetwater motel the FBI had been using for undercover headquarters in the case since Oct. 24, when the threats were made in a letter.

The FBI said they "asked" Mason to come to the motel for a talk, and then telephoned the U.S. commissioner in Fort Worth for authority to arrest him.

Sweetwater is 40 miles west of Abilene.

Oddly enough, that was also the day the Sweetwater Reporter carried a picture of Mason as one of five Junior Chamber of Commerce "Jaycees of the Month."

Mason was arraigned in Abilene on charges of using the mails to defraud and threatening to destroy property and bound over to a grand jury. Bond was set at $10,000.

J. Gordon Shanklin, special FBI agent in charge of Dallas, said a threatening letter was received by Wilson Guest, president of the National Bank of Sweetwater.

The letter read: "There has been a bomb placed in every grade school, junior high school and high school, hospital and courthouse.

"I can make a bomb go off and I can be all the way across town when it happens, day or night. This type of bomb will completely flatten a two-block area. I can assure you there will be no lives or survive it (sic).

"I want $250,000," the letter continued. "This is approximately $58.10 per person so that they might live. Pretty small amount to live, don't you think?"

Russians Exercise but Still Scorn Calories

By JAY AXELBANK

MOSCOW (UPI)—The young Russian couple who were putting it away at the Hotel National restaurant this week would have shocked calorie - counting Americans.

They loaded their plates with meat, potatoes and gravy and had three or four slices of bread apiece. This couple will never help Russia economize on bread — now in none too abundant supply because of a bad harvest.

For dessert the two had a form of Russian pancake with jam inside known as a "bleeney."

There is no fuss about dieting American men could embrace their "bony women without getting bruises."

Russians, however, are very conscious of good health—if not of their shapes. Physical culture is big time compared to America — where most people engage in limited exercise.

On Radio Moscow daily you can hear a gym coach, to the accompaniment of a piano, chanting "Adeen, dva, tri" (one, two, three). One tune for the "daily dozen" this week was "Farmer in the Dell."

The state radio blares out sit-ups, bends and push - up exercises on an average of a half hour a day. At factories and other work enterprises there are calisthenics breaks of 10 minutes each, usually at 11 a.m. and at 4 p.m.

There are "Over 40" clubs where oldsters get together during the day or in the evening to keep in shape.

To many westerners it's all a great puzzle: The Russians are hipped on daily exercise to get trim bodies — yet load up on starchy meals sure to put spare tires round the middle.

Russian women, who hold down half of all the jobs in this country, do many things that in the West would be considered quite inappropriate for the weaker sex. This week a pretty blonde was seen doing a plastering job on a Moscow building. She wore dirty baggy, paint-smeared overalls, but her hair looked like it had just emerged from a beauty parlor drier and she had on eye shadow and mascara. Women will be women, even in male occupations.

It's melon time now in Moscow with honeydews, cantaloupes and watermelons seemingly piled on every street corner. Grapes and good apples are also part of the fall cornucopia. But this is the last fruit fling of 1963. With cold weather breathing down Moscow's neck, fruit — and vegetables — will gradually disappear from stores until in the dead of winter the only place fresh fruit will be found will be in the big hotels catering to foreigners.

Prelate Urges Bishops to Quit Ivory Towers

By BENNET M. BOLTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — An American prelate believes that Roman Catholic laymen will be aware of any new authority that may be granted them by the Ecumenical Council.

"The right-thinking layman is going to recognize the sphere of authority and will not seek to invade those areas where constituted authority has the final place," Archbishop William W. Cousins of Milwaukee said in a statement issued to newsmen today.

The prelate, a member of a council commission preparing a schema (topic) on the laity, said his commission hoped that layman will respond "with an enthusiasm and initiative that might previously have been lacking."

The council adjourned Friday for a long weekend.

It does not meet again in St. Peter's Basilica until Tuesday, when it will turn to a fresh topic on bishops and diocesan government. Action by the council on the laity topics is not scheduled in the current session ending Dec. 4.

Archbishop Cousins' statement said:

"The spirit to be arrived at is one of complete cooperation, one in which the laity is not fearful of undue interference and dos not tend to feel suppressed."

He said this spirit also means a bishop " must descend from his ivory tower and work closely with those who are in a position to do so much good for the apostolate."

Senate Defeats Morse Proposal On Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, dipping a toe into the sea of proposals aimed at trimming U.S. foreign aid sharply, drowned Sen. Wayne Morse's move Friday to send the legislation back to the Foreign Relations Committee for shrinkage.

Immediately after the Oregon Democrat's motion was defeated 46-29, majority leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., urged the senators to be on hand in full force for more voting Monday and every day next week.

"We seem to be in for a long siege," Mansfield declared.

Earlier, he had complained there had been so little interest in the measure that 25 of the 100 senators were absent.

This first week on the $4.2-billion aid measure, sent to the floor by the Foreign Relations Committee, was devoted almost entirely to debate, with Morse and other critics doing most of the talking.

The vote on Morse's motion was the first, but not decisive, victory by Senate Democratic and Republican leaders who are seeking to satisfy sentiment for slashes by amending the total to $3,817,365,000 — a cut of $385 million.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois joined Mansfield in turning back Morse's move, delivering a barbed speech that brought a protest of "bad taste" from Morse.

Under Morse's motion, the committee would have been directed to report back no later than Nov. 8. But Dirksen said the Senate still would have to deal with more than 40 pending ammendments.

The $4.2-billion Senate committee total and the $3.8 billion compromise compare to $3.5 billion voted by the House, and $4.5 billion President Kennedy originally requested.

The compromise cut proposal will be up for action when Senate debate resumes Monday.

MAINTENANCE PROBLEM — Josef Cox of 817 Zion Drive, engineer at St. Francis Hospital, works on some of the exposed pipe in a hallway in the old building at the hospital. The 75 year old structure has become a perpetual maintenance problem. The drive for a new building has raised slightly more than one third the amount that is needed in public subscription. Federal matching funds have been requested. The final phase of the public drive starts Tuesday.

Hospital's Fund Request Given High Priority

The request of St. Francis Hospital for Hill Burton matching funds to augment funds received thru public subscription has been given a "high priority" by Dr. Roy L. Cleere, director of the Colorado Department of Public Health.

A clean-up drive to raise $200,000 will be launched Tuesday morning with a breakfast meeting for workers at the hospital.

"Altho your hospital has an excellent staff and is rendering high quality service we know you are handicapped because of obsolete buildings," Dr. Cleere said.

"You urgently need a modern building to properly fulfill your mission and responsibility in the Colorado Springs area. Our staff have reviewed your plans and find that they comply with applicable codes and regulations, and when completed this will be one of the outstanding hospitals in the community and state", he added.

The State Advisory Hospital Council will meet on Nov. 22 at which time Hill Burton funds will be recommended for distribution. St. Francis Hospital hopes to complete its local solicitation as soon as possible so that community support can be demonstrated. "Federal funds are always granted on a matching 45 per cent Federal to 55 per cent local fund. This makes the success of the local drive an urgent need," Dr. Vernon Bolton, chairman of the planning committee dais.

In granting the high priority statement, Dr. Cleere pointed out that the present hospital building constructed in 1901 is badly in need of remodeling and the older wing built in 1887 needs replacing.

Plans call for a new and modern six story building to replace the old structure. This building will be connected to the annex, a modern building in which maternity, pediatrics, physical therapy and the new intensive care unit are located.

The newer wing of the old building will be remodeled to provide a geriatrics unit.

South Africans May Lose Grape Markets

BAR SO. AFRICAN GRAPES

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI)—A South African fruit expert has warned grape farmers they will soon lose their remaining markets in Africa.

Dr. N. A. B. Bestbier, general manager of the Deciduous Fruit Board, told a meeting of grape farmers at Paarl, 35 miles from here, that only four African states now buy South African grapes, compared with 10 three years ago.

He said these four, Senegal, the Ivory Coast, the Cameroons and Kenya, probably will bar South African produce soon, losing the republic an export market of 72,000 boxes of grapes a year.

In the Far East, Singapore took 40,000 boxes and the Philippines 10,000 boxes last season. Both countries are expected to boycott South African goods this year.

Bestbier said that if Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland follow the example of other independent African states a 70,000-box-a-year market will be lost.

But to offset these losses he said Canada, the Persian Gulf and Red Sea areas were expected to buy more South African grapes.

Total South African grape exports this year will total 5,650,000 (m) boxes.

The government's per capita expenditure for World War II veterans has been four times that for World War I veterans.

Questions and Answers on Alcoholism

Editor's Note: As a public service, The Gazette Telegraph will answer questions on Alcoholism and Problem Drinking in our region. Send all inquiries to this newspaper. Answers will be supplied by G. L. McDougall, Director, Alcoholism Information Center, Out West Building, sponsored by the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism.

1. Q. If a person fails the N. C. A. recommended "A Thoro Practical Test," what should he do?

A. Investigate possibilities of help in his community. If he is an alcoholic he cannot quit thru his own will power — he needs help. He may consult his doctor, clergy and the local Alcoholism Information Center. All will be helpful in their areas of the disease and may recommend other sources as a sobriety maintenance program such as Alcoholics Anonymous.

2. Q. How do you distinguish between a heavy drinker and an alcoholic?

A. A heavy drinker drinks only as much as he wants to; on the other hand, an alcoholic drinks more than he wants to because he has lost the element of control.

3. Q. If alcoholism is a disease, why are people reluctant to admit it?

A. This question could take a lot of answering in a word - "Stigma."

4. Q. My husband drinks nothing but beer — he has gotten into a lot of trouble but he says he isn't an alcholic because he doesn't drink hard liquor. Is this true?

A. 6 oz. of Beer equals ¾ oz. of whisky — alcohol is alcohol wherever you find it.

5. Q. Can anyone who drinks become an alcoholic?

A. This is not yet known. One in 15 who drink do.

6. Q. Alcoholics appear to be weak-willed persons. Is this true?

A. No. Alcoholics are people and there are strong willed, average willed and weak willed problem drinkers. The will power plays no part in the compulsion to drink which is one of the symptoms of this very complex illness.

7. Q. How can you slow down or stop alcoholism without outlawing alcoholic beverages?

A. Thru secondary prevention. Alcohol education and knowledge of alcoholism, the illness, is the preventive.

Health-Climate Relationship Discussed by AMA

The relationship of climate to health has been a subject of speculation and debate since time immemorial.

We hear our friends tell about getting relief from arthritic pains by moving to a hot, dry zone. Others report they have fewer attacks of colds and flu in semi-desert cities and towns.

Colds and flu cannot be avoided merely by living in a hot, dry climate, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

Colds and flu are caused by various viruses that can be transmitted readily from person to person regardless of the climate.

If there was any "best spot" geographically for arthritics, it would be so over run with people there would be standing room only. Scientific studies have shown that changes in barometric pressure can effect pains in the joints to a slight extent. But there are arthritics in every climate in the world, all of them more or less in pain much of the time.

If you're thinking about moving to a different climate for health reasons, it is advisable to make a preliminary visit of a few weeks before you pull up stakes and make a complete break from your hometown.

A short visit, plus consultation with your family doctor, will help you determine whether you will gain any lasting benefit from the move.

Baby Starvation Listed as Modern Day Tragedy

Five cases in which infants under nine months of age died of starvation as a result of prolonged neglect were reported today in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Lester Adelson, Cleveland, Ohio, chief deputy coroner of Cuyahoga County, said:

"Infant homicide by starvation is an ugly and repugnant thought, but . . . (these) cases demonstrate that such tragic crimes do occur in a large metropolitan area with actively-functioning governmental and private welfare agencies, well-staffed hospitals and clinics, and all the apparatus necessary for preventing the occurrence of such horrible events."

Government and private welfare agencies are deeply concerned by mounting evidence which indicates that willful abuse, neglect, and general mistreatment of infants and small children are not rare occurrences, he said. Most reports are of repeated injuries, the so-called "battered child syndrome," he said. However, he said, depriving a child of adequate nutrition is equally, and probably more, dangerous to the child's welfare and is just as culpable under the law.

Investigation of these five cases disclosed long periods of willful neglect and callous disregard for the child's plight, coupled with unwillingness and failure to seek readily available medical attention, Dr. Adelson said. None of the children had been seen by a doctor or visiting nurse for at least three to four months prior to death, he said.

Three of the five infants were born out of wedlock, came from unkempt homes and had brothers or sisters in fair or poor condition, he said. However, the other two infants came from reasonably clean homes and had healthy, well-fed siblings, he said.

The singling out of a child for neglect in a home where there are several children has its counterpart with some "battered" children, he noted.

Maltreatment by starvation is more subtle and covert than other forms of physical abuse, Dr. Adelson said, and is more difficult to discover, diagnose, and rectify.

"The challenge in the case of the starved child is one of prevention," he said.

"It devolves upon the welfare agencies to search out instances of child neglect long before the situation has deteriorated to an irreparable state. Merely requesting that the mother bring the child to a clinic or hospital is obviously not adequate in some instances. Persistent follow-up and stubborn insistence are required if more such tragedies are to be averted. It is not sufficient to arrest, condemn, and punish the mothers after the child is dead."

In four of the cases indictments were returned against one or both parents, Dr. Adelson said. The mother of the fifth infant is awaiting action by the grand jury, he said.

CC Expert Will Lecture on Math Theory of Games

Dr. Wilson Y. Gateley, Colorado College statistical expert, will lecture on "The Mathematical Theory of Games" at the Nov. 8th meeting of the Air Force Academy Mathematics Subdivision.

Fifteen high school seniors from the Colorado Springs and Academy area will attend the meetings as guests of cadets.

Dr. Gateley's lecture will emphasize the concepts and structure of various types of games rather than the detailed mathematical techniques involved in their solutions.

CLIMATIC CHANGES IN COLORADO

Is Colorado becoming an arid country? This question has been asked by many people in our state and the dry condition which has prevailed for many months has led people that it is becoming so. Most of us who lived in Colorado Springs for at least 20 years remember the big snows we had in the winter and how it rained every afternoon in the summer, now we do well to have one good shower in the summer. Climatic changes have taken place in the world since the earliest dawn and will continue to take place. Examinations of the growth of rings of the big trees in California, lead us to conclude that climates are no more fixed today than in the past. There are evidences from trees that there were climatic changes as early as A. D. 400 when there was a period of rainfall and gradually diminished until 1000 A.D. and other rainfalls reaching a maximum in 50 more years. And so it has continued thru the years.

In some desert countries, which at present are too dry for agriculture, are found ruins which proved that at an earlier period there was agriculture. It is not surprising to us when we read if the facts concerning changes in climate in early days, that at present time different sections of our country seem to be going thru a period of drouth. Climate affects plants and animals as well as soil in regions. Today as we ride over highways or climb over mountains, we see different conditions in soil than we did ten years ago. In some sections great gullies have been made were formerly there was nothing but slight washes. We see where at one time there were great mountain streams, now perfectly dry. Cool, refreshing springs have gone dry and you can scarcely find where they were.

The most noticeable of this condition is found in the upper part of Williams and Waldo canons where at one time, a few years ago, they were beautiful with large mountain streams and waterfalls and springs. And now perfectly dry. The same is true around Cheyenne mountain. Those beautiful wooded nooks where streams played around, are not found anymore. We are thankful for Pikes Peak in our region where we can draw water from, even tho not in large quanities as formerly. If we are able to get a good snow-fall this winter around the big mountain, we will be somewhat protected again for summer. Even if we have a small rainfall. But if our inhabitants increase in leaps and bounds, it would be difficult to predict what the water situation would be like.

The woodlands and meadows are brown and bare and the lower mountains are beginning to show brown and seem to be forsaken as to moisture. The high peaks have a very small blanket which fell over a week ago. We fail to appreciate water, until we have been deprived of it not only for drinking but for our physical use.

Hindus in South Africa Pray For Intercession

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) —South Africa's Hindus are setting aside a day to pray for divine intercession against hardships.

The South African Maha Sabha, parent body of Hindu religious, educational and cultural organizations in this country, canceled the annual celebration of the Deepavali, or Festival of Lights.

The Hindus' protest is directed mainly against the government's Group Areas Act. Under this legislation the country's half million Indians are being pushed out of areas and property which they have long owned, some for generations.

The Group Areas Act carves cities and towns into white, colored (mixed blood) and Indian areas. No race may buy or occupy a house or business in a part of a city reserved for another race.

The Maha Sabha said: "It is a solemn and religious duty to state with emphasis that the mass uprooting of people, no matter what the color may be, is against all moral and religious scruples."

Fate Brings Noted Athletes To Air Defense Command

Former Chicago Cardinal football Coach Phil Handler called him "...the fastest back in the country."

Gene Meeks was a 9.6 second hundred-yard dash man who played football and was a member of the track team at the University of Kentucky. He's presently working at Air Defense Command Personnel Services, located in the Chidlaw Building.

Another man who works side by side with Meeks at Personnel Services was named the Most Valuable Player in the Rose Bowl of New Years Day, 1955. He's Dave Leggett, who also won All America honors while quarterbacking the Ohio State "Buckeyes" to a 10-0 record and a national championship in 1954.

Both men are filling slots at Personnel Services thru very unusual and somewhat disheartening twists of fate.

Meeks' sparkling footbal career began at Lawrenceville High School, Ill., where he smashed about every scoring record on the State's record books. Among his high school gridiron records are: single season scoring record (36 touchdowns), and four season scoring title (81 touchdowns). He also equaled a national high school single game TD mark with nine scores in one game.

As a halfback at Kentucky, he was named to the All-Southeastern Conference team in 1941.

A member of the Army from 1943 to 1945, Meeks was again on the gridiron, this time playing for March AFB, Calif., which at that time was rated seventh in the nation among college and pro teams.

Meeks went into professional football with the Buffalo Bills of the All-American Conference in 1946 and played that season until his knees were broken in a game against the Chicago Bears. He was recalled to active duty in 1950.

Beside scoring 33 touchdowns in 1940 on the Kentucky grid, Meeks managed to star on the school's track team. He pole vaulted 13 feet, 10 inches; broad jumped 24 feet, 6 inches; and ran the low hurdles in a 23.2 second time. To cap it all off, he won the Southeastern Conference track meet in 1941.

Dave Leggett was a football star of a later date. He was first string quarterback with the Buckeyes during their 1953-54 campaign and was named All-American at the close of his final season.

Leggett says that the greatest game of his football career was the 1954-55 Rose Bowl played against the University of Southern California. State won 20 to 7 and they were led by Leggett who connected for seven of eleven passes for one TD and ran for another. He was named as the Most Valuable Player in that game.

The 1954 season saw Leggett complete 47 of 94 passes for 11 touchdowns and approximately 725 yards.

After graduation, Leggett played one season with the Chicago Cardinals as a defensive back and second string quarterback behind Lamar McHan.

He was called to active duty in November, 1955, before completing his first season with the Cards.

Wide Check Proposed For Jobless Claims

DENVER (AP) — Employers, as well as claimants, should be checked for possible fraud involving unemployment compensation funds, an official of the Colorado Labor Council said Friday.

R. C. Anderson, executive vice president of the council, urged Gov. John Love to seek answers to these questions:

How many employers have failed to inform State Unemployment Compensation Fund officials about wages paid and dates of separation of employes?

How many employers have inadequate payroll records, making it impossible to be certain that all wages are reported?

How many claimants have been denied benefits because their employers made fraudulent statements?

Anderson said he believed the problem of alleged fraud is not one-sided.

The unemployment fund is being investigated as a result of State Auditor John Proctor's report that $11.5 million might have been lost to the fund through fraud in the last six years.

The government is spending about $156 million for oceanographic research this fiscal year.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

The 'Dumb Public'

How capable is man to make his own decisions and to be responsible for his own actions?

If you examine recent actions by government as well as all the prior actions government has taken to hem us in with regulations, restraints, embargoes, ukases and decrees, you will fairly well conclude that there is a serious doubt in somebody's mind in Washington and in lesser headquarters of government, as to our capabilities to come in out of the rain.

Ask a politician. He will tell you that people are pretty "dumb," in general. They just don't seem to understand. Were it not for the benign and generous actions of the government, men would be falling down all over the place.

But, we will be told, we are fortunate in living in a nation where the government, with its virtual omnipotence, steps in and picks us up, brushes us off, gives us a pat on the head, and helps us on with our affairs, which, save for this, we would manage abominably. This is the attitude of royalty; of the autocrat, of the "nobleman" who presumes that he knows what is best for everyone.

If man is so incapable of making his own way as the politician will suggest, how does it happen that at election time we hear this same politician telling everyone how glad he is to turn over to these same "dumb" people the task of putting him back in office? Says the politician:

"I am glad to rely on the wisdom of the American people, who will go to the polls in November (or any other time) to exercise their right and to return me to office."

Suddenly, the "dumb public" is endowed with wisdom beyond mortal understanding. Each is fully capable of selecting the "best" man to run his affairs for him, but utterly incompetent to run his own affairs.

Do you detect an area of contradiction?

What does the "dumb public" do in those areas where the politician has not totally hamstrung him? Why, he seems to have enough sense to get out and earn money. With this money he pays all his own costs, tho with increasing difficulty. Additionally, he makes enough so that the politican can bleed him financially of just about every dime he might save or invest in some worthwhile project over and above the most minimal requirements.

So it turns out that the "dumb public" manages its own affairs so well, in fact, that it not only pays its own way but puts up the money to pay the politician's way. Yet, the attitude of the politician in the face of this practical demonstration is as before.

Now, the politician cannot have it both ways. If man is wise enough to earn his own way and to manage his own affairs, then he is wise enough not to have to employ the politician to restrain him, to regulate him, to curtail his actions, and to pick him up and dust him off if an error occurs.

On the other hand, if the "dumb public" is so stupid that it cannot manage to run its own businesses, then it must follow that it is not smart enough to vote for the "best" man and to assist in selecting someone to intervene in virtually all things.

We would like to suggest that a shade more consistency here would be beneficial. If men are smart enough to vote wisely, they are smart enough not to need an overseer. If they are too "dumb" to get along without the overseer, then they are too "dumb" to select the overseer.

Someway, we doubt very much if the public is as "dumb" as the politician believes. Rather, the public is forebearing, gentle and will put up with a great deal.

But there comes a time when the good sense of most of us will be employed. When that happens, we rather suspect that the politician who treats us as tho we didn't know which end is up, may find out that thumbs have been turned down.

Difference

There is a difference between favoring limiting government and favoring limited government.

How Free Are You?

We agree with the scholar who said that freedom is indivisible. If a man's freedom is curtailed in any particular, he cannot be free.

But it is also true that a man's freedom manifests in many areas. It manifests in the reaches of his mind when he is free to think and to speak what he thinks without fear of retaliation against him.

Essentially, his freedom to think and to choose, within his own mind, is virtually beyond invasion. Still, if a man finds that the areas of his inquiry are curtailed by censorship, by distortion of news, by management of the sources of his information; if he is confronted with book burning, with prohibitions concerning what he may or may not believe, then, tho he is still free to believe (secretly) what he will, his area of knowledge and inquiry has been curtailed.

Yet, while a man may be free to think and reason as he will, the fact is that if he is physically restrained from carrying out his choices, certainly he is not free. If he is not free to attend the church of his choice, he is not free. If he is not free to stay away from church if he chooses, then he is not free. If he chooses to work but is restrained from working, not by his own ineptitude nor by the wish of his would-be employer, but by the force and violence which rests in the hands of organizations of violence, such as labor unions, then he is not free.

One problem here is to measure the degree of freedom or non-fredom that may confront an individual from time to time. We know of no better way to measure a man's freedom than by measuring his degree of economic freedom.

All of us are engaged in economic pursuits. Whoever we are or however we are endowed, each of us has certain energies, talents, funds or resources which in theory, we command and which we may dispose of as we will. To the degree that our ablility to dispose of what we have as we will is curtailed, to that degree we are curtailed.

If a man has $100 and is beset by a bandit who takes $50, then the loss of his freedom to dispose of that $100 is 50 per cent. If the bandit takes $75, then the man has lost 75 per cent of his ability to be free with what is his. If the bandit takes the entire sum, then, insofar as that sum is concerned, the man has lost all his freedom. In this respect freedom and its loss can be measured.

Thus, if a man goes to work for an employer who promises to pay him $75 per week, the worker can reasonable anticipate receiving $75 in exchange for his skills, talents or labor. If, hoewver, he finds at the end of a week that he only gets $60, it follows that he has lost his freedom to the extent of $15. Someone else has appropriated his earnings to that degree and will spend those earnings, not as the earner but as the appropriator decides.

This is our situation in respect to all taxes, of which the income tax is surely the most pernicious.

By now we should know that for a man to be a bandit he does not have to wear a bandage over the lower part of his face. When he appears, even tho he be nattily dressed, carries a brief case, and smiles with urbanity, if he has the power to take your money and to spend it as he sees fit, then he is acting as a bandit. And your freedom is removed in precisely the extent and amount that he takes from you by force.

We are not speaking of contracts which you may have entered voluntarily. If you contract in advance to expend a part of your earnings in one or another avenue, the fact that this money is taken from you rather than the more polite method of letting you make the decision yourself, is a matter of manners and not of freedom.

We contend that each person should be and is fully responsible for his own contractual obligations. But when others make obligations for him and then force him to pay for them, this is a clear loss of his freedom. It can be measured.

How free are you?

Co-Action Wtih Reds In Education

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy is seriously considering proposing a new joint undertaking with Russia.

Unfazed by Premier Khrushchev's brush-off of a cooperative moon venture, the President is deliberating still another joint effort — this time in the field of education.

Under this yet-to-be disclosed plan, "joint studies of the education processes in the two countries (would be undertaken)."

As expounded in a position paper prepared for the President by key foreign policy and disarmament advisers, the basic aim of this joint educational plan is to "improve the environment for the control of crises and conflict between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R."

Also under contemplation is a project for "expanding interaction with the Soviet people in areas such as art, games and tourism."

This concept is still in the formative stage. It has been discussed at several White House conferences, but only in general terms. No details have been submitted or acted on.

But consideration of the joint educational idea is far advanced — to the point where decision has been made that the President launch it in a major speech. The time and place are still undecided, but the address will most likely be forthcoming some time in the next several months.

THE THINKING BEHIND IT

As spelled out in the position paper, the joint U.S.-Soviet educational studies initially would be in such fields an anthropology, psychiatry, social psychology and comparative historical and political research.

Later, if these cooperative ventures proved fruitful, other and broader studies would be undertaken.

The highly significant position paper, titled "Common Action for the Control of Conflict," presents at some length the reasoning behind this unprecedented project. Revealing highlights are as follows:

"The U.S., because it holds the keys to man's freedom, must take the initiative in devising the programs needed to begin to span the divided world. The U.S. can undertake such programs with prospects of success because of its present resource superiority. The primary purpose of these joint ventures is to improve the environment for the control of crises and conflict between the U.S. and U.S.S.R.

"Joint studies of the educational process in the two countries should be attempted.

"Persuasion had best begin with the identification and understanding of areas of similarity between the U.S. and U.S.S.R. The quest for similarity ought to be pursued across the whole of society, not as an end in itself but as a moral and psychological preparation for discussing differences and how they may be resolved.

"At first, joint studies should be undertaken in specific fields of education development and research. Later, broader studies of the entire approach to education and development should be tried.

"Education in a modern society is an amalgam of its social history which links the present with the past, of its art which provides a visition of its future, and of the state of its technology whose needs must be met if its progress is to continue.

"It is of utmost importance for the future that the way in which the needs of the individual and the society are conceived and the manner in which their reconciliation is being attempted by means of education should be thoroly understood and compared across national boundaries. This is of particular significance for two great powers such as the U.S. and the Soviet Union at the present stage of world history.

"The suggestions of Sir Julian Huxley, for example, that joint discussions be held on the relationship of education to human ecology, to society, and to world development, provide the seed for the beginning of a dialogue which would be of immense importance in mitigating conflict over the longer run."

FEDERAL GRANTS

Speaker John McCormick, D-Mass., is quietly pressing a compromise that may clear the way for enactment of the $1.9 billion measure for a five-year program of federal grants and loans for the construction of college buildings.

The legislation has been stalled for weeks in a deadlock between the Senate and House over explosive provisions voted by each chamber.

Under McCormack's backstage plan, they would give ground as follows:

The House would agree to limit federal aid for private colleges to construction of science, social science, language and engineering buildings. The Senate, in turn, would drop its notly controversial amendment under which any taxpayer could institute court action against government aid to private schools.

This provision, opposed by the administration, was written into the bill by a 45 to 33 vote with 22 senators abstaining. The amendment was sponsored by Senator Sam Ervin, D-N.C.

Among those voting for it was Senator "Ted" Kennedy, brother of the President.

Initial discussions indicate there is a good chance McCormack's compromise may be adopted. Leaders of both sides appear favorable. However, other promising overtures have fallen thru, so only time will tell how McCormack's fares.

If it is accepted, and the $1.9 billion measure is finally approved by Congress, that would greatly improve the chances of three other long-pending educational aid bills — for vocational schools, areas with large numbers of federal employes, and loans to college students under the National Defense Education Act.

But the outlook is still gloomy for another long-stymied educational measure — federal aid for the construction of grade and high schools and teachers' salaries. There is no hope for that this year as it has been shelved by congressional leaders. They have washed their hands of it, and so has the the White House — altho neither is saying so publicly.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 363: "Can one explain what he does not understand? If not, is that not the cause of certified educators refusing even to attempt to answer questions rationally about means used in education?"

Answer: We cannot think how a man can explain what he does not understand.

It would seem rational that anyone who has any convictions about what he is doing, such as the important field of education, would be glad to attempt to answer any questions about the means he is using. If he is really using the right means and being successful, and the best way to judge anything is by its fruits, one would think that he would be glad to answer questions.

However, it is a little difficult to see how anyone who believes in freedom, where each man has 100 per cent control of his property as Joseph Galambos contends freedom is, could rationally explain how he could get the youth of the land to believe in self-responsibility, and self-reliance, when the teachers, by example, are advocating the use of initiated force to make the youth of the land attend schools acceptable to the agents of the voting majority and also make those who do not want to pay for it, pay the cost anyway.

It is pretty hard to explain how a dictator who uses force that always gets control of the youth of the land can really teach the youth of the land to believe in self-reliance and independence, that all men are equal before the law as they are before God, and that rights are common and belong equally to every individual.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all manking on this earth.

WHAT WOULD IT PROFIT?

COUNTY BUILDINGS

To the Editor:

The so-called meeting the other day meant nothing. The three dictators apparently are bent on putting over their throw-away program. Did anyone hear them suggest to sell the three high-priced cars that they had the gall to buy to sport around with taxpayers' money? To frighten the people they say it would cost about a half million to alter the court house when all that is necessary is to change the names on the doors. But politicians want to impress the people that they are some kind of lords and must have the latest luxury and that the taxpayer should carry them around on a silver platter. They do not realize they are only the taxpayers' hired men.

How they could have the gall to bring up such a crazy idea of building two more white elephants I cannot understand when we have adequate facilities. The jail has had less escapes than the average and the court house has five court rooms and four rooms suitable for four more. Changing the name of a court to replace the justice courts will not require any more room. Smith's frightening figures are ridiculous. The court house is wired for electricity—and wire does not wear out—and in much better condition than the white elephant that they built without the taxpayers' permission as it is already crumbling.

The voters were misled by pressure groups and I am sure they will repeal Amendment No. 1 at the next election if given the opportunity as they no doubt realize by now it was a mistake. The voters were led to believe that changing the name of a court would be an improvement but so far this has not been true. If the dictators can put over their throw-away program before next election the taxpayers' will have two empty white elephants by which to remember the dictators. There are buildings like the court house in foreign countries that are a thousand years old and in as good condition as the day they were built and if the dictators do not get the crazy idea of ruining it there will still be a good building a thousand years from now.

RESPONSIBILITY

To the Editor:

A contractor in Denver said, "I have been looking for a young man for over a year, to take some of the responsibility I have and go ahead with my business."

If it were possible to find how many men and women were looking for the same it would be shocking. These things are not broadcast, they come out from person to person, on a person to person, personal basis.

Denver is quite a large town to pick from; the same would be true anywhere. This person has not found the responsible young man yet, for sure.

In a few more years this word responsible will, no doubt, disappear from our vocabulary. In practical every-day life it is already buried, by the large majority. It isn't a majority word. It's an individual matter. No one can give it to you; no one can take it away. It's practically invisible, something that originates in our innermost being.

If we look at what it isn't, perhaps we may get a glimpse of what it is. It is not education. If that were it, someone would start "a Responsibility School," paid for by the parties, or party, seeking responsibility, not with money taken from someone else.

Responsibility is not found in so-called public education, too often called free education. It isn't found in an alcohol bottle, sleeping pills, or a shot in the arm, tho it may be labeled "social."

It isn't the know-it-all attitude. Ask any man in any profession, regardless of the time he has spent in that one field, if he knows everything about it. See what his answer is.

The first nickel, dime or penny taken that is not earned by me, I lose my responsibility of honesty. Getting paid for more than we do adds up to the same thing.

I know this hits public schools, unions, and individuals. This letter isn't written to win friends. Truth doesn't win the mob, nor do I expect to influence many. I'm only getting something off my chest. Thanks to this paper for the opportunity.

Sometimes I wonder if teenagers think we somehow skipped these years. Some parents surely did from what we see every day. The juvenile age has struck the majority of our 180,000,000 people from six to 106 years of age. So "youngin," you have plenty of company; you shouldn't feel lonely or alone.

To make things more complicated, these over-grown, over-age juvenile delinquents have infiltrated every phase of society; government schools, pulpits and businesses.

Responsibility cannot be taught by starting out sucking on a socialized bottle at the age of six. (That old saw has lost its tune; security from cradle to grave. Now it is from conception to eternity — a good campaign slogan. Some politician will grab this and win an election, look what I have done now.) This nursing babe, from the first goo to the last breath, is gorged with (forced fed) socialized food, drink, schooling, subsidies, commodities, welfare checks, soil bank checks, social security, pensions, and medicine. There is no end. Name it and the government has it for you.

Where did the government get it? From someone who earned it. They collect it thru a thing called tax.

Too many are saying, "I helped pay for this, so I'm just collecting what I have invested." If that be the case, why not keep what we put in and run our own business? It looks to me like anyone with sense enough to earn a dollar should have enough gumption to spend it. The trouble is we have more spenders than earners.

Back to the original thought, there is no limit to where that responsible young person could and would go. Just think it over. It doesn't take an exceptionally high IQ or too many letters before or after your name. A right good place to start could be if a man liked wisdom, let him ask God, who is the author of wisdom. Remember, He knows how you will use this wisdom so be careful here. It's very easy to ask amiss.

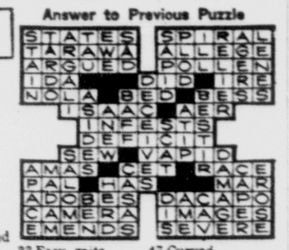
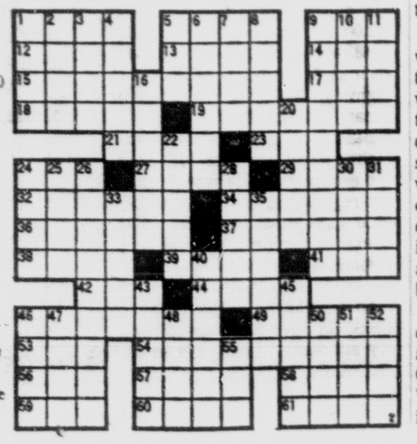
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Equality

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

I just received word of a dastardly plot and want to issue a loud and succinct warning. LADIES, DON'T LET THEM MAKE YOU EQUAL!

In less than four weeks I've listened to at least a half dozen radio conversations about equality for women and it worries me because a couple of the conversationalists were females who must have been sold a phony bill of goods. In this day and age, the expression equality means bringing those at the top down to the level of the lowliest, and I don't want to see that happen to ladies.

From my point of view, it's a dirty plot. I've know a few husbands who constantly try to browbeat their wives and deprecate the importance and charm of females, generally. Others refer to "feminine logic" as if females combine to use a standard brand of incomprehensible reasoning. I find it impossible to buy any of that kind of hogwash and make no apology for opinions which are based on a good many years of experience.

What about equal pay? One of the best secretaries I ever knew was also extremely attractive. She became the office manager of a large wholesale concern and probably received a salary of about 20 percent less than a male office manager. She lived about 25 miles away from her work and talked a great deal about the time she spent on a street car. The truth of the matter was that she didn't even know what street car to take to get to her home because at least a half dozen males were anxious to take her home every night and pick her up every morning.

On her birthdays the truck drivers bid for the honor because a truck was needed to take home her presents. Each Christmas the various office supply salesmen and sales managers outdid themselves. She did buy a lot of supplies and equipment but the presents she received might give you the idea that she also paid the bills. At one time she owned three personal and very high-priced typewriters with her name specially engraved on each.

Quite seriously the young lady always brought her lunch to work, as if she couldn't afford to have lunch in a restaurant. She didn't have a thermos bottle and loved hot coffee, so every day she walked a hundred feet to the corner eatery to buy coffee before she ate her lunch. Several of the male employees of the company and a few male employees of other concerns continually worried for fear the attractive office manager might not have a hot lunch and certainly her company at luncheon was well worth the price, just as a matter of status. Invariably, the office cat ate the lunch she brought from home. Usually it was just ground-up meat, which seemed a bit unusual to me after I became disillusioned.

I knew another secretary who married her wealthy boss and has lived happily ever since without worrying about equality. Miss B was also an office manager and she not only married the boss of another company but she now runs the business, her house and family and the boss, efficiently.

At about the age of 5, I learned to jump off my fat and offer my resting place to any female who entered a street car, bus or train when no seats were available. No one taught me about equality and it was only a few years later when I learned to be careful with my language when ladies were present. The only time in my life my dad ever thought I looked tired and should sit quietly was when a particulary attractive young lady gave him an opportunity to show his gallantry in a crowded street car. He was so concerned about my weariness as to dump a dozen packages on my lap.

My wife is an excellent cook and I am not. She can straighten up our apartment and make things neat and tidy in less time than it would take me to find the dust mop or vacuum cleaner. She also has other attributes which no male could equal and I like things that way.

Yep, I know a couple of males who work pretty hard at trying to bring their wives down to their own level, unsuccessfully. Sure, the wives do not complain because their husbands climb into the car and holler, "Come on, get in, you're not crippled," but those husbands are working on borrowed time and may discover they are expendable, one of these days. In the meantime — ladies, no equality, please. Stay as sweet and bright as you are!

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

The American Way

In Hollywood

By WILLIS E. STONE

The Movie Museum, dedicated in Hollywood on October 20, 1963, will house the record of achievements of this glamorous industry. Dedication speeches pledged the revitalization of the movie business.

It will, however, take more than passionate resolve to restore Hollywood's one time greatness. It will take OPPORTUNITY — freedom of action and the right to self determination — to fulfill the pledge.

This freedom of action, the opportunity to do and prosper, has been politically removed from the movie industry and from others. Before these industries can be restored to the glory they achieved thru the American concept of free opportunity for all, the principle of liberty must be restored. Without it there can be no glory, no greatness, no growth — only the museum memories of what once was.

CAUSE

But how did our concept of opportunity vanish? Was it not when politicians voted themselves the power to dip into the pay envelope of all of us, in any degree whatever, as they themselves might determine? This is the historic method of destroying initiative. It has been properly said that this "power to tax is the power to destroy." The individual income tax has this power.

To further the decline of privately financed picture production, the federal bureaucrats invaded the business and became the world's greatest movie producer. Why should not this be so? It was our tax dollars which were used for capital and government agencies are not required to contend with such cost items as interest, rents or taxes at any level, or with losses paid by our tax dollars.

Emphasizing the political domination of the film industry, a federal agency seized the General Analine Co. in World War II, and refused to return it to its rightful owners for 20 years. This political agency thus became a principal producer of raw film stock, and as such held dominant control of picture production.

EFFECT

Such fantastic controls and penalties upon the movie industry caused producers to look elsewhere for opporunity, and they found foreign governments, made fat with American "foreign aid" dollars, most anxious to transport move production and jobs from the United States to their own lands.

To assist the flight of American industry to other lands, our tax dollars were again employed by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) to help induce American producers, including movie producers, to move to foreign fields. Various political pressures, subsidies, guarantees and immunities were offered.

As a result more than half of our motion pictures are being produced in foreign countries—and this includes all the big ones. The blight which has descended upon Hollywood, as it has upon other industrial centers, provided the incentive for the impassioned pleas to restore the productivity of Hollywood.

As prologue to the dedication of the Movie Museum, a group called "government trade and labor experts" advanced the idea that the "elimination of foreign film subsidies" might provide a "partial cure for Hollywood's problems."

SOLUTION

Actually, such an approach does not constitute a cure. It is but a sop to an industry dying of political strangulation. The only possible way to rejuvenate the American movie industry, or any other industry, is to restore its freedom of action — its opportunities.

To restore these virtues to industry and to people, they must be retrieved from government. This is the purpose of the Liberty Amendment, pending in Congress as H. J. Res. 23 and already approved by six states. For information regarding this constitutional protection for incentive and progress write to the Liberty Amendment Committee, 6413 Franklin Ave., Los Angeles 28, California.

HISTORY ON THE HEARTH — Lt. Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Harry Smith display some of the 5,000 year old artifacts they unearthed on archeological expeditions to Iran. Local Couple Discover Ancient Iranian Cemetery

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Some couples raise roses as a hobby; others collect salt shakers or stamps or play bridge.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harry (Pete) Smith prefer to dig in dirt and sand.

For as some wise man once observed, "The earth holds many mysteries" and the Smiths can't resist the urge to try to solve some of them. And they have.

There was the time they unearthed a skeleton — a skeleton of a child who had lived and died some 2,500 years before Christ.

And the time they found stacks of ancient ammunition—perfectly smooth, rounded stones of varying sizes stored for use with slingshots against invading armies.

And the time they discovered that Man had invented the straw 3,500 years before Christ, and that Man had manufactured a cup 4,500 years ago, so perfect in design and workmanship that it could pass today for a modern product.

The Smiths are avid amateur archeologists and most of their discoveries were made in the deserts of Iran where Col. Smith, now retired, was stationed from 1954 to 1957.

"I guess you could say I became interested in archeology when I was a youngster," Smith says in an easy, quiet voice. "I used to pick up arrowheads and alike then."

Mrs. Smith admits her interest began "when I married Pete."

As a team, the pair unearthed two small villages in a section of Iran that other archeologists had ignored as being too remote for a village.

"The natives in the area knew we were looking for a site to do some digging," Smith said. "There was a flash flood one day and a skeleton of a man was washed out of the sand. A farmer told us about it."

Smith and his wife, June, hurried to the site. The colonel was able to pick out small mounds which he believed to be graves. He began walking excitedly among the mounds pointing them out to his wife who stood on a small rise.

"It was June who noticed I was walking on a wall," Smith said.

The wall surrounded a cemetery and a city — a city that was known as Chan-Dar.

"It was not the home of the fabulously wealthy, but rather the home of a middle class people who were soldiers, farmers, traders, potters and smiths," Smith said.

This the couple learned from the artifacts they dug up in the months they spent at the site and another nearby — Fashan. Both are located west of Tehran.

What the Smiths had actually discovered that first day was a cemetery and a cemetery to an archeologist — amateur or professional — is a bonanza.

It was the custom in those days to bury personal objects and objects of every day use with the dead.

Some of these objects — pottery, weapons, jewelry, etc. — are on display at the Smiths' home at 838 Manitou Blvd.

The objects found at Fashan and Chan-Dar, range in age from 4,000 to 1,500 B.C., Smith said. He explained that he and his wife had the rights to the two sites under agreement with the Iranian government.

"The government takes its choice of the first 10 objects unearthed," Smith explained. "After that we split 50-50."

"The people who lived in these areas didn't seem to possess much wealth as it is usually reckoned — the only gold the Smiths display is a gold-covered pin.

But the wealth to an archeologist cannot be estimated.

Included among the Smiths' collection are beautifully designed and crafted lamps, jugs, cups and vases; and a variety of weapons.

The weapons help show the progress of the economy of the people as well as their profession: they range from crudely-wrought bronze arrowheads evidently manufactured by hand, to well-designed arrowheads that could only have been cast from molds.

The knives are the same: crude at first, then done more expertly and with more pride in the workmanship.

The spearheads and endtips provide evidence to show that the warlike people were mounted. The spearheads are long and narrow and the tips are hooked and wicked looking.

"That's so if they missed their target with the spear as they passed, they could hook them with the tip on the end," Smith explained.

Other artifacts show that these were an inventive people. There is a cup with a built-in straw; a jug with a very narrow neck that was filled by submerging it in the desired liquid. Built into the jug is a tube which passes from the center of the bottom thru the jug and into the handle to provide an air-hole and to permit the liquid to flow out freely.

Col. and Mrs. Smith brought more than 400 of the ancient artifacts back to the United States with them when they were assigned to Ft. Carson in 1957.

The Smiths spent three years here and then were transferred to Germany.

Since leaving the Army, Col. Smith has been going to Colorado College where he is working for his master's degree in history.

His spare time is spent now with his wife on remodeling their home — "June designed it and we did the work ourselves."

The couple have set up two display cases in the new portion of their home in which they display some of their discoveries — "We gave the Iranian government more than we kept."

Surprisingly, the pottery isn't as fragile as it appears or as one might think it should be because of the age.

"In fact," Mrs. Smith said, "the natives dig it up and still use it today. They know where a great many buried villages are. They call them treasure hills."

Asked what their future plans were, Col. Smith commented:

"We hope to do some digging in America. But since Iran, the only digging I've done is for my basement."

Another trip to Iran?

"I don't know," Mrs. Smith said. "I do know that if we hadn't seen Colorado, we would probably have retired in Iran."

Who were the people that the Smiths discovered:

"All we can say is that they were Iranians living in Chan-Dar and Fashan," Smith said.

HIS OWN MUSEUM — Lt. Col. (ret.) Harry Smith looks over some of the artifacts he and his wife unearthed in Iran which the couple display in their home here. Col. Smith said that he and his wife plan to eventually donate the valuable articles to a museum.

Manitou High School News

By PAUL SWANK

Last Tuesday, the Tuberculosis Association hosted a lecture on tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases. Journalism classes from all schools around the area were invited to attend. The lecture was held in the auditorium of St. Mary's High School and the speakers were Dr. M. Wiggins and Jack Finlayson. Dr. Wiggins spoke on various respiratory diseases as bronchitus and emphyzema. Finlayson spoke on the method of radio and television reporting.

It was also announced that the Tuberculosis Association would again sponsor a school reporter's contest. Each school represented at the lecture is supposed to write a news story or feature on either TB, other respiratory diseases, or health careers. The stories are submitted to the TB association and the best three are entered in the state contest. Last year Manitou's school paper, the Prospector, was one of the top three. This year the journalism class plans to do it again.

Last week was the last week that students had to purchase subscriptions for the Mustang, the school's yearbook. The subscriptions have been on sale in the hall during lunch but Friday was the last day. This week the advertising staff is soliciting ads.

Rehearsals for the Junior class play, "The Stuck Pot," have started. The first rehearsal on stage took place last Monday and consisted mostly of placing the cast on stage during certain scenes.

Senior English classes at Manitou this year are continuing with the English 2600 and 3200 series. Both books deal with fundamentals in English grammar.

SUPERSTITION

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Johns Hopkins Hospital recently added four new operating suites to its existing 12. But there isn't a suite number 13.

A hospital spokesman said a patient is anxiety-ridden enough by thoughts of undergoing surgery and the knowledge that he's scheduled for a suite numbered 13 might produce unnecessary fears — if he's already superstitious.

Wool Industry May Lose More Ground

WASHINGTON (AP) The Agriculture Department expects the domestic wool industry to lose a little more economic ground next year.

In an outlook report for 1964, the department said:

"In the United States, the outlook for the wool industry in 1964 is for a further decline in the number of sheep and less wool production, moderately lower mill consumption of carpet and apparel wool, and a continued increase in imports of apparel wool textile products."

Motor Fuel Use Up 3.7% In Colorado

Motor-fuel consumption in Colorado this year is expected to exceed 828,713,000 gallons an increase of 3.7 per cent over 1962, Federal Highway Administrator Rex M. Whitton said. He based his prediction on estimates prepared by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

About 735,897,000 gallons of motor-fuel are expected to be consumed in Colorado highway use during 1963, including 688,212,000 gallons of gasoline and 47,685,000 gallons of special fuel such as diesel and butane. Non-highway use of motor fuel is estimated at 92,816,000 gallons.

Based on the estimate of highway use of motor fuel and the estimate of 1963 motor-vehicle registrations, average Colorado fuel consumption for 1963 is expected to be 699 gallons per vehicle.

An estimated 17 million Americans, an average of one of every six adults, owned shares of stock last year.

NEW CHEVELLE!
BY CHEVROLET

The kind of handling ease you'd expect in a smaller car. Come on down and drive it.

The kind of comfort you'd expect in a large interior. Come on down and sit in it.

Only a car that looks as good as this could come between Chevrolet and Chevy II. Come on down and stare at it.

New Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe

Now—Chevy spirit in a new kind of car!

We built this one to do a lot more than just stand around looking beautiful. Held its weight down in the 3,000-pound range. Then built four lusty engines for it—two sixes and two V8's—with output all the way up to 220 horses*!

And if that combination of modest weight and potent power gives you the idea that this is one frisky car indeed, you've got the right idea.

You've also got a roomy car with a generous amount of space for legs, hips, shoulders, hats and luggage. Yet its 115-inch wheelbase keeps it highly maneuverable in traffic and very easy to park.

With its Full Coil suspension, it's got a ride that reminds you of the Jet-smooth kind the way it muffles noise and cushions bumps.

And the fine hand of Body by Fisher craftsmen shows up beneath this one's suave good looks, too. Just listen to the solid thunk of a door closing or look at the neat seams and smooth metalwork. You'll see what we mean.

Sound good so far? There's more. Like the fact that Chevelle comes in three series with eleven models—convertibles, sport coupes, sedans, wagons, even Super Sport models with front bucket seats. Like the fact that (and see if this doesn't strike you as one of the nicest surprises of all) the new Chevelle comes at an easy-to-take price!

Like to hear more? The listening's wonderful at your Chevrolet dealer's—and so's the driving.

HOMEWARD BOUND—Capt. German Captain Completes AF Academy Tour

The first member of the German Air Force assigned to the Air Force Academy under the foreign exchange officer program will end his tour in November.

Capt. Dr. Horst Judel, assistant professor of German actually claims two firsts. In addition to being the first German Air Force officer to serve at the Academy, Capt. Judel was also the first foreign officer assigned to the Foreign Language Department.

The Captain arrived May 26, 1960, and will complete his tour Nov. 26.

During his 3½ years here, Capt. Judel taught both a basic course in German and a special enrichment course which included the history, culture, and geography of Germany. He also held discussions in the Political Science Department about the German government and politics, and spoke often to cadets on the German Air Force and allied topics.

A rated pilot with more than 1,700 hours in the air — including missions over the Russian front in World War II — Capt. Judel is now looking forward to returning to the cockpit of a jet. His new assignment in Germany will take him to familiar ground, an Air Force squadron at Memmingen, about 60 miles west of Munich, the unit with which he served prior to coming to the Academy.

At Memmingen, Capt. Judel will fly F84F's but he's looking forward with great enthusiasm to returning to the U. S. and transition training for F-104's next year. He's also planning to revisit the Academy at that time.

Capt. Judel will be replaced by another fighter pilot, Capt. Hermann Hagena.

Flying has long been an important part of Capt. Judel's life. He became a member of the Luftwaffe in 1943 and flew 16 different types of aircraft including the ME-109 and Focke-Wolfe 190.

After leaving the service in 1945, Capt. Judel attended school. He earned both a master's and PhD in economics from the University of Giessen.

The captain worked as assistant director of a dairy co-op at Duisburg in the Ruhr before reentering the Air Force in 1956. He flew T33's and French twin-engined jets as an instructor pilot.

NEW U2 CLAIM

TOKYO (UPI) — Red China claimed it brought down an American-made U2 aircraft belonging to Nationalist China on an overflight of East China Friday.

The New China News agency announced the plane was shot down in a brief Peking dispatch monitored in Tokyo.

Widow Dies in Car in Which She Lived

COLUMBUS (UPI) — An elderly widow who lived in an antique car for the past 10 years was burned to death last night when fire swept the car, parked in a garage next to her home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jones Throckmorton, 70, was found on the back seat of the 1934 Graham, her body apparently in a sleeping position. On the floor in the back of the car was an electric hot plate, believed to have caused the blaze.

Neighbors said Mrs. Throckmorton, widow of a former Columbus Municipal Court judge, had slept in the car even during the coldest weather for at least 10 years and perhaps much longer. It was believed she may have begun using the car as a home when her husband died 25 years ago.

Her brother, Dr. Morton Jones, a dentist, said his sister owned half of the house but refused to enter at night. During the day, he said, she would come into the house, where she kept her clothing and other personal effects.

The car was littered with jars and bags containing food and drinking water. Soap flakes, salt, shoes and old newspapers filled the front seat. All four tires were flat, and the car had 1949 license plates.

GRADUATES — Lance Corp. Gary M. Reyner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Reyner, 2531 E. Caramillo St., recently graduated from the Marine Security Guard School at Arlington, Va. He has been assigned to the American Embassy in Tunis, Tunisa in North Africa. Reyner is a 1961 graduate of Wasson High School.

Baylor Votes In Favor of Desegregation

WACO, Tex. (UPI) — Baylor University, the world's largest Baptist school, voted Friday to desegregate. It was not announced when Negroes will be permitted to attend classes.

The vote of the Baylor University trustees was not unanimous.

A spokesman said the decision was reached "by amicable and Democratic procedure."

Baylor will integrate under Abner V. McCall, "by practical means designed to minimum disruption of the educational program of the university," a spokesman said.

Hilton E. Howell, chairman of the trustees, said consideration of integration was begun "with prayer for divine guidance."

McCall said he expected "complete cooperation of the students and faculty in implementing integration.

Baylor was founded in 1845 and chartered by the Republic of Texas and is the state's oldest institution of higher learning which has remained in operation since its founding.

Nation Business Scene Profits Shows Rosy Hue

By ROGER LANE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A tide of rosy third-quarter corporate profit reports rolled across the nation's business scene during the week.

By one reckoning, earnings of more than 500 large corporations ran 15 per cent ahead of the 1962 September quarter, and stamped 1963 as a record high year — barring a cataclysmic reversal in the final two months.

They were estimated at an annual rate of about $26.5 billion in the July-September period, well above the existing full-year record of $24.6 set in 1962.

Major contributions to the uptrend came from the steel industry, a weak sister last year, and from the automobile, airlines, chemical, electric-electronics groups, and several others.

Giant General Motors Corp., continuing to set a blazing pace, posted an historic earnings high for the first nine months, with profits topping $1 billion. Ford Motor Co. faltered a bit, however.

The earnings surge had many ramifications, including important ones in Washington, where tax cut and budget struggles inched along.

Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon told the House Ways and Means Committee that healthy business profits helped swell federal tax collections and shrink budgetary deficit prospects.

Dillon said the present outlook is for a $9-billion deficit for the fiscal year ending next June 30, rather than the $11.9-billion deficit anticipated earlier. Tax revenues appear likely to be $1.9 billion higher than last January's estimate, he said.

A note of dissent to widespread optimism over business prospects ahead was struck by department and variety store proprietors. Polled by a trade group, less than one-half looked for better Christmas season sales this year than last.

The pessimists blamed this year's five fewer shopping days between Thanksgiving and Christmas, and an unseasonably warm autumn.

Assembly lines in the booming auto industry kept running lickety-split. In the busiest week since mid-1955, nearly 184,000 cars were produced.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington reported the cost-of-living index held steady in September for a second straight month, and said it probably would do so again in October.

Responding partly to lush profit reports, the stock market bounded to another all time high at the start of the week in heavy trading before falling back a bit under profit-taking pressures.

Sales on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 28,722,840, down slightly from the previous week's volume of 30,346,801. Bond sales, however, were up. Volume for the week was $24,624,000 par value as compared with the previous week's total of $21,801,000.

Kentucky Capital Was Captured in Dispute

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Frankfort was the only state capital of a nonseceding state to be captured by Confederate forces during the Civil War.

The seizure by Gen. Kirby Smith on Sept. 3, 1862, marked the high point of the Southern effort to win Kentucky. The Confederates held the city until Oct. 4.

Union forces began their bombardment just as Richard Hawes was being installed as Confederate governor of Kentucky.

Boy Becomes Slave of Soft Drink Machine

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — John Martin, 12, was the slave of a soft drink machine for nearly an hour.

He said he put a dime in the machine at an automatic laundry but it didn't give him a bottled drink. He reached in, groping for the bottle—and his hand became wedged.

Patrolman W. H. Pringle failed to pry young Martin loose and called a man from the soft drink company.

When he arrived, it turned out he didn't have a key for the machine.

The men finally broke open the machine to free the boy.

It took William Henry Harrison 1 hour 45 minutes to read his 3,578-word inaugural address, the longest in history.

Southern Gentleman Reported Not Myth

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Southern gentleman, says etiquette expert Amy Vanderbilt, is no myth. And neither is his ever-charmin' belle.

"People in the South are definitely more mannerly, probably because they live more leisurely lives," said Miss Vanderbilt, here on a Southern lecture tour.

As for the country in general, Miss Vanderbilt believes it is more conscious of proper behavior than ever before.

"I believe it's self - defense for the permissiveness brought about by the last war," she says.

Stock Market Takes Loss; First in Three Weeks

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Stock Market this week took its first clear-cut loss in three weeks, but it was a small one.

In the preceding week the averages advanced even though considerably more stocks declined than advanced. This week both the averages and the figures on gains and losses were in gear.

The contradiction between what the averages were doing and what most listed stocks were doing continued for the first couple of days this week. The Dow Jones Industrial Average touched record highs Monday and Tuesday, establishing its peak of 760.50 at the Tuesday close. On both these sessions considerably more stocks declined than advanced.

The "topheavy" nature of the market seemed to get widespread recognition on Wednesday when the market underwent its sharpest decline in a month as profits were taken in many of the blue chips whose strong rise had pushed the averages into record high ground.

Stocks rallied moderately on Thursday and performed unevenly on Friday.

For the week as a whole, the 30-stock Dow Industrials took a moderate loss of 1.88 at 753.73.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks also showed a minor decline as it lost .5 at 281.2.

Of the 1,499 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, however, losers outnumbered gainers by the substantial margin of 777 to 545.

During the week a number of investment advisors suggested that the relatively high level of the market and its technical characteristics were such that it would be wiser to cash profits and wait for a "correction" — that is, a fairly sharp decline. Others, however, were more optimistic, noting the encouraging business news behind the market's rise and commenting that the market has "corected its own excesses" as it went along.

The news was very good during the past week. Third quarter earnings were estimated about 15 per cent higher than a year ago and a record year for profits was deemed likely. Steel production recovered, erasing a slight decline in the previous week. October auto production was a record. General Motors reported record nine month earnings topping a billion dollars for the first time. U.S. Steel's quarterly profits nearly doubled the level of a year earlier. Manufacturers' new orders spurted in September.

All of this added interest to stock market trading and volume on the New York Stock Exchange was a lively 28,722,840 shares compared with 30,346,801 the previous.

As the week ended, the number one question on Wall Street was what GM's directors will decide to do regarding dividends when they meet Monday and—most important—will they propose another stock split?

GM gained 1⅞ on the week but chiseled away some of its earlier gain toward the end of the week as caution developed about its possible dividend action.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Retired School Chief Given Safety 'Award'

KENT, Ohio (AP)—This city is making sure that George A. Bowman, retired president of Kent State University, is reminded regularly of the high esteem in which he is held.

Mayor Redmond Greer ordered the safety walk across Ohio Route 5—which the retried president uses almost daily to cross from his home to an office the university keeps for him — painted green. At either end, stencilled in white, is the declaration: "Bowman Walk."

DIAGNOSTIC

NEW YORK (UPI) —A woman patient who repeatedly tells the doctor during his compilation of her case history that her husband is "just wonderful" is a neurotic. So reported Dr. Leonard L. Lovshin to the West Virginia Academy of General Practice.

"I'm a husband," said Lovshin. "Most of my friends are husbands and I don't know of a wonderful one in the lot. If your patient will admit to herself that she's married to a typically inconsiderate slob, chances are she's normal."

KUDU FAMILY — There has been a new addition at the Cheyenne Mountain Zoo, a 2 week old baby Kudu. The Greater Kudu is a very rare African antelope which is rapidly becoming extinct in the wilds. Zoo officials hope to preserve the species by establishing a breeding herd. These and all the other animals can be seen free of charge November 3, which has been designated as Colorado Springs Day at the Cheyenne Mountain Zoo.

25-Cent Loan Quarrel Ends in Murder

DENVER (AP)—An argument that reportedly concerned a 25-cent loan ended in the beating and fatal stabbing of an old age pensioner in a Denver hotel last week.

Police said Lucas L. Studer, 49, admitted he "got mad" at Anton Youngquist, 69, knocked him down choked him for 10 minutes, picked up a knife and slashed the unconscious man "like a beef." Studer is an unemployed butcher.

The men were residents of the same hotel southwest of the downtown area. Witnesses told police they saw Studer enter Youngquist's room shortly before the slaying and heard the suspect berate the pensioner for refusing him a 25-cent loan.

Combat Veteran New Sgt. Maj. At Carson

A combat veteran who is wearing the Red Diamond shoulder patch for the third time in his Army career is the new sergeant major of the 3rd Brigade at Ft. Carson.

Thomas J. Wylie was sergeant major of the 2nd Battalion, 11th Infantry before he took over as top soldier of the Chief's Brigade.

Wylie took basic training with the 5th Infantry Division in 1940 at Ft. McClellan, Alabama. After two weeks of basic he became a BAR man in the 11th Infantry.

In 1942 he was transferred to the 33rd Infantry Division and went to Guadalcanal on the converted troop transport, SS President Coolidge.

When the Coolidge hit a mine and sank in Guadalcanal harbor, Wylie swam to the beach with 15,000 other troops where they were stranded for three months.

After the division was re-equiped, Wylie participated in the New Georgia Island invasion and spent three years in the South Pacific.

He was discharged in August 1945 and reenlisted three months later. For the second time in his career, Wylie was assigned to the 11th Infantry of the 5th Division.

In September 1958, Wylie was one of the first soldiers promoted to E-9 grade.

Service in Italy, Germany and Korea preceeded Wylie's third tour with the 5th Division's 11th Infantry.

Wylie's decorations include the Bronze Star, Army Commendation Medal with two oak leaf clusters and Purple Heart.

LOOK WHO'S TALKING!

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The red faces Assistant Scoutmasters Bill Elmore and Jewell Pollard acquired on Boy Scout Troop 407's canoe trip down the Colorado River weren't from sunburn.

The two had repeatedly cautioned their charges to keep valuables and other articles in bags tied to their canoes, so that in case of tipping nothing would be lost. Then Elmore and Pollard overturned. Their shoes, in the bottom of the canoe, were swept away by the current.

Drinking Pattern Study Discloses Unusual Facts

Nearly 50 per cent of men with drinking problems entering Salvation Army centers show improvement, according to a recent study prepared by Dr. Lawrence Katz, for the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation in coooperation with the Salvation Army.

Case histories of men who participated in the Salvation Army Centers in San Francisco and Lytton form the basis of the study. The results of the study can be held to be generally true of all the Salvation Army Men's Service Center programs conducted in the same manner, such as the center in Colorado Springs.

Men's social Service Center programs are maintained to provide housing, recreational facilities, food, and mental and spiritual help to men with social problems, especially drinking.

Centers are located in each state. The local center, serving homeless men from all of Southern Colorado is located at 17 W. Colo. Ave.

The recent study includes an analysis of information of men leaving the centers from Sept. 1961, thru August 30, 1962. Follow-up questionnaires and interviews were obtained on 90 of the men thru July of 1963.

Of the 90 men, 43 were judged as having shown improvement and 47 were rated as non-improved in drinking behavior. In rating improvement, the main weight was given to the number of weeks of abstinence after the treatment program, as compared to the period before entering the center.

Unusual facts came to light in the study, some of which are difficult to explain. For instance, men with Scandinavian or Mid-European fathers do relatively poorly, as do those with Irish mothers. Foreign-born men seem to do better than those born in this country. Men without any military experience do better than those with some military experience.

Tho most of the men do not actively follow any religious creed, those professing to be Catholic do better than men who are of some of the Protestant denominations.

The study also seems to indicate that men with very limtied education do poorly as a class. However, this is also true of the men classified as professional or semi-professional in occupational background. The skilled workers do better than others.

Quite difficult to understand is the fact that those men who are rated by their work supervisor as doing relativelypoor visor as doing relatively poor work in their assignments show more improvement in their drinking behavior than those rated as doing well in their work.

A number of aspects of the men's participation in the Service Center Program are correlated with later improvement, according to the study.

Men who are fully involved in the Center's recreational activities do better than those who are not. Those who take group therapy tend to show more improvement than those taking private therapy.

Length of stay in the Center is highly correlated with later improvement. Men admitted to the Center on a Wednesday or Thursday do not seem to do as well as those admitted on other days.

A finding which is hard to explain is that men who report outside attendance at an AA group while in the Center do not do as well as those who report no outside attendance.

From analysis of the findings in the study and from many of the test scores and test interpretations, a pattern is beginning to emerge indicating that predictions can be made as to who will respond to the treatment program.

Patterns of men who will be most likely to find help in the Salvation Army program are summarized in the study as those showing more socialization and relatively good recent stability.

These men also tend to have the presence of some subjective discomfort and good motivation for change. The more specific findings in the study, while interesting, will have to be checked against more data before the findings can be validated, and correlated with the general pattern.

The important fact indicated by the study, according to Salvation Army representatives is that an encouraging number of men entering Social Service Centers do show improvement.

In helping these men, the Salvation Army gives an important service to the Community, and asks little in return.

All that is needed from the people of the community is reusable discards which can be repaired. These reparable articles such as clothing, old furniture, appliances, books, or odds and ends are vital to the program because, without them, the Social Service Center program could not function.

After obtaining these contributions, the program is self-supporting through the sale of items in various Salvation Army Stores.

Items contributed are repaired, mended, painted, and made ready for sale in the Salvation Army Thrift Stores such as the one at 17 West Colo. Ave., The money gained thru selling these items goes toward maintaining the service centers.

A call to the Salvation Army, 633-4697, will bring a Salvation Army truck to collect usable discards, and save the donors the time and trouble of disposing of these articles they can no longer use, as well as making them a part of this vital program.

The most important phase of this program is the work therapy in which the men prepare the discards for sale, according to the Salvation Army directors.

In the process of repairing the skill in profitable trades. They items for sale men gain can again become productive members of society, no longer dependent on others. Salvation Army managers feel this is basic to the rehabilitation of the men.

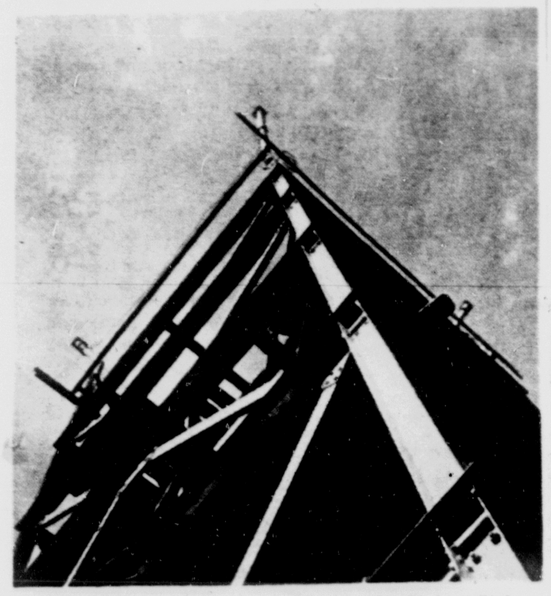
Scottish Kilt Praised As Best of Fashion

LONDON (AP) — Tailor and Cutter—an authority on men's clothes—has advocated the kilt as a national dress for the British male. In its main editorial, the magazine said Friday:

"It's far too good just for Scotsmen. Since the invention of the bicycle, and the wide interbreeding which it made possible, there are few British families untouched by Scottish blood."



FLIGHT TOWER — The framework of a 70-foot flight control tower rises above new construction at Fort Carson's Butts Army Air Field. It will be faced with concrete with glass windows around the angled steel at top. The tower and other parts of the $1½ million project are more than 40 per cent complete.

4% Hike Seen For Colorado Vehicle Number

Colorado's motor-vehicle registrations are expected to total 1,053,000 for 1963, an increase of 40,899, or 4 per cent, over the 1,012,101 vehicles registered in 1962, Federal Highway Administrator Rex M. Whitton said.

His prediction was based on estimates made by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Passenger car registrations are expected to total 810,000 in Colorado this year, an increase of 3.8 per cent above 1962. Trucks and buses should reach 243,000, a gain of 5 per cent.

Pikes Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

The passengers of many thousands of automobiles that pass so quickly up and down this old Cheyenne Road have no notion of the early struggles that in my childhood days took place along its roadsides. Neither do the men who ride by so very quickly every day take heed of the burial ground that was one of much interest to us children who walked back and forth to the Cheyenne district school each day.

There were seven of us: we three sisters, Edith and Lucy and I, and the four Buck girls, who lived in what was known as the Red House just where the North and South Cheyenne Canons join a half mile west of our home.

The Buck sisters were Katie, Nora, and the twins, Edith and Edna. We met each morning on our way to school at the spot in the road just below our Old Pine tree in our yard. If we had gone on a little ahead of the Bucks, we often waited for them as they came running down the road, breathless and a bit later than they had hoped, and to find if we had left our house. One of the twins, Edith, nearly always would dash up the "water path" into our yard, thrust her head in at the kitchen door and call out, always with the same words. "Has the girls went yet?" We usually had. She would run thru the yard, down the path by the pine tree and there find us waiting.

Yesterday while in the 1400 block on Cheyenne Road I passed a spot near the roadside where a dish cloth lies buried under the sand. At least it could be there, for that is where we as children laid it away many years ago, as we were on our way to school one winter morning.

That short burial ceremony was attended by seven little girls who used some sticks with which to dig the grave, making a shallow hole in the sandy bottom of a ditch that ran along the right side of the road and there we hoped that dish rag would rot and do it right away.

You see it was necessary that it decompose else the charm might not work and Nora would not lose her warts. She had several round smooth little bumps on her hands and she had heard that a stolen dish rag rubbed on the warts and the cloth buried would cause the little offenders to disappear.

Nora had persuaded my sister Edith to steal the "stove cloth" from my mother's kitchen and Nora had stopped by on her way to school to stuff the still-damp cloth into her cloak pocket without my mother's knowledge. We had picked the burial ground the evening before on our way home from school, deciding on that ditch bottom as an easy place to dig.

This whole prformance to be successful should be carried out in the dark of the moon, and we had assured ourselves that since there was no moon at present, the matter had been properly attended to as far as that was concerned.

It didn't take long to dig the hole and push the sand over the cloth but a lot of time was consumed several afternoons later when coming home from school we tried to locate the grave to see if the process had gone as scheduled. There had been a snow and the sand had been washed a little but since we didn't find any trace of the flour-sack dish-cloth, we were satisfied that everything was as it should be and especially so since not long afterwards Nora's warts disappeared.

Sister and I have forgotten whether or not mother missed her kitchen "stove cloth" but she was later let into the secret after the charm had worked, on Nora's hands.

NORA BUCK

Now for the accident:

It happened at "the turn of the road" just below the hill from our house where our private driveway turned into the wagon road that led from down to the Cheyenne Canons. This traffic accident caused no fatalities unless one considers some chickens that might have been but were not.

"Go down to Mrs. Botting's," my mother said to me one spring afternoon, "and bring up that setting of eggs that she is to let me have. Here is the 35 cents."

The Botting farm was a half mile down the road from our home and the setting of eggs, a fine Brown Leghorn variety, were to be placed under a broody Buff Cochin hen named "Muff."

"Be careful," mother had said, "you know cracked eggs won't hatch." And was I careful! Those precious eggs were extra smooth and had been well selected, and placed with care by Mrs. Botting herself in my five quart lard pail.

Here is the time I think to introduce Bill, who went along with me on that errand. Bill was a small black shaggy haired canine with not too much intelligence. He had no ancestors of note, but we children loved him in spite of his lack of brains.

Those 13 Brown Leghorn eggs and Bill and I were coming along the road without incident and I was beginning to breathe easier, thinking that my bucket of hen fruit was soon to be placed under my mother's critical eyes, when just as we had reached the turn of the road, Bill, who had been scouting in the brush nearby, thot to overtake and pass me and did so without leaving himself room to pass properly. If I were telling of an auto that sideswiped me and crushed my fenders, maybe this present generation would understand the dog's passing. But as this all happened too long ago for such language I will state simply that Bill banged against my bucket of eggs, banged his shaggy black body against it good and hard and there I stood while that silly pet bounded on ahead as if glad to find himself so near home.

Almost home with a mass of cracked and broken eggs, and mother and Old Muff ahead to welcome me! Talk about an omelet or scrambled eggs. I had them all. There were only two or three that had survived the crash. Not only would Bill's poor driving cost us another 35 cents, but it meant also that several more days would have to be added to dear patient old Muff's three weeks as no other hen could be trusted with the expensive Brown Leghorn eggs as she was not only the best setter but she was also the best mother hen of all our flock of chickens. I was fearful too that this diaster might cause my older sister Edith to smile slyly thinking that she instead of I should have been sent to the Botting farm.

I shall hurry over the agony of having to set my bucket of broken eggs on our kitchen table that afternoon and will add only that a few days later after the Botting flock had had time to lay another setting, that I was sent again to the farm but this time without Bill.

Designed for the Chicago Golf Club, the first 18-hole golf course in this country was opened for play in 1893 at Wheaton, Ill.

Housewife Spends Night In Rock Hudson's Home

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 32-year-old housewife, accused of spending the night in the Beverly Hills home of actor Rock Hudson and taking a few souvenirs, says she was in love with him.

Mrs. Dorothy Jean Strashinsky, of Anaheim, Calif., was found guilty of trespassing and petty theft. But the court postponed sentencing Friday pending recommendations of a probation report.

Mrs. Strashinsky said she and her 5-year-old daughter, Deborah, spent the night in Hudson's home last August. She insisted she had received permission from a friend.

NCO Graduates From Ent Alumni Group

Maj. Paul J. Buckley, Commander 4608th Support Squadron, was named as advisor.

Officers elected at the first meeting were SM. Sgt. Wm E. Pauley, president; CM Sgt. Alexander M. Greer, vice-president; T. Sgt. Roy R. Gertz, secretary; T. Sgt. James I. Taylor, project officer, and SM. Sgt. John A. Carlin, chairman of the Community Relations Committee.

Any senior NCO who has graduated from one of the major air command NCO Academies is eligible for membership. Meetings are held once each month at the Ent NCO Club.

At the Academies the NCO is confronted with many challenges to better fit him for his job. He delves into human behavior, motivation, management, civic and community relations and responsibilities, communications, and leadership. The challenges presented at the Academies prompted the local NCO graduates to form the NCO Academy Alumni Association to keep these challenges alive.

While the objectives are many, the association believes that an effective organization "does things." In keeping with this belief, the association's first project is to assist Cmdr. and Mrs. G. K. Ebbe raise funds for the Children's Asthma Research Institute and Hospital (CARIH) in Denver.

CARIH is free, non-sectarian institution which treats and rehabilitates children with intractable asthma. Several children living in Colorado Springs are now able to lead normal lives because of the care and treatment received at CARIH.

The association is also assisting the CHAP Parents Group at Ent in sponsoring a Christmas Party for the handicapped children of military families. T. Sgt. J. I. Taylor, project officer for CHAP, is making arrangements for the party. Featured at the party will be a clown impersonated by SM. Sgt. W. E. Pauley.

Gunpowder, Treason, Plot Have Not Been Forgotten

By LYNN POOLE
The Johns Hopkins University

Saturday, Nov. 5, 1605, dawned over London as a clear, warm, dry day. King James I rose early to be dressed by courtiers and valets in preparation for his gold-coached procession to the House of Lords, where His Majesty would open Parliament. The palace buzzed early that morning.

Equally early, the garbage-strewn streets of London were lined with surly masses waiting to shout insults, wave petitions or aim spittle at their vain, weak, vacillating, unpopular monarch. Rumors and counter rumors spread thru the angry crowd. There was trouble at Parliament. Treason and murder, fear and hate, defiance and compliance mingled as the city became an uneasy powder keg — with James sitting atop the dangerous barrel.

James, the only son of Henry Stuart (Lord Darnley) and the defiant Mary Stuart, queen of Scots, became James VI of Scotland when Mary abdicated in 1567. Losing no time he made alliance with Queen Elizabeth I of England while his own mother was being held prisoner by Elizabeth. On Feb. 8, 1587, Mary, queen of Scots, was executed with James' full approval.

Elizabeth I, a fanatical Protestant, imposed severe penal laws on all Catholics on her island realm. When she died in 1603, James VI of Scotland ascended her throne as James I of Great Britain, and by so doing became the first king of Great Britain.

James I-VI refused to relax Elizabeth's laws against the practice of Catholicism in England. Unrest swept the country; centered itself in London. Catholics plotted against the king. One group of 12, led by Thomas Catesby, devised a sinister scheme of blowing up the House of Lords at the very moment James I spoke his regal "We" to open Parliament. Thomas Percy hired a cellar under the House of Lords, and hid 36 barrels of gunpowder, waiting for Nov. 5 and the arrival of James I. Conspirators scurried from place to place. Secrecy became impossible, after Francis Tresham in an unsigned letter warned Lort Monteagle, his brother-in-law, not to attend Parliament that day. Spies followed suspected conspirators. The lords and chamberlains found evidence of plans, but no proof of action.

James I entered his coach. Surrounded by his retinue in splendid uniforms, garments and jewels, the king started for Parliament. A mischance by one of the plotters led the First Earl of Salisbury and friends in pursuit of Guy Fawkes, a soldier. Fawkes, not suspecting he was being followed, slipped thru a door, ran down a winding staircase and entered the room where the gunpowder was hidden. He placed coal around the barrels. He was watched. He spread faggots over the coals. He was watched closely. He was about to ignite the faggots. He was attacked.

By then several conspirators had entered. They were siezed and beaten. Others tried to escape but were caught. All were tortured. King James went clamly about the act of opening Parliament.

On Jan. 30, 1606, all 12 of the conspirators were executed, as was Henry Gannett, provincial of the English Jesuit order, who had known of the conspiracy.

Instead of lightening the burden of the Catholics in England, the gunpowder plot incident led to more stringent laws, and turned many English Protestants against Catholics who had been tolerated before. Violence proved to be no solution to a problem deeply scarred by passionate, unreasoning emotions.

Guy Fawkes is the only name of the 12 plotters remembered by many people today — he was the one caught in the act of lighting the gunpowder. So, from that day until this day, Nov. 5 in England is known as Guy Fawkes Day. Tuesday, this fifth, will be a national holiday in England comparable to the July 14 Bastille Day in France, and the Fourth of July in the United States. Fireworks by the millions will pop and crack; roman candles and sparklers will light the night sky. Fortunately, few will give thought to the 17th century bitterness between Protestants and Catholics, but all will chant and sing the rhyme by an unknown rhymester of the 17th century —

"Please to remember the fifth of November,
When gunpowder treason was plot.
I see no reason why gunpowder treason

Capt. Jensen Honored as Lowry Graduate

Capt. John R. Jensen, ADCIG Ent AFB, was honored recently as honor graduate of the first Nuclear Safety Orientation Course at Lowry AFB, Colo.

The course, which was conceived and requested by Air Defense Command, trained ten ADC officers in various facets of nuclear safety directly relating to Air Defense weapons systems.

Lt. Col. Robert I. Ferguson, chief, administrative Div., 3415th Technical School at Lowry had this to say about Capt. Jensen's contribution to the orientation. "Capt. John R. Jensen was an asset to the class. Not only did he achieve the highest grade in the class, but he imparted to his classmates and instructors many pertinent and worthwhile items of interest.

"Congratulations to Capt. Jensen, his classmates and Air Defense Command for participating in this ambitious program providing Nuclear Safety training for all key supervisors working with ADC weapon systems."

CU Professor Receives $47,000 Chemical Grant

Prof. Stanley J. Cristol of the University of Colorado Chemistry Department has received a $47,900 National Science Foundation grant to continue an eight-year-old study on the mechanisms of certain organic chemical reactions.

His research is expected to be of some value to theoretical organic chemists. Some of the synthetic products of his research could be used by other chemists in their research.

The study deals with the rearrangement of organic chemical compound structures. Cristol is particularly interested in the elimination or addition reactions in certain organic substances when treated by other organic or inorganic compounds.

Last summer, at the 18th National Organic Chemical Symposium, Cristol reported that he and eight of his graduate and postdoctoral students have discovered new ways of producing chemical ring systems and some of their reactions.

Printing Credited For Civilization

DENVER (AP) — The developing of printing determined the character of western civilization, a television official said here Friday.

Edward Stanley, director of public affairs for the National Broadcasting Co., said the world is changing so rapidly that extreme demands are being made upon newspapers, radio and television to keep the people informed. He said the media are equal to the demands.

Vital Tax Cut Figures Withheld From Public

Important facts and figures, vital to accurate public understanding of the tax cut program, have been omitted, obscured or minimized in public discussions of the plan, says the family economics bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

The scheduled cuts in federal taxes, if not accompanied by corresponding cuts in federal expenditures, simply amount to one more "shot" of inflation, and this fact needs to be frankly recognized, says the bureau's analysis.

When the Government "puts more money into the economy than it takes out" (operates at a deficit), it actually borrows money and distributes it to the people, directly or indirectly. Whether the money consists of newly printed greenbacks or Government checks, the inflationary process is basically the same, says the study.

The slight difference between the present tax-cut plan and deficit "pump-priming" attempts in the past, lies simply in the method of distributing the borrowed money to the people, says the report. Earlier attempts rested on increased Government spending for various projects; the present program rests on collecting less in taxes. It is the difference between a forehand and a backhand stroke in tennis.

Announcing the expected deficit as one that is planned and intentional does not in any way lessen, but possibly increases, drawbacks and dangers that belong to rising debt and more inflation, says the report.

The federal Government has operated at deficits of varying sizes for 26 of the past 32 years. The total amount of price inflation resulting therefrom has cut the purchasing power of the dollar by a little more than half.

But until now the Government has appeared able to spend more than its income indefinitely, without having to face penalties met by the individual, business or bank which does the same thing.

Today, by contrast, the Government faces the potential threat of a foreign "run" on the shrinking U.S. gold supply and on the value of the dollar itself, should other nations conclude that the U.S. is entering a new era of inflation, with continuing increase in our federal debt.

Therefore, if taxes are cut without coresponding economies in Government expenditures, such a "shot" of inflation must necessarily be brief, as has been promised.

The major hope for long-term economic benefits from deficit-financed tax reduction then rests on its encouraging a long-term expansion in business.

Actual tax savings to large businesses will generally be small. They will be more than offset for the next year or so by the Treasury's speed-up in due dates for business tax payments, aimed at putting corporations onto a current tax payment basis. Savings to small businesses are larger percentagewise, but will not amount to any very large net total. Meanwhile state and municipal tax "takes" continue in a sharp rise.

Thus the main hope must rest on the belief that when individual taxpayers spend their borrowed tax discounts, American business will be encouraged to undertake large scale expansion programs, and that this will in turn generate the hoped-for long-term economic upturn with larger tax yields that will end the near term deficits, and make it possible to retain the rax-rate reductions.

The report points out, however, that businessmen do not ordinarily undertake costly long-term expansion programs on the basis of a short-term trade stimulus.

Reduced to its simplest terms, the report says, advocates of deficit-financed tax cuts hope that a short, basically unsound financial procedure by the Government will somehow produce a sound, long-term economic expansion.

The Government has made three substantial tax cuts since the end of World War II, says the report; two were followed by upturns, one by a downturn.

The 1954 tax cuts, which were followed by the 1955-57 boom, are the example most frequently pointed to by Government economists as a convincing argument for tax cuts now, regardless of deficits.

But important facts, apparently ignored in reaching such conclusions, change the picture entirely, says the report.

The 1954 tax cuts were accompanied by still larger cuts in the Government's expenditures, the bureau's analysis points out. During the two fiscal years of 1954 and 1955, federal expenditures fell a total of nearly $10 billion - more than twice the reduction in tax income. In short, the Korean War was over, the Government's expenses were falling, and tax rates could soundly be reduced.

The prosperity which followed gave the federal treasury a surplus by 1956, and makes that era an argument for sound Government financial policies rather than for deficit financing, when all the facts are included in the picture, says the report.

Both advocates and opponents of a deficit-financed tax-cut program agree on one vital point, says the report.

The principal key to a long-term, sound economic improvement is to encourage American business that continued expansion is justified.

Athlete Sentenced In Red Germany

BERLIN (UPI) — A Communist court in East Germany has sentenced former women's gymnastic champion Renate Schneider to prison for six years for plotting to help athletes "choose freedom" during the 1964 olympics.

The Communist organ Neues Deutschland said the 24-year-old gymnast was arrested June 1 along with Max Sowik, described as a cousin-in-law from West Berlin who entered East Berlin on a forged passport and gave Miss Schneider "instructions which she hid in the false heel of her shoe."

Nees Deutschland said the gymnast was to arrange emetings in Tokyo between Western intelligence officials and East German athletes who have had their fill of communism.

Former Resident Dies In California

Hugh C. Wilson, former resident of Colorado Springs, died Wednesday at 87, at a Long Beach, Calif., hospital. He made his home in Long Beach for many years. He was the son of W. P. Wilson, operator of the first oil well on Signal Hill, Long Beach. He is survived by a sister, Miss Bessie Wilson, and a son, Donald Wilson, both of Long Beach. Funeral services were held in Long Beach today.

Mr. Wilson as a child lived on a ranch in Bear Creek Canon and later at Mayhurst, in the 1500 block on Cheyenne Road. Miss Dora Foster of Colorado Springs, who had long known him, saw him recently when she was in California and said Saturday that he had spoken of a desire to return to Colorado Springs for a visit.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

Have you got a little black book? They often come in handy for puposes other than those you might have first supposed. For example, more rigid requirements in the filing of Federal income tax returns make it very desirable that every taxpayer keeps good records of income and expenses.

Keeping good records is especially important in matters of travel and entertainment expenses. Accurate and explicit notations should be made and proper receipts obtained where called for.

To many taxpayers, medical expense records will prove valuable. Others, records of automobile use and expenditures are necessary. Whatever the items is, if it involves some entry on your annual tax return, it will ease your path, perhaps save you money or get you a refund, if you keep good financial records now — and thruout the year.

MORE ON TAXPAYER NUMBERS. When you go into a bank, perhaps to enter a new account, make a deposit or withdrawal or to have interest recorded, staff members or tellers may call to your attention the legal requirement for you to provide them your social security number for Federal tax accounting purposes.

Similarly, if corporations pay you periodic dividends — or credit them to your account — the law requires that you furnish your social security number to the corporations.

These are requirements of the Internal Revenue Service — based on laws passed by Congress — and they are intended to enable the Revenue Service to use its new automatic data processing system to fullest advantage.

They are to your advantage as a taxpayer. They will help to assure accuracy and efficiency in your individual tax account. Please cooperate — use and report your tax account number.

Jordan Takes Charge of Probe In Baker Affair

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman B. Everett Jordan of the Senate Rules Committee said Friday he's taking charge of the Robert G. Baker investigation and sees no present need for help from outside attorneys.

Baker, 35, who rose swiftly from page boy to secretary of the Senate majority, resigned under fire on Oct. 7. The Rules Committee, headed by the North Carolina Democrat, is charged with determining whether Baker's complex business operations involved improper use of influence.

The committee met Friday and voted to hire two outside investigators and to ask the Senate for $50,000 to finance its study of the complex affairs of Baker. The Senate later approved it.

The nine-member committee is known to be split, not along straight party lines, over the question of whether outside counsel should be employed. A showdown vote was put off until the group's next session on Wednesday.

Those favoring outside lawyers argue that since the committee is, in effect, investigating the Senate it should attest its impartiality by hiring outsiders to direct the inquiry.

Jordan told newsmen after Friday's session the Senate resolution authorizing the hearings "obligates the Rules Committee to make this investigation and we're not going to contract it out." Later, in a television interview, Jordan said "Right now I see no need for additional attorneys."

Moratorium Proposed On Annexations

DENVER (UPI) A subcommittee of the Governor's Local Affairs Commission was expected to vote today on a proposal for a one-year moratorium against Denver annexations.

The metropolitan affairs subcommittee met Friday at the State Capitol to consider the plan, proposed by Sen. Roy McVicker, D-Wheat Ridge. A vote was scheduled today on whether to recommend it to Gov. John Love for inclusion in his call for the 1964 Legislature.

The proposal would impose a one-year halt on all annexations, formations of new special improvement districts and incorporations in the Denver area.

Rep. Palmer Burch, R-Denver said Friday he would vote for the plan, but the staff of the Local Affairs Commission reported it believes the moratorium would be unconstitutional.

CAKE TAKES JOURNEY

DONEGAL, Ireland (UPI)—A piece of wedding cake mailed 30 years ago by Mrs. Sarah Byrne to her brother, Patrick Kelly, in Mullaghaneary, a mile from her home here, recently was delivered intact.

The cake had been to Mullaghaneary in Australia, North and South America and parts of Asia before it reached its destination.

CC Creates Rotating Professorship

Colorado College has created an unusual rotating professorship that enables one member of the faculty to spend a year developing projects to improve undergraduate teaching.

The professorship, to be called The Louis T. Benezet Rotating Faculty Fellowship, was made possible thru a $40,500 grant from the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Mo.

It was named for Dr. Benezet, who had ben president of Colorado College for eight years prior to accepting an appointment this summer as president of the Claremont Graduate School and University Center in California. The idea for the fellowship originated with Dr. Benezet.

He was succeeded by Dr. Lloyd E. Worner, who was dean of the college for eight years prior to becoming its first alumnus president.

The fellowship will pay the recipient his annual salary, plus a full summer session salary and $1,000 for expenses. It will rotate annually among members of the faculty.

Altho the fellows will be released from teaching and other campus responsibilities, they will expect to spend most of the time in residence at Colorado College developing projects directed toward the improvement of undergraduate teaching.

In announcing the unusual fellowship, college officials said the fellows will use the time for developing new courses and sequences, conducting research on students and teaching approaches, trying out special seminars or tutorials, special reading and writing to broaden areas of instruction or studying in other fields to broaden interdisciplinary competence.

"Each fellow will use his year to increase his effectiveness as a teacher of liberal education and, insofar as possible, to demonstrate new approaches to effective teaching," said Dr. Kenneth J. Curran, acting dean of the college.

College officials said sample projects might involve the development of a freshman course in the discussion of ideas, or the creation of a course of enrichment for the average, rather than for the gifted student.

The first fellow, to be selected before the end of the current semester, will begin his year next September.

Fellows will be selected by a committee composed of the college's Committee on Committees and a member of the college board of trustees.

Steinbeck Says U.S. Writer Know People

MOSCOW (AP) — John Steinbeck, American Nobel prize-winning author, told a group of Soviet journalists today that American writers live close to the people.

Steinbeck's view was in sharp contrast to the picture generally painted here of American artists being paid by "imperialists" and "monopolists."

Commenting at a news conference, Steinbeck said:

"The main problem in being a writer in America is to stay alive. Here they are taken care of by the state. In the United States they live on what they earn from their work. This is the reason why they often have other jobs while they are learning to write."

"Our writers are trained in life," he continued," close to the people because they have to work with people."

WHEAT TALKS RESUME

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet and U.S. government negotiators met for more than an hour at the State Department Friday in further talks on possible sale of American surplus wheat to Russia.

Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., who attended the meeting, said afterward the negotiations would continue. Also at the meeting were Undersecretary of State George W. Ball, Undersecretary of Agriculture Charles S. Murphy and Sergei I. Borisov, Soviet deputy foreign trade minister.

Navy Magazine Tells Colorado Springs Story

The current issue of Navy, magazine published by the Navy League, carries an illustrated three-page story on Colorado Springs. There are pictures of local Navy League dignitaries, the Air Force Academy, Broadmoor Hotel, etc.

The story deals mainly with the coming Western Regional meeting of the Navy League, scheduled for Nov. 17-19. The Eighth and Ninth Naval Regions will host Regions 11, 12 and 13. An attendance of several hundred is expected. Headquarters will be at the Broadmoor Hotel.

Joseph A. Reich is president of the Colorado Springs Chapter of the Navy League. Adm. Mini, who commands the naval forces on CONAD, will be the official host.

Auto Industry Sets Record in Production Rate

By JAMES STICKFORD

DETROIT (UPI) — The U.S. auto industry produced more cars during October than any month in history.

However, Ward's Automotive Reports said a bid for an 800,000-unit month was thwarted by strike threats and two walkouts.

The walkouts were at General Motors plants at Norwood, Ohio, and Doraville, Ga. Automakers matched the record of 794,015 units set in March, 1955, the statistical agency said. A total of 139,400 trucks were produced during the month, highest since 1951.

Ford Motor Co. said it built more cars and trucks in October than any month in company history. Combined car - truck production at Ford totaled 274,272 units set in November, 1955.

Passenger car production of 232,276 units topped the previous monthly record of 210,692 set in November of 1955 and October truck production of 41,705 was higher than the record of 41,339 established in May, 1929.

General Motors produced 402,353 cars during October compared with 374,969 during the same month last year. For the first 10 months of 1963 GM has turned out a total of 3,283,124 cars compared with 3,049,507 during the like span last year.

Chrysler Corp. reported production of 110,378 cars for the month compared with 90,087 during the comparable month last year. Calendar year production to date totaled 835,070 passenger cars compared with 534,651 units during the first 10 months of 1962.

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

C. S. DUDLEY

Well, there was a time when one played the newspaper on the piano.

The Evening Telegraph, of course, was to become a part of the old Gazette and Telegraph and then a part of the Gazette Telegraph of today.

I have before me the musical supplement of the Saturday, March 23, 1895, issue of the Telegraph. It was musical supplement No. 15 and is entitled "Faultless," and is called a sprightly two-step, by Jonas Rosenfeld.

There are no words, but the music looks good. It was shown me by Gladys Morath, society editor. It came to her from Mrs. Rebecca R. Finney, who received it from Mrs. Byers Smith, 804 E. Washington St.

I can't remember hearing this two-step played. But my opinion of two-steps of the 1890's is high. I wonder how many persons remember hearing in "Floradora," "Tell me, pretty maiden, are there any more at home like you?"

As the curtain rose for the first act six chorus girls, with parasol came forward, then six chorus men from behind them.

"Tell me, pretty maiden, are there any more at home like you?" the men sang.

"There are a few, kind sir, etc," sang the parasol girls.

Oh, it was a catchy tune. We used sometimes to dance to it in what was called the military two-step, dancing all the way down the hall in a straight line without reversing, then turning and coming back in the same order.

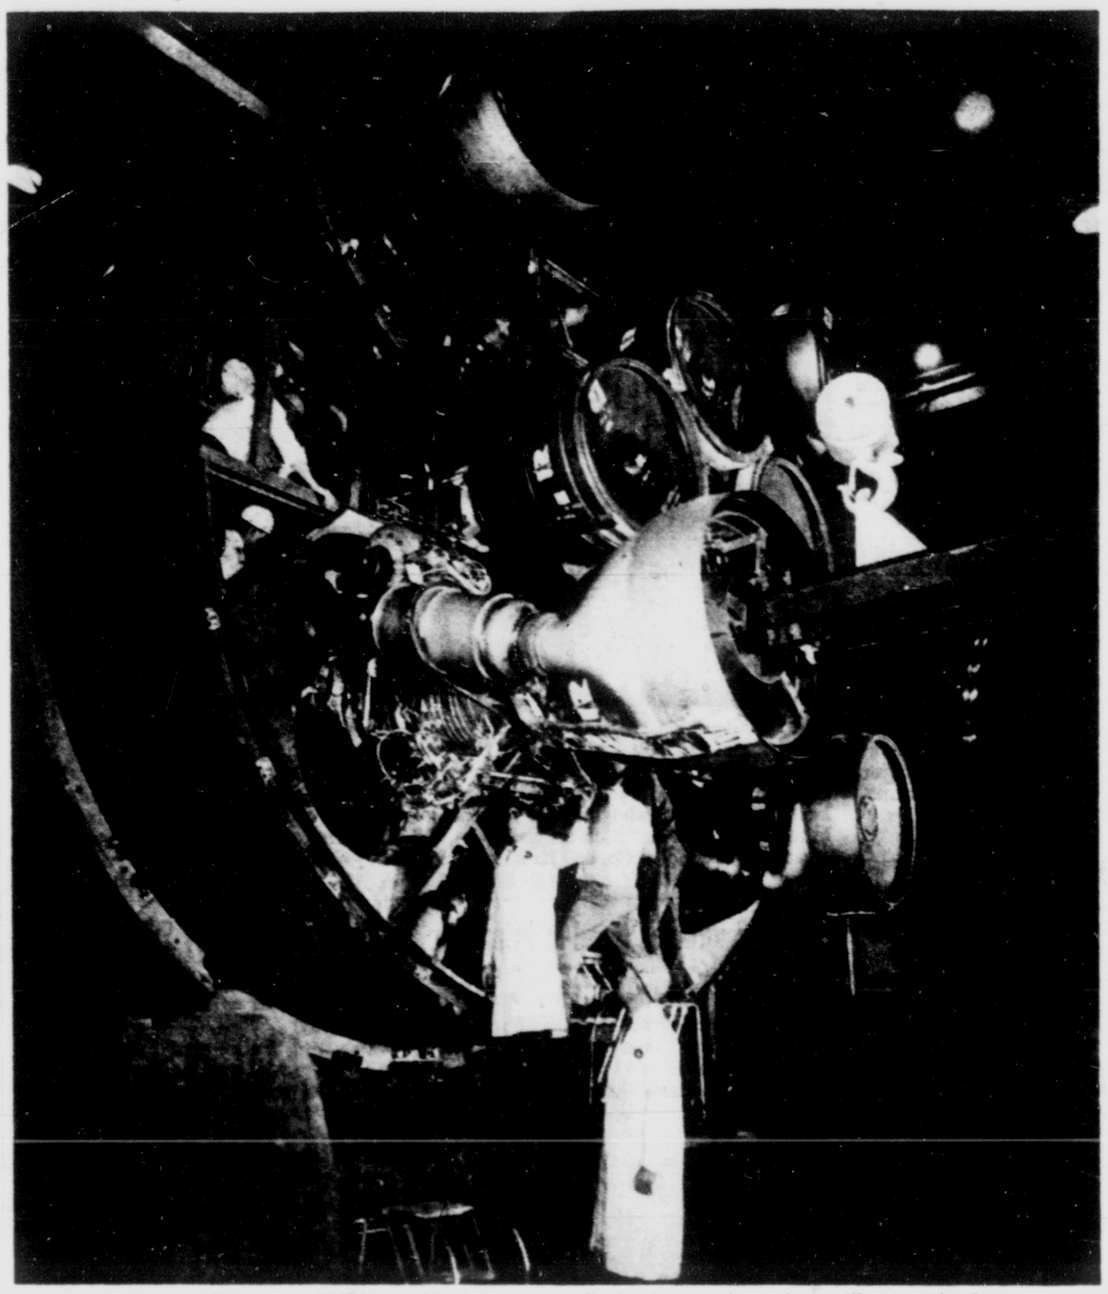
Who that has danced in the 1890's will ever forget the waltzes.

"Under the Shade of the Sheltering Palms" was one from this same "Floradora." "Oh, my Dolores, queen of the eastern sea, etc."

Then, about that time, there was, "Under the Shade of the Old "Apple Tree" and a dozen others that picked the feet up and put them down in two-steps and glided them along in the waltzes. "The Blue Danube" was the overall favorite waltz.

It was in Denver that I grew up, but down here in Colorado Springs they did a lot of dancing, too. I remember an occasion of dancing on the porch of the old Broadmoor Casino, when the Broadmoor Hotel had not even been thought of and the land on which it stands was a cow pasture, and, as I recollect, the music was mandolins and guitars. At least, they were popular for lawn parties. Lawn parties were a favorite in those days at the Cliff House in Manitou Springs, where colored electric lights sparkled amid the foliage of the trees. At private lawn parties there would be strings of Japanese paper lanterns.

The men, as I recall, usually wore white duck trousers and blue serge double-breasted coats on these occasions. And the collars were ever so high, and almost choked one. Wing collars then were business wear collars. They were never worn at evening events.



ENGINE NO. 8 FOR A SATURN — Workmen at NASA's Michoud Ordnance Plant in Louisiana are dwarfed by giant engine they're completing for the Saturn I booster. It's the last of a cluster of eight Rocketdyne engines which will power the Saturn, a type of which will launch America's astronauts towards the moon.

Encyclopedia's Third Edition Now Published

Completely revised, reset, and updated for the first time in 13 years, "The Columbia Encyclopedia," one of America's most important reference works has been published.

The purpose and underlying philosophy of the new third edition is the same as that established in 1935, when the first edition appeared. Dr. Clarke Fisher Ansley, who conceived the idea of a one-volume encyclopedia in English, believed the information should be compact enough and simply enough written to serve as a guide to the "young Lincoln."

The third edition contains 2400 pages, 75,000 articles, 7½ million words, 80,000 cross references, and 35,000 bibliographic references. The 42 pages of illustrations and 20 full-page maps, including such areas of international tension as Europe, Southeast Asia, and China, are all carefully integrated with the text.

Important new subjects featured in the new edition reflect the vast changes in the world sinc 1950. Within its covers is the Russia of Nikita Khrushchev the France of Charles de Gaulle, the America of John F. Kennedy as well as the newly independent nations of Africa and Asia. There is the world of space exploration with its astronauts, missles, NASA, and artifical sattelites; the world of abstract expressionism, electronic music, and angry young men; the world of integration, labor, the Peace Corps, and the John Birch Society.

Articles from the second edition were appraised and revised according to their significance today. For example, the length of the entries on race, Buddhism, and the United Nations have greatly increased.

Preparations for the new encyclopedia began in 1959. Editors Dr. William Bridgwater, editor in chief of Columbia University press, and Seymour Kurtz, chief of public information, Museum of Primitve Art, along with an editoral staff of more than 200, used the university's vast research sources and consulted Columbia scholars for recent information in each area of earning.

Some 1,215 miles of paper, 725 miles of sewing thread, 47,000 pounds of type metal, and 160 gallons of ink were required for the first printing of 25,000 copies.

It was printed on C.E. offset Bible paper with special opacifiers, bound in buckram, and thumb-indexed.

Would-Be Boss In Kansas City Is Gunned Down

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Joe Tigerman was the prototype of the would-be political boss who never quite became boss. He had a premonition three years ago that someone would gun him down. Friday someone did.

Tigerman, 54, was shot three times as he sat in the office of his used car lot.

The fast-talking Tigerman, a Democratic faction leader, was deep in a political campaign that day three years ago when he suggested to three luncheon companions that he might encounter violence.

He tossed a typewritten statement to one of them and said:

"That's my statement in case anything happens to me. I'm hot, brother, I'm hot."

The statement, made public after his death, said in part:

"The muscle is on the move, and either they feel this is the big moment or they're scared, and when punks get scared they're too stupid to think things out....

"They have put out the word to pistol-whip some of the less faithful in line and, in my case, to gun me down....

The man who preserved the statement declined identification.

Still on Tigerman's body when two of his automobile salesmen found it were $2, a ruby ring, a diamond ring and a wrist watch.

Tigerman was active in politics in the days of Tom Pendergast and spoke fondly of the city's political boss of the 30s. Pendergast helped him after he pleaded guilty as a youth to two interstate auto theft charges. Tigerman's penitentiary sentence was suspended.

Every Labor Day Tigerman threw a picnic for Jackson County Democrats and the events always were well attended.

In 1950 Tigerman was named as a bookmaker by a federal grand jury. In 1947 he was indicted with more than 100 others for vote fraud, but was not convicted.

Town Is Not Worried; Other City Pays Bill

ORANGE PARK, Fla. (AP) Several residents of Orange Park called town officials to complain money was being wasted by leaving lights outside the new municipal building burn all night.

Vice Mayor Hoyt Cotney told the people of the town not to worry about the expense because the nearby city of Jacksonville was paying the bill.

KNOW YOURSELVES

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Women, clothing specialists say: Know yourselves. Then you can be true to the impression you want to create.

Marjories Sohn, University of Illinois specialist, says both figure and personality weigh heavily in shopping decisions.

Waistlines can be anywhere: at the natural waist, above it or below in the "holster-level" or "dropped" style.

The new waistline in the shift or pullover style by-passes the waistline completely.

The raglan sleeve is an important part of the "sportive look."

AFCO Official To Conduct Film Screening

A 28-minute color sound film narrated by Alex Drier, telling the story of Colorado Springs and the Pikes Peak Region, will be shown at a noon luncheon Wednesday in the Antlers Hotel to the Pikes Peak Advertising Club.

Arthur M. "Bus" Oaks, field production sales manager, Alexander Film Co., will conduct the screening for the club.

The film Project 22 is titled "Time To Live." Project 22 takes its name from the $22,000 needed to produce a "package" of three films covering the Pikes Peak Region. Actual production costs of the film were lessened due to the contribution of the producer, Alexander Film Co.

Many firms and organizations thru investments in the project, have made possible the successful completion of the film.

Additional investments in this fund are welcome and can be used to good advantage for promoting and showing the film all over the country. Interested investors may contact the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce.

Anyone wishing to see this film is invited to attend the luncheon. For reservations, call Jean Best, 636-1613.

They Drill Together In Dental Office

WARREN, Ohio (AP) — It's like father, like son for Dr. Arno I. Wargelin and his son, Dr. David W. Wargelin, who share a dental office in civilian practice.

Both have been active as naval dental officers as well, and both began Navy service as seamen recruits. The father, now 57 and having posted 37 years of service in the U.S. Navy and Naval Reserve, retired recently with the rank of commander.

And who took over as dental officer at the Naval Reserve Training Center here? The younger Dr. Wargelin, who has 10 years service and holds the rank of lieutenant.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 2 p.m. Oct. 19 by the Rev. Bill Austin of Thornton, Colo., before an altar flanked by palms and baskets of gladiola, white mums and pink carnations.

Mrs. Billy Jean Nesselroad at the organ played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Miss Leonora Steeve, who sang "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of satin peau, with fitted bodice, sabrina neckline etched in lace and seed pearls, long pointed sleeves, and a full skirt ending in a chapel train. Her veil was of nylon net, flowing from a white rose crown, edged with seed pearls. Her flowers were pink and white rose buds, arranged on a white Bible.

Miss Janet Fayer Ramer, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a dress of pink satin peau, fashioned with a bell shaped skirt. She wore a pink satin halo with a veil and matching slippers and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The bridesmaids were Miss Joyce Clemens and Miss Donna Thompson. They were dressed as the maid of honor and carried bouquets of white carnations.

Opening lead: Ace of ♣

While aggressive tactics call for "getting into the act" as frequently as possible, sight should not be lost of the truth that indiscriminate activities on the part of a defender will often act as a boomerang and turn to strike down the thrower himself. A colorful example is provided today.

The final bid of seven hearts was rather ambitious. Declarer somehow hoped to find the king of spades in dummy and expected to pick up the queen on a finesse. West's double of the final contract can hardly be recommended. He was warned that his ace of clubs would not live, but he reasoned that the dummy, because of the notrump bid, would have several spades and that his king would probably be behind declarer's ace and prove to be a winner.

The ace of culbs was ruffed by declarer with the king of trumps. A small heart was then led to the nine in dummy. The ten of clubs was ruffed by declarer with the ace. Dummy could not be entered with the king of diamonds to ruff the last club and two losing spades subsequently discarded on South's good diamonds.

The difficulty, however, was that the dummy could not again obtain the lead to pull the remaining trumps. There was, however, one hope, and that was that West held the ten of diamonds, in which case the dummy could be entered twice in that suit. It is true that if East held the ten of diamonds, declarer would be defeated another trick but, since it was the only hope of fulfilling contract, the extra points involved could hardly be considered.

Declarer therefore led the three of diamonds and played nine from dummy. When this held the trick he ruffed the remaining club, entered dummy with the king of diamonds, pulled the trumps, discarded two of dummy's spades on South's good diamonds, making in all five diamonds, one spade, four hearts in the North hand, and three ruffs in the South hand for a total of 13 tricks.

Occident-Orient Program To Be Given by Malones

Dr. and Mrs. Carroll B. Malone will open the current study of the Occident and the Orient for members and friends of the Association of University Women Wednesday evening at East Methodist Church.

The slide program will be based on experiences arising from the appointment of Dr. Carroll Malone as visiting professor to Tunghai, the newly established Protestant university on Taiwan, in 1956. He was accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Katharine Malone, oculist known professionally as Dr. Katharine Chapman, who worked in Formosan eye clinics and the Presbyterian Hospital there. Their first two years were so enjoyable their appointment was extended to three years and they returned here in 1959.

Dr. and Mrs. Malone traveled extensively in the Far East during these three years. Having taught in Peking during the years 1911-1927, Dr. Malone was able to contrast the old and the new China, altho he reports that the old China is still visible in parts of Taiwan.

The program will include slides depicting scenes at the university, people in the city and country, agriculture and industry, and aborigines in the mountains.

Dr. Carroll Malone is professor emeritus of Colorado College, having served as head of the history department for twenty-five years. He is currently teaching a University of Colorado extension freshman course in History of Western Civlization, altho he has taught History of the Far East other years.

The Malones have recently served as co-presidents of the American Association for the United Nations and are actively interested in the Crossroads Program and the Sister City program, involving Fuji-Yoshida, Japan. Arrangements for the meeting have been made by Mrs. Dan Hickey, implementation chairman for this topic, The Occident and the Orient. Included will be coffee and business meeting at 7 p.m., with the program following at 8 p.m. Guests are welcome and no reservations are necessary.

There will be displays of objects from the Far East.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Folks:

If you don't have your own garden, then perhaps you buy them at the grocery store from a vegetable man . . . or anywhere.

You and I both know that once in a while we get fresh green beans, and "think" that we are going to cook them that night or the next night.

What happens?

We don't cook them for maybe three or four nights!

I have found out after talking to vegetable growers and produce manufacturers that when a string bean is a string bean and is for sale it ought to be cooked!

I bought 'em. I tried 'em.

Now I think I have the answer after testing 30 pounds.

Before you buy a string bean break it in two. (And if the dealer will not let you break one to test it, then "don't" buy it!)

If you break the bean in half "slowly" and it "strings" when you pull it apart, and you get a string off the edge of the bean . . . it's going to be stringy no matter how you cook it.

I have bought these luscious looking string beans and found we couldn't even chew them after putting all the good ham, salt pork and bacon in them and cooking them two hours. Wow.

Anyway . . . when you get home with some that do "snap" without this "string" and can't cook them right away, you can put them in a mixing bowl and cover them with water. You can set this bowl in your refrigerator over night and it freshens the entier batch of beans.

Bean growers tell me that you do "not" salt these fresh green beans while cooking them. You only salt them 20 minutes before you pour them in the bowl or dish them up. There is a difference. They're better.

But leaving them under water for a few hours makes them extremely crisp, easier to snap and . . . lush.

Do not buy one or two pounds of string beans and just "leave" them in your refrigerator for two, three or four days. This brings "wonder beans" into your kitchen! "That" means "we wonder what we are eating and why they don't taste right." So . . . cook 'em fresh or put 'em under water until cooking. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

It's a good rainy day game.

Before opening your small can of fruits or vegetables turn the can over (so you will be cutting off the "bottom" of the can instead of the top). Empty, rinse out and save. . . .

This will look like a full can of vegetables when turned right side up again. The kids love to play store this way.

Add a few empty cartons or boxes of familiar food, such as eggs, margarine, gelatin, etc. A package or two of play money and they are in business!

Take two large cardboard boxes, turn them upside down for counters and checkout counters. Use the same boxes to store everything until the next time they get ready to play store. Kids love it. Keeps them busy for hours. —C. M.

Dear Heloise:

To save confusion in identifying black electric cords for various appliances, I use colored tape applied to both ends of my cords and identify one color for each specific appliance.

For example:

At both ends of the cord for my electric fry pan I put a piece of "red" tape. When I reach up to pull out the plug, I look for the red tape, and pull the cord out of the socket with the "red" on the plug in the electrical outlet.

Now I no longer unplug the coffee pot by mistake while the fry pan remains on, or unplug the toaster and the bread doesn't cook.

It also makes it easier to find the correct cord in the drawer. —Meta Conway

Cabbage Has Vitamin C

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—I know my four children must have some vitamin C every day and that oranges and citrus juices are about the best source. But with prices for them so high today, I really can't afford them. Is there any other fruit and vegetable that supplies vitamin C?

A—Yes, particularly if your youngsters like cabbage. Cabbage is a good source (though not so good as citrus fruit) of that essential vitamin C. A half cup, raw or cooked, provides about a third of the amount of vitamin C recommended daily. Cabbage is a fairly stable source of vitamin C, than some other leafy vegetables. But do not let it dry out. To hold for a few days, wrap and store in vegetable crisper of the refrigerator. Stored this way cabbage holds its vitamin C well.

Q—Do oranges lose any vitamin C when squeezed and served as juice?

A—Yes, they do, and that's important to know when the price is high and your budget low. The U.S. Department of Agriculture's new bulletin (No. 90) "Conserving the Nutritive Values in Foods" explains:

"Fresh oranges lose edible material and therefore nutritive value — when they are squeezed and the juice strained. The edible yield of an orange as strained juice is only about two-thirds to three-fourths that of the orange eaten by sections.

Also, whole citrus fruits keep their nutrients well — several days at room temperature or slightly cooler (60 degrees to 70 degrees).

The Mature Parent

We No Longer 'Put Away'

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: My brother, 39, is a mental defective who must be cared for like a 5-year-old. Nobody ever dared mention institutionalizing him to my mother who still looks after him, still refuses to face his condition as she refused to face what it did to my girlhood and my father's life. Since my father's death all she can talk about is what will happen to my brother after she is gone. My husband says she expects us to take him into our home.

ANSWER: You won't. I think. When the time comes your protesting feelings will have crystallized into a clear resolve to institutionalize your brother.

Now I want to remind you that institutionalizing a severely retarded person today is not what it was 32 years ago.

Back then parents could not face institutionalizing a child like your brother because the facing demanded more than flesh and blood could stand. They had not only to face his permanent helplessness. They had also to face the probability that committing him to the care of strangers would expose him to abuse. So they tried to pretend that the defective condition did not exist. Like your mother, they chose to enslave their lives to care of the afflicted child in preference to a freedom made useless by intolerable imaginings. Their choice was, I think, understandable.

Today, it is different.

A visit to an institution like Connecticut's Southbury Training School could be the kind of mirror we humans feel at the idea of committing our afflicted relative to the care of strangers.

I therefore suggest that you explore the quality of the institutions your community makes available to you by writing for information to the National Association for Retarded Children, 386 Park Avenue South, New York City, New York.

In America today we are producing new thinking on the value of the lives of people in your family's position. An institution like the Connecticut one represents this thinking. It not only provides trained and dedicated care to its state's mentally defective people.

Its humane purpose is much bigger than that. It serves their families. By the kind of care it gives their afflicted member, it frees them from dread, and so liberates their energies to fruitfulness in their communities. It enables them to live hopefully instead of in hidden despair. It protects not just damaged lives, but all the healthy lives involved with them.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

My husband's firm is transferring him from this city where we have lived for six years. Our twin boys, 10, are looking forward to the move as we have leased a house with lots of grounds around it. But we have had only sulks and tantrums from our daughter, 14, since she heard the news. She wants us to board her with a friend's parents here. She can't seem to understand that we have to go where her father's company sends him . . .

ANSWER: I once went thru just such sulks with my child. And did very badly with them at the time. Now I know where I went off the track. I expected her to sympathize with our reasons for moving without first sympathizing with her reasons for staying.

Like mine, I expect that your daughter is happy with boys, girls, teachers, neighbors, tradespeople with whom she's been creating friendships for the past six years—and resents losing them.

My suggestion is that you and her father try to sympathize with this resentment instead of resisting it. Express your sympathy by encouraging your daughter to arrange holiday and weekend visits by her friends to your new home. After you have demonstrated your understanding of her situation, you can count on a little more for your own.

The prime cause of friction between us and children is the ease with which we forget that we have to initiate the acts and the attitudes we want from them.

If Dad wants Johnny to take the old newspapers down to the cellar, he is wise to begin the chore himself. If we want Janet to treat our guests more politely, we must take care to deliver special courtesy to hers. If we want sympathy for the causes which compel us to move to a new home, we must first give it to the child who wants to remain in the old one.

If we want to get fancy about this rule for parental leadership, I suppose we can call it "doing to others what we would have others do to us."

Psychiatrists now tell us that children's attitudes toward frustrations depend pretty much on the attitude of their frustrators. This is true of us, too. If the [illegible] forgets our birthday sympathize with our sulks we get over it. It is when others start justifying their right to ignore our feelings that we begin to get mad. As this child of yours is.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

The Drop-in Problem Again

DEAR ABBY: Since most of our friends are very close, we have made it a habit to drop in on each other at any old time and overlook the surroundings. As a result of this casual attitude, I'm afraid I have become a very poor hostess. The fact was realized when my doctor's wife called on me two days ago with a small gift for my new baby. Of all times for company to come! The weather was damp, so I kept all five children inside, and my living room was utter chaos. My daughter was ill, and I had pillows piled up at one end of the couch. The other end was piled high with clean laundry to be folded. The chairs were stacked with diapers to be folded. The carpet was out of sight under magazines, newspapers and toys. If I had been in the midst of straightening up the mess, it wouldn't have been so bad. But I was cutting out costumes for the children's Thanksgiving play as if I had nothing else to do. I was so embarrassed when this woman appeared at my door that I didn't even offer her a chair. I thanked her for the gift and also wrote her a thank-you note. Should I call and apologize? I can't forget how rude I must have appeared to her. I got up at five o'clock this morning worrying about what she must have thought of me. What should I do? —SO ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: Here we go again! Your home is your palace, and if you want to stack your laundry to the ceiling in your living room, it's your privilege. A caller who could have thrown you into such a tizzy is not "close" enough for a drop-in visit. She was thoughtless not to have given you at least an hour's notice. Call her when your house is in order some afternoon and invite her for coffee.

DEAR ABBY: When I invite my relatives for dinner, they ask, "What's the celebration?" Or, "Who else is coming?" They seem to expect me to sell them on the idea of coming, or perhaps they want guaranteed entertainment. Why can't relatives be as gracious as friends in accepting invitations? —MOLLY

DEAR MOLLY: Some are. You can't pick your relatives, but you CAN pick your dinner guests.

DEAR ABBY: I am 39 years old and the mother of three children. My husband and I have been happily married for 12 years. This summer while my husband was away on business I became interest in my best friend's husband. He has two children. My problem is obvious. Should we break up two homes involving five children and two innocent grown-ups to gain happiness for ourselves? Or should we sacrifice this love of ours for the sake of our families? BIG DECISION

DEAR BIG: Sacrifice your "love." Happiness can never be built on the heartbreak of others.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., for Abby's new booklet, "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS".

AVOID THAT WIRE — Spec. 4 Harold Bragg, 529th Signal Company, and Spec.-4 Louis Baum, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry, try to avoid the simulated electric wire surrounding their simulated prisoner-of-war compound. They did. The problem is one of those in the leadership reaction course experienced by students at the Ft. Carson Noncommissioned Officers Academy which graduated its first class recently in the new fiscal year. Students are graded on their reaction to problems including taking the initiative for the small groups that try each problem.

Polluted Water Infects U. S. Tourists

Four Americans contracted an infectious disease from bathing in polluted waters while abroad, Drs. Harry Most and Daniel F. Levine, New York City, reported today.

The four cases of schistosomiasis, produced by worms which penetrate the skin and invade the blood vessels, were described in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

They said the cases were the first of their kind reported in American tourists.

Three of the victims were a 49-year-old physician, his wife, and a traveling companion who bathed in a fresh water pool during a Carribean vacation, the authors said. The fourth case, a 29-year-old man, apparently contracted the disease in Egypt from bathing in water from canals or rivers.

The disease is contracted by persons washing clothes, bathing, wading, or working in contaminated water. Unsanitary sewage disposal is one of the important sources of these species of blood flukes in streams and rivers.

Schistsomiasis is distributed thru the world and is believed to affect about 150 million persons, making it probably the most important parasitic disease affecting man.

The disease is not entirely unknown in this country, the two physicians wrote in the Journal. Several thousand persons in the armed forces became infected in the Philippines during World War II and the disease has been encountered among some immigrants and a few persons who have lived or worked abroad, they said.

With increasing tourist travel, the disease may become more significant in this country, they said.

The Carribean travelers became ill after returning to this country, the authors said. The initial symptoms were generalized aches, chills and fever, they said. The physician became acutely ill and was hospitalized while his wife was moderately ill for a few days and the third patient was only mildly ill, they said.

Stolen Auto Returned; Runs Better Than Ever

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Horace Hancock reported his car stolen and when he got it back, the vehicle ran better than ever.

Police explained another motorist had telephoned a garage that his car was stalled at a shopping center parking lot and he was sending the keys to the garage.

The mechanic picked up a car, fixed it and called the owner. The owner said his car was still at the shopping center. His keys had worked in Hancock's car, taken by mistake by the mechanic.

Laundry Area Can Prove Dangerous To Children

Your laundry area, if unprotected, could provide an unhappy menu of bleaches, detergents and other laundering ingredients to your child, according to Dr. Albert H. Domm, a child safety expert.

The medical director for the Prudential Insurance Company's western home office singled out the laundry room as one of the most potentially dangerous areas in the ordinary household.

This is an area that is used once or twice a week and forgotten the rest of the time. Thus, he pointed out, it becomes an unsupervised area. And, altho tub sinks are no longer generally in use, idle washing machines and driers are still a source of fascination to the questing youngster.

In addition to obvious hazards the one of shock from a loose or bad connection should be considered!

Of more immediate danger are the many and various bottles of cleaning substances and detergents that a toddler, because of its attractive color or odor, might drink. Dr. Domm stressed that many children who are fortunate enough to survive ingestion of such poisons may be subjected to weeks of hospitalization and painful treatment and even left with permanent disabilities.

He urged all mothers to exercise caution when doing the family wash. Whereas an unguarded gun or forgotten knife is immediately recognized as perilous, laundering agents are often overlooked.

Not all poisons have a skull and crossbones on the label, the doctor stipulated, and in any event, pre-school children cannot read such labels.

He said many local health departments have available—free of charge—a home safety check list which parents can use to check their entire home, room by room.

Gene Marshall New Aspen Alps Club Manager

Gene Marshall announces that he has accepted a position as general manager of the new Aspen Alps Club at Aspen. Marshall, manager of the Garden of the Gods Club in summer, sent letters this week to prospective members of the new club, in all parts of the United States.

"This is the first exclusive ski resort in America," Marshall says.

"The Aspen Alps is a brand new $400,000.00 private membership club, with an international atmosphere featured in its decor. Membership will be by invitation only. It is located at the base of the Little Nell Chair Lift, in the heart of town, and will be open by Thanksgiving.

"The unique cocktail lounge-and-dining-area is called the Flemish Room, featuring a huge circular fire place and adjoining bar," he says. "Each suite has three bedrooms and two baths, a fireplace, dining area and complete kitchen. Private rooms with bath are also available as well as two room suites with one and two baths."

Marshall states that there is a year-round swimming pool on the patio, where poolside cocktail service will be featured.

According to Marshall, many reservations have already been received, including a number from members of the Garden of the Gods Club.

Last winter Marshall was manager of the Surf Club at Surfside, Fla. He has a wealth of club management experience and is also a world traveler and excellent skiier. He has spent several winters at famous ski resorts in Switzerland. He will return to the Garden of the Gods Club as manager when it re-opens May 1, 1964.

'Stethoscope' Will Protect Astronauts

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—A slender electronic stethoscope resting on the rumbling heart of a 10-story rocket will guard the lives of astronauts on America's upcoming two-man flights into space.

The device is known as a "malfunction detection system," and its job is just what the name implies—to look for troubles.

When spacemen begin thundering aloft in 7,000-pound Gemini space capsules starting early in 1965, the detecting instrument will ride along to watch for impending disaster. Astronauts will depend on it for those vital seconds that spell the difference between life and death.

The malfunction detection system proved Friday that it works fine in practice. An early prototype climbed into space aboard a 103-foot Titan-2 rocket that spanned 5,700 miles with a four-ton nose cone in barely 30 minutes.

The device really didn't have much to do. The silvery Titan-2 flew an unerring course from start to finish in a test that also appeared successful in a step toward ironing out vibrations that the federal space agency said could prove annoying to astronauts.

The first Cabinet appointee rejected by the Senate was Roger B. Taney June 24, 1834. He had been nominated by President Jackson as secretary of the treasury.

CSM Faculty Man Gets $38,400 Science Grant

A faculty member of the Colorado School of Mines has been granted $38,400 by the National Science Foundation to continue research into the effects of explosives and high-velocity projectiles on rock, it was announced Monday by Dr. Orlo E. Childs, Mines president.

Dr. John S. Rinehart's pioneering work in this field has produced much new knowledge about blasting techniques. Its ramifications have extended from theories about the formation of meteoritic particles to the uses of high explosives for die-forming metal parts.

A physicist, Dr. Rinehart has done much astronomical research and pioneered in several fields. He earned a residential citation during World War II for his work in development of the proximity fuse, and participated heavily in establishment of the first U.S. network of visual satellite tracking stations.

He and his family spent last year in Egypt, where he taught at Assiut and Cairo Universities as a Fullbright Professor. At Mines he is a member of the Mining faculty and director of the mining research laboratory.

The $38,400 grant continues for two years his study of the "Role of Stress Waves in Fracturing of Rock." It follows up a two-year grant of $32,000 made in 1961. His work is also being supported by other governmental and industrial grants.

Stress waves slam thru a section of solid material when it is hit by an exposion or a projectile from one of the guns in Dr. Rinehart's laboratory. The shock waves reflect from the surfaces. Where they intersect, shattering is likely to occur.

Shattering may be desirable in blasting, or highly undesirable in fortifications or bomb shelters. Dr. Rinehart's work has already made it possible to improve such structures.

With funds from various grants, Dr. Rinehart hopes to add to his staff three post-doctoral fellows to expand these studies.

Four other, smaller research grants have also been received from the Colorado School of Mines Research Foundation, according to Dr. Childs.

Two of these have been awarded to Dr. Ramon E. Bisque of the chemistry department. One, in the amount of $160, covers completion of a study expected to yield new geological knowledge about the weathering of one type of rock. The other, for $300, will continue a study of carbonates.

A grant of $1,000, with $300 earmarked to follow in January, was made to Dr. Michael A. Klugman for the completion of his study of Laramie anorthosite, a rock rich in lime.

Another grant of $500 is from foundation funds provided by the Midwest Oil Foundation. It will enable Dr. Joseph J. Finney of the geology department to purchase computer time for a study he is making in the x-ray crystallography of minerals.

Grants totaling $8,000 have been made for the project earlier by various sources.

Carson Sergeant Named as Army Assn. Secretary

S-Sgt. Eugene Ballheim, 1102 Holmes Dr., has been assigned as assistant executive secretary of the Pikes Peak Chapter, Association of the U. S. Army.

In his two years at Ft. Carson, Ballheim has been assigned to the office of the assistant chief of staff for personnel and was special processing detachment noncommissioned officer for U. S. Army Garrison most recently.

His 15½ Army years have included two tours with Army Air Defense Command headquarters at Ent Air Force Base; three years in Hawaii; Fort Baker, Calif., and 14 months on the ROTC staff at Indiana's Purdue University.

At Purdue, he was drill consultant of the drill team that appeared in the 1961 Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D. C., and won other honors.

In his new position, Ballheim will keep the records on the 1,600 members of Pikes Peak Chapter, Association of the U. S. Army, and work with chapter officers on helping it grow.

Army Shades Falcons, 14-10

THE ARMY STOPS A BLITZ ATTACK Back Dick Czarnota (27) hangs onto an Air Force pass as he is spilled by Army's back Tony Pyrz (10), head down on the ground, and line backer Lee Grasfeder (56) in Chicago Saturday.

were thwarted when a Terry Isaacson pass was intercepted by Army's Ray Hawkins on the five yard line.

It was a game mixed with crunching line play, especially from the Army side of the line, along with the spectacular before a crowd of 76,660. Air Force set up its go-ahead touchdown in the final quarter with a 47-yard pass from Isaacson to end Fritz Greenlee and Army scored its other TD after Waldrop had returned a AFA punt 78 yards to the one.

The game was the second between the two teams with the other ending in a 13-13 deadlock back in 1959 in New York's Yankee Stadium. It was also Coach Paul Dietzel's first inter-service victory after taking over at West Point last year. And the AFA's Ben Martin has yet to celebrate victory over either Army or Navy in three tries.

The win gave the cadets of West Point a 6-1 record, losing only to Minnesota of the Big Ten. Air Force now stands at 4-3 for the season going into next week's game in Falcon Stadium against UCLA. It was the first time this fall the Falcons have not been upset in a loss as the Black Knights were officially favored by three points —one more than the final margin.

After a somewhat dull first half in which the Air Force took a 3-0 lead into the intermission, the game turned into an exciting show in typical academy rivalry tradition. Kicking specialist Bart (Doc) Holaday had booted a 36-yard field goal in the second period.

With the Falcons trying to mount a drive that was stalled by a holding penalty at midfield, Waldrop put the winners on the scoreboard for the first time. He took Isaacson's punt on his own 20, bolted thru a group of would-be Air Force tacklers, and then broke into the open with only Isaacson standing between him and the goal line on his 78-yard return.

Waldrop faked Isaacson out of position at the 30 and tried to outrun the AFA defenders to the line, but a cutback allowed one of the Falcons to catch him from behind. On the third shot at the AFA line he was over, tho, from about a foot away.

Issacson brought his Falcons right back into the ball game, however, with the first and only passing drive that clicked. He gained a first down at midfield, himself, and then hit Greenlee who was running a sideline pattern down the left boundary. The sophomore end went 47 yards to the seven before being tackled, and probably would have gone all the way in except that he stumbled slightly when taking the pass.

One play lost yardage and then Isaacson ran to the two. On fourth down he just made it into the end zone by the nose of the ball. Holaday's conversion gave the Air Force a 10-7 lead with but 6:40 remaining.

Army's power, which had been obvious thruout the contest in the brutal line play, really exerted itself in the last drive that earned the cadets their victory. It took them a dozen plays to move the necessary 65 yards for the score after a return of 21 yards on Isaacson's punt. In the series there was only one incomplete pass mixed into the assortment of bulldozing runs into the AFA's tackles.

The Air Force had a last chance to stop the victory drive as Army had a fourth down situation at the 17 but Waldrop, who said he was only trying for the necessary two yards, muscled his way thru a couple tacklers and then headed for paydirt. AFA halfback John Lorber hit him at the goal line, but it was too late to stop the fine cadet back.

There was but one minute on the clock when the Falcons had their last opportunity to come out with the same type of thrill-packed finish that had upset both Washington and Nebraska this season. But after Isaacson had completed one aerial to Greenlee at the Army 39, his last try sailed into the waiting arms of Hawkins, who had come between the ball and the intended receiver, who was Greenlee again.

The winners plainly dominated the game as shown by the final statistics. They had a 16-10 advantage in first downs, 291-159 in total yards and an overwhelming 246-73 edge in rushing.

Waldrop was the leading rusher for both teams with 77 yards, but teammate and quarterback Carl Stichweh had 70. The best from the Air Force was Isaacson's 27 yards and he also contributed 86 more in the air to lead all individuals in total offense.

Isaacson, of course, was playing before a "home town" as the brilliant Air Force senior comes from suburban Oak Park, Ill. He completed five of 16 attempts thru the air, but still used his aerial game sparingly considering the obvious superiority of Army's line.

Army piled up a fairly wide margin in the statistics during the first half as both team jockied for field position. The cadets rang up 11 first downs and 202 total yards to but three first downs and 43 yards for the Falcons.

However, the really only important figure was the three points that Holaday put on the scoreboard with his 36-yard field goal with 9:15 left in the second period. It gave the Air Force the only score of the half.

Army had threatened the same thing late in the first period when a drive stalled out at the AFA 15 and the Black Knights' Dick Heydt tried to boot one from the 23 yard line, but the kick was short and off to the right against the 15 mph wind.

Each team had stopped the other in initial series, but then Stichweh got Army on the move, running several times from the "shotgun" formation. Twice on third down with long yardage he pulled his team out of the hole with wide sweeps off the tricky formation. They went as far as the 16, but elected to go for three on fourth down.

An interception of Stichweh early in the second chapter by end Joe O'Gorman gave the Falcons their first good field position of the game and they drove quickly to take advantage. O'Gorman brought the ball back to the 48.

The AFA got a first down at the Army 42 and then an obvious pass interference call against the Knights moved the ball down to the 21. Three pokes into the mighty Army line gained only three yards, and then Holaday booted his all-important field goal.

Army drove with the kickoff and appeared to be going in for a go-ahead score, but Waldrop fumbled the ball after going thru the line and the ball rolled into the end zone where tackle Gary Fausti recovered for a touchback and no harm. Stichweh, who has used the pass seldom, hit two in his drive to Walsrop and wingback John Seymour.

The cadets were even driving again when the halftime gun sounded to protect the Falcons' ill-fated lead. They went as far as the AFA 25, but Stichweh was thrown for a long loss as the half ended.

Now the Falcons return to Colorado for two of their final three games. Next Saturday it's UCLA in Falcon Stadium. Then the last road game at New Mexico, and the windup against Colorado at the AFA.

'We Were Simply Out Muscled' — Martin

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Chicago — Coach Ben Martin of the Air Force Academy summed up his team's 14-10 loss to bitter rival Army here late this afternoon by saying the Falcons "were just outmuscled by a real fine team."

There didn't need to be any excuses for the Falcons, who as usual were out-weighed considerably in nearly all positions. They had put on a thrilling display before a crowd of 76,660 here in Soldier Field and before a near nationwide television audience, but without President John Kennedy, who cancelled out of his appearance here.

"I guess it was a good game to watch if you didn't care who won," Martin said philosophically after the game. "After all, they were still behind with two minutes to go."

That pretty well told the story of the frantic finish that saw the Black Knights of the Hudson come from behind to win on a long drive with only 1:27 left on the clock. It was reminidful of upsets the Falcons have pulled off against Washington and Nebraska this season, and the upset by Maryland over the Air Force just two weeks ago.

"They just had too much momentum in the final drive," Martin said in the dressing room after a closed session with his players for some 20 minutes. "Our guys weren't fooled, it was just a matter of not being able to stop them. They couldn't do anything about it."

Martin felt that the 78-yard punt return by Army halfback Ken Waldrop was easily the key play of the game. He ran the punt back to the Air Force one yard line and on the third try from that distance he took it over to pull his team from behind.

Army, tho, had to come from behind again in the final period with a 65-yard ground drive after AFA quarterback Terry Fritz Greenlee for 47 yards and then the fine signal caller ran over for the score to give the airmen a 10-7 advantage with 6:40 remaining.

"That Waldrop is a real inspirational type player," Martin said. "He's big and strong and can get that extra yardage after he's hit."

The Air Force coach thought that Army's line had more balance than did Nebrask's, a team the Falcons upset 17-13 altho the Huskers had even more of a weight advantage than the Black Knights of coach Paul Dietzel.

"Over all it was the pounding in the line we took that tipped the game," Martin continued. "Our first unit line was outweighed by 15 pounds and our second by 25 pounds."

Martin said he wanted to get his first line into the game on Army's final drive downfield, but he felt they needed all the rest they could get before he sent them in to ease the weight difference at least somewhat.

"They didn't do anything we hadn't expected," Martin said. "They just did it real well."

That, of course, included the "shotgun" type offense used by Army on several occasions, in used and the quarterback takes a direct snap from center as in the single wing. In fact, the Air Force pulled the same formation a few times - without much success.

Across the field in the Army dressing room, Dietzel was making over his victorious players like they had just won a great war. They had given him his first win in inter-service rivalry after a loss to Navy last season.

"It was a great game by a great bunch of guys," Dietzel gushed. "I thought they beat an excellent Air Force team out there today.

"Our team really came of age out there. Now we know we have a good team," Dietzel said. "And wasn't that Waldrop just great?"

The Army coach then asked what the final score, saying all he knew was that they won. When asked to compare, Dietzel said he thought that the Air Force was a better team than the Colorado U. team his LSU squad had beaten in the Orange Bowl before he transferred to Army.

"Colorado didn't have the line speed that this team did," Dietzel said. "Against Colorado, we could just out-distance them —but not this team."

He called it the "wildest game" he has ever been associated with, referring to the way the game changed complexion so many times in the second half.

"Games like this could sure make an old man of you fast," Dietzel summed it up.

Waldrop, who scored both of Army's touchdowns and was the game's top hero, confessed that on the winning play he was "only going for the two." Army had a fotruh and two situation on the AFA 17, but he broke loose of a couple tacklers and went all the way in for the score.

Chargers Overwhelm Jets, 53-7

NEW YORK (AP) —Veteran quarterback Tobin Rote, making effective use of flanker back Lance Alworth, passed for three touchdowns and scored once as the Western Division leading San Diego Chargers overwhelmed the New York Jets 53-7 Saturday night in an American Football League Game.

The Chargers' easy triumph was marred by a fist fight late in the fourth quarter with San Diego linemen Ernie Ladd and Joe Schmidt trading punches and wrestling with New York guard Dan Ficca. Ladd, a 6-foot 9, 317 pounder was ejected along with Schmidt. Later, Dick Guesman of the Jets was ejected for roughing.

Rote used Alworth mostly as a decoy, but hit the fleet flanker with five passes that gained 180 yards. One went for a touchdown on a 28-yard pass play in the third period after the Chargers had charged to a 24-0 halftime lead.

Rote completed 11 of 18 passes for 221 yards and two touchdowns in the first half.

Determined Huskies Crush Southern Cal

By JOHN R. LONG
United Press International

SEATTLE (UPI) — Quarterback Bill Douglas passed for one touchdown and set up another with a 53-yard pass-run play Saturday as the fired up Washington Huskies defeated Southern California 22-7, and took a giant stride toward the Rose Bowl.

A highly partisan crowd of 55,800 saw Douglas put the Huskies ahead 16-7 just before the halftime when he connected with a 21 yard scoring pass to end Ralph Winters. The touchdown drive covered 73 yards in nine plays.

Douglas was the key figure in a 76 yard scoring drive in the fourth period. He and halfback Dave Kopay hooked up with that 53 yard effort to put the ball on the Trojan 11, and Kopay sliced over from four yards out three plays later.

It was evident at the opening whistle that Washington did not come out to lose. The Huskies scored on the fourth play of the game when guard Koll Hagen blocked Ernie Jones' punt from the Southern Cal 22 and tackle Mike Briggs fell on the ball in the end zone.

Centennial Scuttles Wasson Hopes

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

PUEBLO — Pueblo Centennial's land-cruising greyhounds shot Wasson's dozing defenses full of holes in an explosive first half here Saturday night as the fleet Bulldogs turned a much-anticipated contest for the South Central League leadership into a 41-7 rout.

A crowd of over 11,000 actually saw two separate contests, but the high-geared Bulldogs won the one that counted. All of the 48 points were packed into the first two periods with Centennial's 41 being the largest total ever recorded against a Wasson team. After the Thunderbirds had time to catch their breath at intermission, the game settled to a banging ground duel that ended in a scoreless final two quarters.

The victory, which shattered a winning streak of 14 straight in the SCL for Wasson, moved Centennial into command in the 1963 race. The Bulldogs now own a one game bulge and need only defeat Peublo South in their windup battle next Friday to claim the title. Wasson's defending champs meanwhile must defeat Publo East Friday and hope for an upset by South which would force a tie in the fianl standings and provide the T-Birds with another shot at Centennial.

Wasson obviously entered Saturday's crucial battle with a bit of a hangover from a last week's 27-0 win over Palmer. At least the T-Birds were a step late in their defeasive reactions all during the first half and as the Bulldogs quickly proved — that is a fatal error against a team with Centennial's speed.

All of Centennial's fine backs were in on the act. Jet-smooth Bob Armijo gained 93 yards in just six carries, pounding Dave Mutz added another 66 in 13 attempts and Luther Nava guided the quick-hitting attack expertly in addition to flinging a 39 yard scoring pass. In addition the Bulldog line was completely dominant during those lethal first two quarters.

The Thunderbirds had a heroic performance from fullback Mike Teague who refused to toss in the towel. The 156 pound senior gained 86 yards in 21 trips to move his total for the season to 888, smashing the one season Wasson record of 869 set by Doug Dienelt in 1961.

As the old saying goes, the turning point Saturday night was the opening kickoff. Jim Smith returned that to the 26 for Wasson and the Thunderbirds fumbled the ball away on the first down from scrimmage. It took Centennial four plays to move in from the T-Birds' 27 with Mutz cracking the final six. Charles Mastrini then added the first of his string of conversions.

Wasson had the ball for four quick downs this time before punting. Luther Nava tucked it in at his own 20, flew toward the sidelines as the Thunderbirds missed a couple of early shots, and scampered 80 yards down the sidelines to post the second touchdown less than five minutes into the game.

A pass interception toward the end of the first quarter set up Centennial's third score. Armijo's 36 yard blast over the right side moved the ball to the Wasson 16 and Steve Trinklein roared across from the two a couple of downs later.

Teague, who never has learned the meaning of the word quit, raced 53 yards with the next kickoff to move the T-Birds into position and then scored himself on a 10 yard burst around right end. That narrowed the margin to 20-7 and Thunderbird followers sensed a possible comeback.

Centennial would have none of it, however. A drive from the 39 had carried into Wasson territory when Nava launched a long pass downfield which Wayne Woodyard gathered in on a 39 yard scoring play. Following the kickoff, Wasson appeared to be launching another drive when Teague had the ball wrested loose at the Centnnial 45 and the Bulldogs' John Scheichl scooped it up and raced 55 yards for still another score.

The Pueblo team kept its perfect record of having scored every time it touched the ball after Wasson handed over possession at its own 45 when a fourth down play failed. Armijo got this one on a 25 yard scamper up the middle on fourth down.

The T-Birds refused to buckle, however, and gave the Bulldogs a stiff battle in the second half. Wasson used up much of the third period on a drive from its own 24 which carried to the Centennial four before grinding to a halt. The Bulldogs, who employed reserves much of the final quarter, crossed midfield only twice after intermission and never threatened seriously.

The Thunderbirds only big break of the evening even ended up turning against them. In the final minute of play Bob Wilson scooped up a wild pitchout and returned it more than 50 yards for an apparent touchdown but a clipping penalty at the 25 called it back. At the time of the infraction, Wilson was streaking for the end zone, fully 10 yards ahead of any opposition players.

Oregon State Slips Past Stanford

By HOWARD APPLEGATE

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Senior specialist Steve Clark's first period field goal stood up for a 10-7 Oregon State football victory over fumbling Stanford Saturday.

Clark's 21-yard kick opened the scoring and proved decisive as Stanford was unable to hold onto the ball in the second half.

A 66 - yard punt return by sophomore halfback Craig Ritchey accounted for the Indians' touchdown. It came on the last play of the opening period and put his team ahead 7-3.

But the Beavers came back to forge ahead to stay on quarterback Gordon Queen's 2-yard second period touchdown pass to Len Frketich.

Concannon Leads BC Over Vandy

BOSTON (UPI)—Boston College quarterback Jack Concannon wrote another chapter in his personal point rampage Saturday, scoring one touchdown and throwing for another in a 19-6 victory over winless Vanderbilt.

Concannon, who also raced 26 yards on a keeper play to set up the third Boston College touchdown.

A curtained crowd of 17,700 saw the senior quarterback spark his team to its fourth victory against two defeats while Vanderbilt was dropping its sixth start of the season.

Concannon's nine yard scoring pass to halfback Bob Budzinski to cap a 46 yard, 13-play Boston College scoring drive and Marty Dimezza's conversion kick in the first quarter proved to be enough for victory.

U.S. Netters Take Davis Cup Lead

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston scored crushing straight - set victories in the opening singles Saturday which sent the United States into a 2-0 lead over India in the Davis Cup interzone tennis finals.

First, McKinley, the bounding, rocket-hitting Wimbledon champion, blasted Premjit Lall off the court 6-4, 6-3, 6-0. Then Ralston, resorting to trick drop shots and lobs, completely confused India's world-ranking ace, Ramanathan Krishnan, 6-4, 6-1, 13-11.

Now the Americans need only to win Sunday's doubles match to clinch a challenge round berth against Australia Dec. 26-28—the first for the United States since 1960.

U.S. hopes for recapturing the symbol of world tennis supremacy are the brightest in years.

In the doubles, McKinley and Ralston, who hold the U.S. National championship, play Lall and Jaidip Mukerjea, with an American victory regarded as a foregone conclusion. The two young Yanks are now rated the best doubles combination in amateur tennis.

India apparently conceded defeat when it benched its best player, Krishnan, for the doubles and decided to play Mukerjea for the sake of giving the latter additional experience.

The final two singles are scheduled Monday, with Ralston opposing Lall and McKinley meeting Krishnan. If the United States should win the doubles, as expected, then these matches would become little more than exhibitions. The tie is a best-of-five match series.

The challenge round is scheduled at Adelaide, Australia. The American team, led by nonplaying captain Bob Kelleher of Los Angeles, plans to leave for the Down Under continent immediately and play in at least two of the preliminary state tournaments.

Pro Grappler Slated To Tangle With Bear

Victor, the nationally-famous wrestling bear, will be featured in a special event this week in the professional mat show Tuesday night at the City Auditorium. There will be two other singles matches and the main event of the evening will be a tag-team match.

Victor is probably the best known of performing animals as he has toured the nation with his trainer, Tuffy Trusdale, a top-notch wrestler himself. He recently was in an exhibition at a local used car lot, taking on all comers with a prize of $100 offered to anyone who could pin the bear. There were no winners.

Facing the 400-pound bruin will be Wildman Bill Fletcher, one of the roughest matmen in the business. Fletcher, a 220-pounder from Seattle, Wash., is currently undefeated in 16 matches in Colorado this season. He says he "fears no man or beast" and is willing to tangle with Victor providing he has a guarantee of $100 for the match.

In the first match of the evening, Alex Perez of Amarillo, Tex., will test his strength against Jose Quintero of Havana, Cuba. This will be for one fall with a 15-minute time limit.

The semi-main event features Victor's trainer, Truesdale, a 208-pound veteran from Jacksonville, Fla., against Ricardo Cortez, a very popular wrestler in the area from last season who hails from Juarez, Mex. This will also be for one fall with a 30-minute limit.

Then in the final main event, Rocky Smith will team with Perez against Quintero and Joe Gump in a tag-team match for best two of three falls with an hour time limit.

Smith is fresh from a victory in last week's five-man free-for all in which the ring colapsed from the weight of the huge wrestlers. He has yet to taste defeat in Colorado and will be teamed with a former boxer in the 230-pound Perez from Texas. Perez likes to stick with rules and regulations, as does Smith, but both can be rough when opponents start bending the rules.

Gump is a newcomer to the region, coming from the wooded area of Canada where he has been a lumberjack. His first action in the U.S. was in Minneapolis where he was a main event performer for 17 straight weeks and won over 90 per cent of his bouts.

Gump like the rough-house tactics, as does his partner, Quintero. The latter, a bearded badman from Cuba, will come into the ring weighing 230 pounds, five more than Gump.

Tickets for the pro wrestling will be on sale at Blick's Sporting Goods Store and Ring Military, both downtown. They will also be available at the City Auditorium box office next Tuesday night before the show.

Tar Heels Bury Georgia

By ROBERT S. McNEILL
United Press International

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (UPI) — North Carolina smothered Georgia's fearsome passing attack Saturday and countered with a bullseye aerial barrage of its own that buried the Bulldogs 28 to 7.

With quarterback Junior Edge hitting on 15 of 20 passes and halfback Ken Willard shredding the Georgia line, the Tar Heels moved the ball almost at will. Edge passed for one touchdown and scored another.

Georgia's only touchdown came in the second period on a drive of 65 yards—all but 10 of them courtesy of North Carolina penalties.

New Mexico Cruises Over CSU, 25-0

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP Colorado State University's rushing offense got into motion as usual Saturday but never at the right times, and its defense let New Mexico through for a 25-0 victory in a non-conference football game.

The Colorado team had further misfortune in the re-injury of halfback Norman Burkett, who played with a partly healed shoulder injury received in last week's 21-14 victory over Texas Western. But there was encouragement in the performance of a third-string quarterback, Tom Miller, who ran for 31 yards and completed four out of five passes for 24 yards in a final, near-scoring flury by CSU.

New Mexico also had a bright showing from a previously little-known player. Joe Harris, junior tailback from Oberlin, Ohio, was the Lobos' leading rusher with 110 net yards.

Bucky Stallings, a 204-pound fullback from San Antonio, scored twice for the visitors. He plunged one yard in the second quarter after the Lobos went 73 yards in nine plays, and early in the fourth period he scored on a six-yard run.

CSC Blats New Mexico Highlands

GREELEY, Colo. (AP)—Quarterback Ed Pittock spured Colorado State College with three touchdown runs in the first 20 minutes and the Bears rolled on to a 55-0 football victory over New Mexico Highlands Saturday.

Highlands, without a victory in seven starts, had no defense to match the faster backs performing for C-State, which logged its third victory of the year against four losses.

Halfback Frank Dabney rambled 54 yards around left end for the game's longest touchdown run. Reserve quarterback Mike Crissey chipped in with a 25-yard touchdown trip after he was trapped on an attempted pass play and then wriggled away from his pursuers.

Tech Raps Duke Via Field Goals

By DAVID M. MOFFIT
United Press International

ATLANTA (UPI) — Georgia Tech's Billy Lothridge set a national field goal record Saturday in a dazzling triple-threat performance that led the Yellow Jackets to a 30-6 homecoming victory over Duke.

The Tech senior quarterback kicked field goals of 31, 38 and 33 yards to raise his collegiate career total to 19 — two more than the previous record set by Auburn's Ed Dyas from 1958 to 1960.

But place kicking was just one of Lothridge's many talents. He threw two touchdown passes, kicked three extra points, turned in numerous long rungs and punted for an average of 46 yards.

Georgia Tech broke up what had been a close game late in the third period when Lothridge, after a 16-yard run, passed 27 yards to halfback Johnny Fresham for a touchdown and then, about two minutes later, passed 22 yards to end Frank Sexton for another.

Duke completely dominated the first 20 minutes of the game and took a 6-0 lead late in the first period when sophomore halfback John Lucas powered over from four yards to climax a 64-yard march highlighted by the running and passing of sophomore quarterback Scotty Glacken.

There was no stopping the Yellow Jackets after Gresham brought them to life midway through the second period with a 38-yard run on a double reverse.

Fullback Ray Mendheim took a pitchout from Lothridge and went in from five yards out for Tech's first score. Lothridge added the extra point and his first two field goals before the half ended.

Longhorns Shade Scrappy SMU To keep Unbeaten Mark Intact

By ED FITE
UPI Sports WWriter

DALLAS (UPI) — Tommy (Thunderbird) Ford stampeded top-ranked Texas 76 yards with the opening kickoff—the sixth straight game the Longhorns have scored at the first opportunity—and shoeless Tony Crosby's kicking kept Texas unbeaten in a tight 17-12 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday.

Crosby's 34-yard field goal in the final second of the first half and his two conversion kicks provided the difference for the third consecutive Saturday as Texas was forced to desperate defensive measures to stave off a rallying SMU passing flurry in the final quarter.

The victory kept alive Texas' hopes of a successful defense of its Southwest Conference crown and set up a showdown next Saturday at Austin against lead-sharing Baylor, which shattered Texas Christian 32-13 at Waco Saturday.

Ford, the games' leading ground gainer with 113 yards in 13 carries, got 75 yards of it in the initial Texas surge, include a 50-yard scamper on the game's first play from scrimmage. Wingback Phil Harris went on to cap that drive with a three-yard touchdown run, but Ford got his chance to score in the second quarter from two yards out when Texas recovered an SMU fumble on the Mustang six.

SMU's quarterback tandem of Danny Thomas and Mac White kept Texas off balance with their passes. Their success may bode bad times ahead for the Longhorns next Saturday when they must face Baylor's tremendous aerialist Don Trull.

Thomas hit bouncing Billy Gannon with a 22-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter and White connected on another 22-yarder to the same Gannon in the final quarter.

Penalties and fumbles hurt the two - touchdown underdog Mustangs chances of staging their third major upset of the season to go with triumphs over favored Air Force and Navy. They lost the ball three times on fumbles and once on an interception.

Indiana Startles Gophers

By BOB DODOR
United Press International

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Indiana's Tom Tom Nowatzke and Don Dilly punched holes in Minnesota's once-proud defense Saturday and helped the Hoosiers to a 24-6 Big Ten football triumph over the Gophers.

It was Indiana's first conference victory and the most decisive triumph by an Indiana team over Minnesota since 1946.

Indiana's offensive ace Marv Woodson wasn't even in uniform because of an injury, but the Indiana offense didn't suffer a bit in the hands of Nowatzke and Dilly.

Nowatzke, a 6-3, 220-pound junior, was virtually unstoppable. He gained 138 yards in 24 tries and contributed three conversions and a field goal to the Hoosier scoring surge.

Nowatzke's rushes helped set the stage for Indiana's first two touchdowns and he never failed to deliver key yardage on Indiana last down drives.

Dilly scored twice for Indiana. His touchdown came on a five yard dash off tackle. Nowatzke's 32-yard run put the bill in scoring position. The touchdown came early in the second period and left the outcome without question as Indiana stayed in command the est of the way.

Michigan Pulls Upset Over Northwestern

By VITO STELLINO
United Press International

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Unheralded Michigan combined the slick passing of Bob Timberlake with a stout defense Saturday to hand Northwestern a stunning 27-6 upset.

Timberlake, starting only his second game this season because he's been bothered by a sore shoulder and couldn't throw, flipped three touchdown passes to Jack Clancy, John Handerson and Jim Conley.

Henderson also dashed 23 yards with an intercepted Tom Myers' pass for the other Michigan touchdown before a delighted homecoming crowd of 51,088.

The Michigan line kept the pressure on Myers, the highly touted Northwestern passer, and set up two interceptions in the second half.

The Wolverines also recovered a pair of Wildcat fumbles.

Northwestern did score in the final five seconds on a five-yard pass from sub - quarterback Dave Milam to Jim Proffitt but Michigan had already iced the game. It was the first big Ten win of the season for the Wolverines, who now have a conference mark 1-2-1 and 2-3-1 overall.

THE BOARD WAS WRONG

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Dodgers used a bit of psychological warfare on the Yankees during the recent World Series. Two hours before the first game here the electric scoreboard showed all zeros except in the error column. That spot showed four errors for the Yankees.

The Yankees made only one error in the four-game sweep and it cost them the last game and the series.

Rebels Rake Over LSU, 37-3

By CARROLL P. TROSCLAIR
United Press International

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—The Mississippi Rebels leaped toward the Southeastern Conference football championship Saturday by routing old rival Louisiana State 37-3 before 67,000 shocked fans at Tiger Stadium.

Fullback Fred Roberts scored three touchdowns for the undefeated Rebels while the big Mississippi line was stopping LSU's highly - rated running backs all afternoon.

Ole Miss scored almost at will to make up for years of frustration in Tiger stadium.

The big victory was the fifth straight for Ole Miss this season and gave the Mississippians a 4-0 record in conference play. Only Tulane and Mississippi State stand between the Rebels and another SEC championship and almost certain bowl bid.

Roberts, a 205-pound senior from Morton, Miss., scored touchdowns on runs of two, three, and two yards. Ole Miss quarterback Jim Weatherly accounted for the other two touchdowns with a 23-yard pass to Billy Carl Erwin and with a two-yard end sweep. Erwin scored the other Ole Miss points with a 22-yard field goal and four extra points.

Mississippi dominated play in the first half. Before the game was three minutes old Rebel tackle Cecil Ford blocked Danny Neumann's quicck kick on the LSU 12 and end Reed Davis recovered for the rebels.

Roberts later crashed over the middle for Ole Miss' first touchdown.

Penn State Edges Maryland

By BOB SERLING
United Press International

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) —Aggressive Penn State edged Maryland 17-15, Saturday on two touchdown passes by Pete Liske and a crunching defense that kept the Terrapins' passing attack under control until the closing moments.

Stunned and surprised by a Maryland ground attack that produced an early 7-0 lead, the beefy Lions dominated the game by jolting the Terps into fumbles that wrecked their offense.

Penn State's first two points, a safety in the second period, turned into the victory margin and they were set up by the Lions' defense. After Frank Hershey drilled a punt out of bounds on the Maryland one, state's heavy line smacked Dick Shiner into a fumble recovered by Jerry Fishman in the end zone.

The visitors scored again a few minutes later when Liske threw a 14-yard TD pass to end Dick Anderson and passed again to Bill Bowes for the two-point conversion.

Liske then nailed the game away in the final period with a 66-yard bomb to halfback Gary Klingensmith who caught the ball on the Terp 25 and scampered the rest of the way.

Baylor Thrashes TCU, 32-13

By KYLE THOMPSON
United Press International

WACO, Tex. (UPI)—Baylor's sensational Don Trull scored three touchdowns and passed for a fourth Saturday to lead the Bears to a 32-13 Southwest Conference victory over Texas Christian University.

Trull, the nation's leading passer, completed 20 of 40 passes Saturday for a net of 273 in the air. His running and passing personally accounted for enough to give Baylor its fourth straight league win without a loss.

The Baylor victory set up a showdown between the Bears and nationally top-rated University of Texas next week in Austin, Tex., for what should be the determining factor who goes to the 1964 Cotton Bowl game.

Trull got his usual slow start Saturday, completing only two of 12 pass attempts in the first quarter. But he began hitting more in the second period and engineered the Bears to the TCU 11 where he ran it across on an option play for the first score of the game.

Texas Christian went ahead before the half ended when left end Marvin Chipman scampered 54 yards to score and TCU added the extra point. Horned Frog quarterback Gray Mills raised the TCU margin to 13-6 early in the second half on a three-yard pass play, but Trull appeared to be warmed up by this time and he opened up for four paydirt drives before the final gun sounded.

Baylor's Larry Elkins, who has been setting Southwest Conference records in pass receiving, nabbed 10 Trull passes for 117 yards.

Cornell Rallies To Topple Columbia

ITHACA, N. Y. (AP) — Gary Wood scored a touchdown from the one with 14 seconds remaining and halfback Bob Baker ran over for the two-point conversion that gave Cornell a stunning 18-17 victory over Columbia in an Ivy League football game Saturday.

Adams State Drubs CC, 47-6

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado Colleges' defenses, overrun by ground - pounding Western State a week ago in Gunnison, absorbed a 47-6 aerial shock from pass-minded Adams State College in a Rocky Mountain Conference game at Washburn Field Saturday afternoon.

The Tigers of Jerry Carle, fired-up in the early going Saturday, played the mountainous Indians on even terms for more than a quarter as the Alamosa club attempted to establish its ground game. The end came quickly, however, when Adams State quarterbacks Carl Fetters and Jim Paronto took to the air and played catch with a number of receivers in the CC secondary for the remainder of the afternoon.

Equally guilty in the cannonading of the CC defenses was still another quarterback, Ron Wieser. Wieser was shuttled to halfback duties for Saturday's circus and from that position caught six passes for a total of 178 yards and three touchdowns. But by the time he was called to the bench in the second half, the Tigers were thru.

Sharing top billing with this offensive trio was the Indians' hulking defense which chopped the Tigers' running game apart from the opening kick. CC managed only 33 net yards rushing in 32 attempts — a revealing figure to say the least.

As usual, Carle's forces fared better upstairs. Quarterbacks Cubby Welch and Warner Reeser combined for 14 completion yards. Reeser, the freshman from Denver who returned to duty after a two game absence, directed the Tigers' lone scoring drive in the third period.

Overall, the Indians piled up a whopping edge in statistics. Paronto hit for 225 yards of passing by himself and Fetters added another 112 before being ejected from the game in the second quarter. That latter incident could have been one of the worst breaks of the day for CC as it brought the rocket-armed Paronto onto the scene.

In addition to the 337 passing yards, Adams State managed 180 on the ground and Paronto had 77 of those in just four carries. That gave the Alamoa team a total offense of 511 yards to 166 for the Tigers.

The two football teams enjoyed only slightly more action during the afternoon than the officials, who should have been assessed a delay-of-game penalty themselves. With some 21 infractions and unusually long conversation over the majority, the game consumed some two hours and 50 minutes. Included in the hanky-panky were penalties that called back three touchdowns. However, Adams State also won that contest, having two returned to just one for CC.

Aside from the fact that they have been giving away an unhealthy edge in manpower in the RMC this fall, the Tigers have not been blessed with the best of breaks. This held true Saturday as, after CC had held Adams State in impressive fashion on the first sieries of downs and forced a punt, the Tigers fell prey to a pass interception at their own 12 which 240 pound center Larry Snyder captured and lumbered into the end zone.

The Indians did very little else offensively until taking over after shutting off a Tiger drive late in the first quarter at their own 34. It took four plays to score with Fetters hitting Eieser on a 34 yard pass play for the six points. Later in the period, another quick strike wounded the Tigers, further. This time the Indians scored in three plays from their own 15 with a Paronto to Wieser pass covering the final 43.

Paronto hit Wieser on a 39 yard scoring pass early in the third period and shortly after that CC launched its scoring drive. With the aid of two 15 yard penalties, the Tigers moved from their own 35 to cross the goal in seven plays. Reeser set up the touchdown with a13 set up the touchdown with a 13 yard pass to Farrell Howell at the Indians' one. The CC quarterback then sneaked over on the following down.

Paronto's 53 yard run after being seemingly trapped behind the line set up the Indians' next tally and the slick quarterback then combined with freshman end Don Alley for the final two tosses of four and 33 yards.

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP)—Western State College wrapped up the Rocky Mountain Conference football championship Saturday with a 23-7 conquest of Colorado Mines.

Mines succeeded in stalling the Mountaineers' next drive but Duane Sands booted a 13-yard field goal to run the lead to 10-0.

Western's sturdy defense stopped the Miners on the 5 yard line in the first period and a fumble in the last five minutes ended a Mines' drive on Western's 3.

Cheyenne Downs Florence; Officially Cops PPL Title

By DICK FOSTER

FLORENCE — The Indians of Cheyenne Mountain displayed a relatively slower offense than in previous outings this season, but it was still enough to overcome the Huskies, 27-0 in the Tribe's Pikes Peak League finale Saturday.

Obviously, the absence of two of the Indians' crack backs was felt. Bob Richardson was injured on the first play of the game and went to the sidelines for the afternoon, and Greg Cramblit, the league's top rusher did not appear among Cheyenne ranks, for some reason still unknown.

Cheyenne nevertheless managed to muster one touchdown in the first half, amid tough Florence defense, and the Indians came back in the second half to run away with the game. Veteran quarterback Gary Graham led his team, running two touchdowns himself and passingfor piled on a Florence fumble in the end zone.

The tribe started slow and continued at a plodding pace until late in the first half, which was for the most part a battle of defenses. Florence had penetrated to Cheyenne's two yard line where they were held. Cheyenne took over from there and moved to the Huskies' 17 where that drive died. Florence again got the ball and moved to their own 46, but Cheyenne took over there when necessary first down yardage was not made. Graham connected on a 43 yard pass to Rich McCurdy, and on the next play passed to Al Kemper for a three yard touchdown play.

The second half was a different story. Cheyenne's defense looked sharp as they landed on three of four Florence fumbles and picked off two passes. The Huskies were completely buried. They gained a scant 13 yards, and the whole second half, save four plays, took place inside their 30 yard line.

Offense was some better too, but as a whole, it was the Indians' "off" day for offense. The Tribe picked up only 110 yards all afternoon, 68 of which came in the second half. They were able to capitalize on only three of the many breaks provided them by the Cheyenne defensive squad. This could be blamed in part on the absence of two prominent backs, but some credit would have to go to a rugged Florence defense.

The Indians' put their second score on the board with three minutes left in the third quarter. Florence was jammed back to its five yard line and tried a quick kick from there. It went only six yards before going out of bounds. Cheyenne took over and Graham crossed paydirt five plays later from seven yards out.

Early in the fourth period, the Indians were forced to give up possession of the ball when they couldn't gain necessary first down yardage. Florence had the ball for just one play, on which they fumbled, and a host of Cheyenne defensemen recovered in the Huskies' end zone.

With 47 seconds left in the game, Graham scored from 12 yards out on an end run. Cheyenne had taken over one play earlier when Florence stalled on their own 12.

The victory kept the Tribe among the ranks of the undefeated, with a clean 8-0 record. At the same time, the Indians did a favor for their Harrison High neighbors by defeating Florence, for it now gives the Panthers undisputed second place in the loop standings.

RMKC Sets Mutuel Handle Record Friday

Colorado Springs Rocky Mountain Kennel Club presented the final program of the greyhound racing last night with the running of the 15th Annual Au Revoir.

Playing to a record crowd, the closing of the meet saw new records hung up in various departments. On opening night, August 23rd, an attendance of 4119 topped all previous opening night crowds since minors were excluded from attendance.

The new peak course record time was established on September 4th during the current meet when Cleveland's Choice orbited its 1710 feet in a time of 31.90.

With the establishing of the new course, the record of Joe Mamino's Amperex of 30.49 on the old five-sixteenths course became a matter of recorded history of RMKC as this course is no longer being used.

The current meet has already seen the previous highest mutuel handle figure for a single night topped. This previous record had been set on the closing night of the 1961 meet with a $229,626.00 figure which was bettered by a $235,513.00 figure on last Friday night.

Attendance will be some ahead of the all time record when the final tally is made.

RMKC's publicity department said last night that a Final Report On Kennel Standings, as well as information on high and low pay-offs in all catagories is being prepared and will be released to the press the first of this coming week.

Auburn Shuts Out Florida

United Press International

AUBURN (UPI) — Auburn gave quarterback Jimmy Sidle a doughty defense to gamble with Saturday and he led the 7th-ranked Tigers to a 19-0 victory over Florida with his end sweeps and darting passes.

A record homecoming crowd of 47,000 watched Sidle baffle the Florida defense behind the Auburn stampede. The newfound Auburn defense held the Gators to just one first down in the first half and enabled the Tigers to continue as one of the few unbeaten, untied teams in the nation.

The first Tiger touchdown came on a broken field dance by Sidle for 20 yards in the third period. Sophomore line backer Bill Cody of Orlando, Fla., ran 42 yards with a pass interception for the second touchdown in the final period.

Rice held a 3-0 lead at halftime on Larry Rice's 29-yard field goal. Tech was on the move late in the third quarter when reserve quarterback Ronnie Cervenka swiped a pass intended for Red Raider halfback Donny Anderson and zipped down the slideline untouched.

Two-Point PAT Try Costs Mizzou Loss to Nebraska

By WILLIAM COOK
United Press International

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI)—Missouri University's two-point conversion attempt in the fourth period failed Saturday and the Nebraska Cornhuskers salvaged a 13-12 Big Eight Conference football victory.

Before a record crowd of 50,500 paid homecoming fans, Nebraska marched 76 yards in 11 plays to open the scoring. Quarterback Dennis Claridge scored from five yards out, and Rudy Johnson kicked a crucial extra point.

Halfback Ken Boston recovered a fumble in the end zone on the first play of the second period for Missouri's initial touchdown. Bill Leistritz missed the extra point.

Nebraska scored again in the fourth period on Johnson's one-yard run, but Dave Theisen missed the conversion.

After the ensuing kickoff, quarterback Gary Lane hit John Sezcik for a 14-yard pass. He followed it with a 53-yard touchdown aerial to Boston, setting the stage for the 2-point conversion try.

With Nebraska leading 13-12, the underdog Tigers elected to go for the victory instead of a tie. Lane tossed accurately to end Jim Waller, but Nebraska's Bruce Smith broke up the pass at the last second.

Johnson, whose extra point won the ball game, was equally impressive as a ball carrier. He carried 19 times for 126 yards.

Missouri's first touchdown was set up by Claridge's poor, 10-yard punt, which Missouri took on the Nebraska 33.

On the next play, Lane tossed a 29-yard pass to halfback Ted Saussele. Fullback Gus Otto fumbled into the end zones on the following play, but Boston recovered the ball for the Tiger score.

Nebraska	7	0	0	6—13

Neb—Claridge 5 run (Johnson kick)

Kansas Wallops Rival Kansas State, 34-0

By JACK BRANNAN
United Press International

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Gale Sayers scored two touchdowns, one of them on a 63-yard punt return in the second minute of the game, to lead Kansas to a 34-0 victory over Kansas State Saturday in the 61st renewal of their intra-state rivalry.

Sayers' second touchdown, coming on a 4-yard plunge, sparked Kansas to a third-period scoring onslaught of 20 points in eight minutes.

A 50-yard pass from quarterback Steve Renko to end Jay Roberts set up Sayers' for his touchdown in the onslaught. But mistakes by Kansas State set up the other two.

Five plays after Sayers scored, Phil Doughty of Kansas recovered a fumble by Willis Crenshaw on the Kansas State 32. Sayers, the nation's leading rusher, gained 13 yards in two plays. Armand Baughman cracked into the line for two more. Then Tony Leiker dashed 17 yards around right end for another touchdown.

Four minutes later, Sid Micek intercepted a pass by Larry Corrigan and returned it 27-yards for Kansas' final touchdown. A pass from Micek to Lloyd Buzzi after Leiker's touchdown was the only conversion in the 20-point splurge.

Kansas, scoring in all but the final period, shut off Kansas State's potent passing attack by concentrating on covering receivers rather than overwhelming the passer. But Kansas State end Ralph McFillen, who stands 5-foot-9, caught two passes to break the school record for receptions in one season. His two Saturday gave him 24, one more than the old record set in 1959 by Dale Evans.

Alabama Slips Past Miss. State

By BILL BRYANT
United Press International

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Junior quarterback Joe Namath rallied 4th-ranked Alabama with his long passes Saturday for a 20-19 come from-behind victory over Mississippi State.

Namath twice pulled the heavily favored Crimson Tide from behind with his passing but the final margin was supplied by place kicking specialist Tim Davis who kicked two field goals and to extra points.

Underdog Mississippi State held a 12-3 lead in the second period after marching 78 yards for one touchdown and 45-yard runback by halfback Larry Swearengen on an interception of a Namath pass.

Mississippi State scored on halfback Dan Bland's one-yard plunge, Swearengen's pass interception and Swearengen's four-yard run in the opening minutes of the third period when State went ahead 19-13.

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Defense-minded Arizona stunned favored Wyoming with a fourth quarter safety and a 69 - yard kickoff return for a 15-7 win Saturday.

Unbeaten Princeton Tops Brown

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Princeton held its rank among the nation's tiny group of unbeaten and untied major teams Saturday with a 34-13 victory over Brown as Cosmo Iacavazzi scored three touchdowns.

Iacavazzi, a driving, leaping fullback from Scranton, Pa., smashed home for three scores from the 1 and Hugh MacMillan hit Jim Hackett with a six-yard pass for another TD. In the final 41 seconds Don McKay threw a 28-yard scoring pass to Jim Rockenbach.

Pitchers Stan Williams and Hal Reniff of the New York Yankees are California residents. Williams was born in Enfield, N.H., and Reniff in Warren, Ohio.

Sen. Jordan Will Take Command Of Baker Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., is taking personal command of the investigation of Robert G. Baker, who rose from page boy to back-stage power as secretary to the Senate's Democratic majority.

"Right now I see no need for additional attorneys," Jordan declared after his Rules Committee voted Friday to employ two investigators—one for each party — to help dig into Baker's affairs.

But all the committee members don't see eye-to-eye with Jordan on whether an outside counsel is needed.

Some argue that the committee is, in effect, investigating the Senate and it should show its impartiality by hiring outsiders to direct the inquiry.

But Jordan told newsmen the Senate resolution authorizing the hearings "obligates the Rules Committee to make this investigation and we're not going to contract it out."

Jordan said he plans to get additional investigative help from the Justice Department and General Accounting Office in sifting the facts from the gossip surrounding the Baker case.

The committee is charged with determining whether improper influence or other Senate employes may have been involved.

Opera Wigmaster Gets Break Once

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Stan Dufford, San Francisco Opera wigmaster, got a break with the scheduling of Poulence's "Dialogues of the Carmelites" this season.

For most of the operas presented Dufford must care for 160 to 200 wigs a night. Each must be separately dressed, shaped and measured to fit the head of the chorister who is to wear it. Characters in "The Carmelites," mainly nuns, all wear coifs.

'Fantastic' Dance Program Presented by Cunningham

By JOHN FETLER
Arts Critic

A quite fantastic dance program was given Friday night at the Fine Arts Center by Merce Cunningham, with Carolyn Brown, Viola Farber, Shareen Blair, Barbara Lloyd and Steve Paxton.

It was quite fantastic because the dance, and the music, were as "far out," to use jargon, as could be.

But if the audience which filled the theatre comfortably expected to be "shocked," it was not. The program was too well done, for that; the artistry and craftsmanship were so thoroughgoing that the evening was a conscious, deliberate, creation of artistic creation, in all of its facets: Dance, music, and in the first work, the lighting, too.

For this same reason, Cunningham's program here was a very important milestone. The program had a note which explained that "dancing has a continuity of its own that need not be dependent upon either the rise and fall of sound (music), or the pitch and cry of words (literary ideas.) Its force of feeling lies in the physical image, fleeting or static. It can and does evoke all sorts of individual responses in the single spectator. These dances may be seen in that light. The music and the dance co-exist as individual but interpenetrating happenings, jointly experienced in the length of time they take up and divide."

This, indeed, is just what happened. For instance, in the first work, "Suite for Five" with music by John Cage, the musical director (with David Tudor as pianist) the three elements, music, dance, and lights seemed to be three quite different, independent arts which, true enough, existed with each other, but in a contrapuntal manner, instead of in the older, reinforcing harmonic manner (as one might call it.) True, they support each other, but in a way in which counterpoint would support the entire structure. And this creates problems.

One may wonder how far one could go in this direction. It would certainly seem to require a new level of organization for the listener and viewer. On the surface this new type of dance-and-music may seem to return to more concrete levels, but actually it is a sophistication pushed to the extreme limits of today's audience perception. Those in the audience whose organization leans towards the dance, will see, of course, the dance as the one element which is supported by the other facet: The "music." The musically oriented member of the audience, on the other hand, may be struck by the tremendous strength of the musical image, to which the dance plays its counterpoint.

This seemed to be particularly in the first number, with music by Cage. The program note said "the events and sounds of this dance revolve around a quiet center, which, though silent and unmoving, is the source from which they happen." The composer Cage, however, has achieved a musical task which is rather astounding: Consisting often of vibrating notes which linger in the air — and which, by the way, make the fullest possible use of pause and silence as the "other element," the reverse coin, of music. The result, however, is that almost each note, when struck, whether reverberating or muted, is of such intensity, that in the end it speaks like thunder.

The dance "Suite for Five" seems to be a kind of re-emergence of formal proportions, ending the modern type of solation which has seemed to flourish in the arts for over half a century now. Some of the isolation is still there, however, because of the formal proportions of figures and movement. In essence this emphasizes the formality of the object — the dancer on the stage. Which brings the question whether this is still the intention of those who continue to emphasize the romanticist "art for art's sake" idea, or whether it leads to something else. It does lead to something else.

The relationships between the figures on the stage abandons its cold objectivity in the second work, the "Crises" by Conlon Nancarrow, with a cascading piano score on tape. The paradox is that even tho these are entitled "rhythm studies," it is exactly here that the figures on the stage seem to progress from the purely formal of the first work, to the more subjective relationships in attitudes and movements, thus introducing a new "human" element.

The question may be, of course, whether this kind of a view is a reading "into" the work and whether not the dance, as any other work of art, exists for its own sake, merely, as abstract objects, without a necessarily human frame of reference.

It is difficult to see, how a human figure, in human movement, can escape being involved in the human, in the isolation or the inter-relationship of itself in relation to other figures. And thus, whether any human frame is deliberately avoided or not, it still will be there — at least in the dance. And this is good that it should be so, because that, in essence, is perhaps the heritage of the dance from the earliest pre-historic ages to the present.

In the third work of the evening, the element of irrational costumes was introduced, which posed another type of problem: It seemed apparent that especially a part some of the female element in the audience received a tittering gratification from the irrationality, or just plain goofishness of the costumes. If that was so, then it detracted from the dance too much — unless one would regard the costuming as an independent art of its own, which it well could. Upon a closer glance, however, it was apparent that the costumes, if not symbolical, were at least illustrative of elements within the dance, which again poses the problem of balancing the contrapuntal qualities just a bit more, as, for instance, reducing the extreme colorfulness of the irrational flim-flam in the costumes, and thus putting that into a better perspective.

Significantly enough, in the third work the "music" crossed the threshhold to the world of sound-effects. This was accompanied with the staging on the really bare stage. The musicians Cage and Tudor produced sounds like squeaking, screeching toy balloons. Or, the sounds may have resembled, as it finally occurred to me, as the interesting, even beautiful, sounds of various birds in the bird house at the zoo. The point is that new elements of "music" were created, which also belonged to the naturalistic approach, which also characterized the dance.

Thruout, the Cunningham program, with its high artistic care, it seemed to us, that much of the old esthetic is junked, in favor of a new "naturalistic" approach, which can be used to create a new artistic reality. Whether this can be done, or not, of course remains for history to decide. But it seems that here is a reaching out — on a high plane — for a new synthesis.

Sixteen runs are the fewest scored in a World Series. It happened in 1950 when the Yankees outscored the Phils, 11-5, and again in 1963 when the Dodgers outscored the Yankees, 12-4.

Five Integration Leaders Plan Effort

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP)—Five integration leaders plan to continue working for civil rights now that they are free on bond under an unprecedented federal court order which struck down two Georgia laws.

The five spent nearly three months in jail in this south Georgia farming center before they were released Friday. They said they were not mistreated.

John Perdew, 21, a white Harvard University student from Denver, Colo., reported demonstrations will be resumed in Americus "if they're necessary."

Others told of intentions to continue work in the Negro voter registration movement and in attempting to organize a Negro farmers cooperative.

The three white men and two Negroes were freed in a 2-1 order by a three-judge panel. The court retained jurisdiction and recessed until after Dec 1.

The ruling voided a 19th century insurrection law — which carried a maximum penalty of death—and an unlawful assembly statute.

If upheld, the order would set a precedent for civil rights demonstrators to go directly to federal court with complaints of excessive bond.

Another significant facet of the order was injunctive restraint against the prosecution of peace warrants, a legal weapon which has come into weapon which has come into gration efforts.

Released on bond of $2,500 in addition to Perdew were Donald Harris, 23, of New York; Ralph W. Allen, 22, of Melrose, Mass.; and Thomas McDaniel, 19, of Americus. Bond of $500 was signed for Zev Aelony, 25, of Minneapolis.

Released on $500 bond each were three Americus Negroes, Sallie Mae Durham, 14, and Artis and Marvin Brown. The girl had been denied bail by juvenile court authorities. The two men had been in jail since August, charged with resisting arrest, disorderly conduct and failing to obey officers.

The five leading integration workers—Perdew, Harris, Allen, McDaniel and Aelony — were jailed at the height of street demonstrations which resulted in more than 200 arrests as Negroes sought to break segregation barriers.

Presidents James Madison and Zachary Taylor were second cousins.

Looking at Hollywood

LIZ ASHLEY'S GOT HER OWN MONEY IN 'BAREFOOT'

HOLLYWOOD — Elizabeth Ashley is one smart dame. She put her own money in "Barefoot in the Park" in which she's a smash on Broadway. Marty Rackin, Paramount boss who tracked her for a year before getting her for "Carpetbaggers," is still miserable that he couldn't go back for the opening. "This job is like being a slave. Everybody's freeing everybody but me." But George Peppard made it back. However, I see no marriage with George in her future.

Knocking Louis B. Mayer is a favorite sport here, but we applaud his leaving a $10 million foundation, part of which goes to the motion picture relief fund. Around 200 veterans of movies are receiving care at the home. Louis is our only tycoon who came thru in his will. Cecil De Mille and Dick Powell left them nothing; Doug Fairbanks and Gary Cooper donated $10,000 each. In a gesture of thanks, the fund is building the Louis B. Mayer theater and equipping it with ramps, hearing devices, everything to make it easy for the residents to see pictures and plays. Mrs. Jean Hersholt, whose husband put so much heart into the home and the Hollywood museum, will turn the first shoevelful of dirt at the groundbreaking.

Bette Davis' daughter, B. D., lost her appendix in London, so mother's staying with her until she's fully recovered. First rest Bette's had in some time. She'll stop in New York for a TV show before arriving here the middle of November. B. D.'s marriage to Jeremy Hyman is still scheduled for Jan. 4 in California. Bette's ex, Gary Merrill, London bound for a film.

Lucille Ball's writers, Bob Carroll and Madelyn Martin, have written a play "Beaver" about a man who refuses to shave his beard. It's a comedy, but the idea's from a real life experience of Carroll's who has worn a beard since he was confined to bed for a long time with a serious illness as a teen-ager. In fact, he looks a little like G.B.S. Morton DaCosta's busy getting a show ready for that new theater at the world's fair. Says his chorus girls will have better quarters than Broadway stars. Show's so strenuous the cast gets every other day off.

Albert ("Tom Jones") Finney calls his own company Memorial productions. Explains the somber title by saying he's out to make enough cash to buy that eyesore Albert Memorial hall in London from the British government and tear it down. Come now, Finney, that's as famous as "God Save the Queen"!

Sue Cardoza, one of the most delightful publicists I've met (been with Rogers and Cowan for years), was married Wednesday in Paris to Paul de Brantes. The grom's younger back into royalty so she may be known as La Marquise de brantes. The groom's younger sister is married to the French minister of finance. She handled public relations on Frank Sinatra's trip 'round the world on behalf of underprivileged children.

Jane Greer ("It hasn't been my year") goes to Juarez, Mexico, this week for the divorce that will free Ed Lasker to marry his safari partner, Cynthia Palmer. If they gave a prize for most understanding wife, Jane would be a shoo-in to win. "I'm devoted to Edward," she says. "He loves me and our three boys. These things just happen."

Anne Jeffreys and Bob Sterling off to New York and Puerto Rico for fun. Anne says the score for her musical version of "Anastasia" is wonderful, but the book bogged down. Bob Wright and George Forrest based their score on Rachmaninoff's works. It's surprising that Anne and Bob whose Topper series is still running don't have another.

TELLY-TYPE SCHOOLS

ROME (AP) — Since three out of four Italian children receive no formal schooling after 11 years of age, the government now is sponsoring a "Telescuola" program that broadcasts by Radio Televisione Italiana to 80,000 pupils over more than 900 Telescuola Listening Posts centrally located in small villages.

The Italians have taken whole-heartedly to Telescuola since 1958 to solve their lack of schools and equipments, and, in some areas, their shortage of teachers. Lessons now cover the school week with five and a half hours a day and give general education to 11 to 14 year olds.

The state-controlled television company provides the lessons, publishes the textbooks in its own publishing house, and trains the studio teachers. The Ministry of Public Works provides the receivers, tape recorders, and other equipment. Local authorities provide premises and furniture.

Schulter to Be Broadmoor Ski Instructor

Heading the staff of instructors at Ski Broadmoor this season is Walter E. Schluter, who is considered to be among the top five stylists in the World.

His skiing techniques include Alberg, Alberg Rotation, French, Austrian, Wedeln and the new American.

Born in Salzburg, Austria, Schluter has been skiing since he was seven years old.

He has instructed at various ski areas in the United States, Canada and Europe for the past seven years including Innsbruck, Austria; Chamonix, France; Vancouver, B. C., Canada; and St. Mary's Glacier in Colorado during the summer of '61.

Schluter has received "full certifications" from Canada, California, Rocky Mountain Ski Association, New Mexico and the Intermountain Ski Instructors Association; he also belongs to the Professional Ski Instructors of America.

He has attended numerous instructor school in Europe, Canada, and the United States, and has represented his country in many international races. In the 1960 Olympics, Schluter was first on stand-by for the Austrian team.

Ski racing for junior skiers will be a major effort of the Broadmoor Ski School this season under the tutelage of Schluter. Over 30 races are scheduled for all junior classes, in age groups from under nine to 17, within the Southern Rocky Mountain Ski Association's sanctioned area.

Schluter plans to train a competitive team in the Broadmoor Junior Ski Club and also to give coaching to elementary and high school sponsored teams, as well as to individuals who are interested in downhill and slalom racing.

Ski Broadmoor is hosting the big junior event of the year, the SRMSA Junior Slalom Championships, Feb. 1 and 2; however, six preparatory races are being held thruout the SRMSA area prior to these championships.

The various teams should have at least ten members, according to Schluter, from which two or three will be selected as representatives in the racing events.

Teams wil begin training in late November. Information can be obtained by contacting the Broadmoor Ski School, 633-7733.

OVERSIGHT

SOUTH SALT LAKE, Utah (AP) — Hard-working burglars pounded out a two-foot-square hole in the side of a building to enter a warehouse here. Then they hauled a safe into a back room and hacked off its door, only to find that the safe contained nothing but records. They missed $300 in cash sitting on a nearby desk in a cashbox.

Mother Charged in Girl's Waywardness

CLEVELAND (AP) — A 16-year-old girl has had three illegitimate children, a juvenile court judge says, and her mother faces trial after telling the judge she instructed her daughter on the use of contraceptives.

Mrs. Virginia McLaughlin, 33, was charged Friday with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Judge Angelo Gagliardo said he ordered the charges placed against the mother on the basis of her statement in a recent court session with her daughter.

He quoted the mother as saying, "I told my daughter where to buy contraceptives and how to use them but she still got pregnant."

LUTON, England (UPI)—Air Minister Julian Amery was pleased to find a large audience waiting in a hall Friday night for a Conservative party meeting until he saw Liberal Party Leader Jo Grimond sitting on a platform.

Amery, a Tory cabinet member, was led to another hall where a smaller Conservative party audience awaited him.

Accused Russian Spies Deny Charges by U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Three accused Soviet spies expelled by the United States flew home to Russia Friday night after one ridiculed the espionage charges as "nonsense."

The one-word description was offered by Yuri A. Romashin, 28, third secretary of the Russian delegation to the United Nations, as he and two other delegation employes departed.

The State Department had requested that the three be booted out of the country. They could not be prosecuted here because of diplomatic immunity.

Besides Romashin, the other two are Gleb A. Pavlov, 39, a Soviet attache, and Vladimir I. Olenev, 37, identified only as a delegation employe. Their wives and Romashin's young daughter and Olenev's infant son left with them.

"I'm very glad to be going home," Romashin told reporters. "We send our best wishes to the America workers."

The FBI said the three Russians had conspired with an American engineer and a Soviet citizen who did not enjoy diplomatic immunity, to steal data on a "highly sensitive Air Force contract."

The latter two, Igor A. Ivanov, 33, a chauffeur for Amtorg, the Soviet trading agency, and U.S. citizen John W. Butenko, 38, of Orange, N.J., an engineer for the International Electric Corp., are being held by federal authorities for prosecution on spy charges.

Butenko's firm, a subsidiary of International Telephone and Telegraph Co., is doing work for the Strategic Air Command on a worldwide electronic control system.

He and the other four were picked up last Tuesday night in Englewood, N.J.

CU President Will Speak at Antlers Hotel

Dr. Joseph R. Smiley, president of the University of Colorado, will speak at a noon luncheon Tuesday, in the Antlers Hotel before the Colorado Springs Alumni Club of the University.

Area legislators, city and school officials and others are being invited to the meeting for which Roger Hunt, president of the club, is chairman.

That night President Smiley will speak at a dinner meeting of the Canon City Area Alumni Club at 6:30 p.m. in the Club Paradise Restaurant. Monday he will speak at noon before the Colorado School Boards Association and in the evening he will preside at the banquet session of the University-Industry Liaison Conference. Both Monday meetings will be in the Broadmoor Hotel.

Smiley, ninth president of CU, came to Colorado July 1 from Austin, Tex., where he had been president of the University of Texas since 1961. Previously he had served as vice president and provost for a year and from 1958 to 1960 he was president of Texas Western College in El Paso.

A professor of French whose specialty is 18th-century French criticism, Smiley has taught at Southern State College (formerly Arkansas A&M College), North Texas State College, Columbia University and the University of Illinois.

At Illinois he also was associate dean of the Graduate College, chairman of the French Department and later dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Science.

Smiley is a native of Dallas and a graduate of Southern Methodist University. He has a master's degree from SMU and a PhD. from Columbia. He was a lieutenant in the Office of Naval Intelligence at Pearl Harbor during World War II.

Tri-State Group To Meet for Regional Confab

Educators from Colorado, New Mexico, and Wyoming will meet Friday and Saturday for the regional conference of the Association of Supervisors and Curriculum Directors. The theme, "Differentiated Instruction," will provide the stimulus for lectures and discussion groups concerning current problems in curriculum development.

Dr. Victor J. Hopper, Colorado vice-president for tri-state A.S.C.D., has announced several outstanding speakers for the two-day conference.

Dr. Van B. Shaw, professor of Sociology at The Colorado College, and Mr. Larry Watts, assistant superintendent for instruction, Jefferson County Schools, will speak at the general sessions on Saturday.

Speaker at the dinner meeting on Friday will be Dr. Robert S. Gilchrist, superintendent of schools, University City, Mo. Dr. Allen Breck, history department, University of Denver, will deliver the address at the banquet on Saturday.

Discussion topics represent a variety of problems and interests. Conference participants may join discussion groups on bilingualism, education of the mentally retarded, ungraded classrooms, the problem of drop-outs, or any of five other topics.

A.S.C.D. members may register for the conference thru Miss Margaret Saunders, department of education, The Colorado College.

Properly Fitted Equipment Can Cut Skiing Injuries

By THE COLORADO MEDICAL SOCIETY

Preparedness for skiing includes a careful check on adequate and properly fitted equipment.

Skis can be too long or too short, depending upon the skiers ability and the type of skiing he does.

Ski poles can be too long or too short, and, quite often, too sharp.

Boots can be improperly fitted, too tight, too lose, too rigid in the wrong places.

All of these factors, the National Ski Patrol reports, can contribute to injuries on the slopes — regardless of the age, skill or physical conditioning of the skier.

When its time to equip children, it's a good idea to find a reliable ski shop which will sell equipment on an annual exchange and trade-in basis. Outgrown equipment, especially boots, can be dangerous to the skier, and it is also dangerous to buy boots too large with the expectation of growing into them in subsequent seasons.

Most ski injuries are ankle injuries — some 37 per cent of them. This places a great deal of emphasis on a properly fitted boot which is properly fitted to the ski. Another 21 per cent of the injuries are to the lower leg and 20 per cent to the knee. Many authorities now believe that the current vogue for rigid, inflexible boots is shifting the burden of injury increasingly to the knee and leg.

Old Doc Experience, with the expert advice of Willy Schaeffler, University of Denver ski coach, offers the following advice on the major items of skiing equipment:

1. Boots, be sure they fit. They should hold the foot fast in the boot when the skier leans forward without the necessity of too-tight lacing. The heel should not move up and down. The lacing should not have to be too tight. If it is too tight, frostbitten toes may result.

Stiff ankle boots transfer stresses to the knees. Too many boots are designed for the racer rather than for the recreational skier. Buckle boots which can be loosened after each run probably are a good idea. Boots should be large enough to comfortably accommodate double sox, a light pair under a heavy woolen pair. The fit should be snug, not tight. The sole should be stiff enough to resist the buckling pull of the bindings.

2. Bindings. Release bindings are best for most skiers, altho they are not foolproof. They must be adjusted properly so that the tension will permit the binding to release in a fall, regardless of direction or velocity. At the same time, the tension must be stiff enough to prevent release in a normal turn. The binding must be kept free of ice during the skiing day; at least twice-a-day checks are advisable.

Release bindings — once called "safety" bindings — haven't lowered the accident rate, but they probably have changed many fractures into sprains.

3. Skis. Proper length results in better control. Length depends on weight, height and ability of the skier and the kind of skiing he does. A slalom skier wants a shorter ski than a downhill runner. Short skis are easier to turn, but are difficult in deep, soft snow.

In general, shorter skis are better for average skiers and older persons. They don't go as fast, but they handle easier and there's less leverage for sprains and fractures.

4. Pole. They shouldn't be ice-pick sharp. If they come that way, dull them up a bit. Puncture wounds from ski pole points are one of the common ski injuries. Poles too short are likely to jab the skier when he spills. If they're too long, he may trip over them or snag them on a fast run down the trail.

Shoulder dislocations from snagged ski poles are another common injury. Poles should reach to within about a hand's breath of the skier's armpit. Hold the straps of ski poles over the palms of the hands, not around the wrists. This makes is easier to get rid of them in a fall.

5. Safety straps. Boots should be connected to the ski by a strap so that if the binding releases, the ski will not take off downhill to hit an innocent bystander below. The connection should be firm enough to prevent the skis from flying about in an uncontrolled manner and hitting the skier.

CC Students Complete Master Degree Work

Seven Colorado College graduate students, who completed the work for their master's degrees in August, have been formally approved by the faculty for graduation.

They will receive their degree diplomas at the annual commencement in June of 1964, altho for all practical purposes, they now hold master's degrees.

Harold D. Garnett, Galeton, education; Mary J. Keith, Fowler, education; Ruby F. L'herisson, 1608 Mesa St., education; Ralph Morrison, 1429 Columbine St., education; William Slayton, Yates City, Ill., education; Robert E. Smith, 2562 Elvin St., history; Helen E. Solheim, 1812 Rockefeller Ave., Everett, Wash., education.

More than $27 billion dollars is spent annually on home furnishings, the National Society of Interior Designers estimates.

PERSEVERANCE PERSONIFIED — Maj. Gen. Von Shores, Headquarters, Air Defense Command, congratulates Lt. Col. Steve N. Pisanos, on his completion of the five-year Air War College correspondence course which he finished in a four year period. He was the 99th officer to take and complete the course.

Pilot Attacks Books; Scores Academic Kills

Based on the quotation "Man's flight thru life is sustained by the power of his knowledge," Lt. Col. Steve N. Pisanos, of Headquarters Air Defense Command, Ent AFB, moved from prop jobs in World War II, to supersonic flight the hard way.

Starting as a member of the American Eagle Squadron of the Royal Air Force, Colonel Pisanos, had a record of 10 kills and 106 combat missions as a fighter pilot in the European Theatre of War at the close of World War II.

Returning home he made a bachelor degree his target and in 1955 added a Bachelor of Science from the University of Maryland to his kill record. In 1958, he scored another academic as well as a professional victory by completing the Air Command Staff College course.

This week he completed his most prodigious achievement, a five year course of study in four years to become the 99th officer to be graduated from the Air War College, Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala., by correspondence.

Colonel Pisanos received his diploma from Maj. Gen. Von Shores, Deputy Chief of Staff for Materiel, at a ceremony held in the general's office.

In a letter accompanying his diploma, Maj. Gen. Robert Taylor III, Commandant of the University, said Colonel Pisanos personified the professional career officer in preparing himself for increased responsibility and "also merited praise for the sustained interest, effort and breadth of knowledge he had revealed in his fine Air War College Correspondence Program."

Colonel Pisanos intends to have his thesis titled "The Question of Fortress America," published.

When asked how he managed in home study he said he thought his wife deserved a "Patience Award," to say nothing of the cooperation his youngsters had to give in order for him to complete the course.

Colonel Pisanos is firmly entrenched in the Air Defense Command aerospace program as the Assistant Chief for Missle Maintenance Division, Directorate of Maintenance, (ADMME-D.)

He considers Plainfield, N.J., his home. He and his wife, and their two children live at 2306 Monteagle, Colorado Springs.

Most People In County Born Since 1918

How young is the population of El Paso County, measured in terms of its contact with the major events of the last few decades?

How many of the local people were around during the first World War ? During the prohibition period? When the stock market crased in 1929? When World War II started?

Figures released by the government reveal that no less than 76 per cent of El Paso County's population was born after 1918, when World War I ended.

In 1920, prohibition went into effect, women got the right to vote in the United States and the League of Nations began. About 23 per cent of the local population was on hand at that time.

The year 1927 was marked by Charles A. Lindbergh's solo flight across the Atlantic and by the appearance of the first talking movie, The Jazz Singer. Only 37 per cent of the present population of the county had been born then.

The advent of the atomic age, in 1942, marked by the first nuclear chain reaction, can be remembered by no more than 58 per cent locally, it is shown.

All the figures point to the fact that this is a comparatively young generation.

Principally, the preponderance of young people is attributed to the very sharp increase in birth rates following World War II.

The largest five-year segment of the population in the United States consists of those below age 5. There are about 21 million in that age bracket. The second largest group is from age 5 thru. They total 20 million.

Taken as a whole, residents of El Paso County are found to be somewhat younger than their compatriots in other parts of the United States.

The median age of local people is given as 25.8 years, which means that there are as many below that age as there are above it.

In the rest of the United States, the median age is 29.5 and, in the State of Colorado, 27.9.

The influx of younger people into positions of importance is typified by the fact that we have as our President a man who was only 10 years old when Lindbergh made his historic flight and who was 17 when Hitler became Fuehrer, in 1934.

Highway User Tax Totals $5,090,000

Colorado highway user tax revenue amounted to $5,090,000 in September, or 12.4 per cent more than in September, 1962, the Colorado Department of Highways reported.

September receipts included $4,251,000 in motor fuel taxes, $107,000 in motor vehicle licenses and $732,000 in ton-mile and passenger-mile taxes.

Banana plantations along Honduras' hot Caribbean coast account for about 45 per cent of its foreign trade and made the nation the world's fourth largest banana grower.

Maj. Severen Receives Silver Star

In a combined ceremony, Maj. David V. Severen, received the Silver Star, the nation's fourth highest military award, and retired from 24 years of active duty Thursday afternoon at Ent Air Force Base.

The ceremony originally planned for a scheduled parade, was held in the auditorium of the Chidlaw Building, Headquarters, Air Defense Command (ADC). Lt. Gen. Herbert B. Thatcher, ADC Commander, presented both the Silver Star, and Certificate of Retirement to Maj. Severen.

The citation accompanying the award of the Silver Star said Severen, then a captain, "distinguished himself by gallantry in action against the enemy at Taejon, Korea, on November 28, 1950."

While leading a flight of fighter aircraft on a ground support mission, his flight was diverted to an enemy road block which was delaying the advance of United Nations ground forces.

An air attack was launched against the visible elements of the enemy force, however, intense ground fire was encountered from heavily wooded areas adjacent to the road. The enemy fire had been directed at the ground forces, denying them the opportunity to advance.

Situated in a wooded area and camouflaged, the enemy positions were extremely difficult to locate from the air. Instructing his flight to remain above and watch for muzzle blasts or smoke which would reveal the gun positions.

Capt. Severen made numerous low passes over the area, deliberately exposing himself in order to draw the ground fire upward. As a result of this heroic action, the enemy positions were revealed, however, Capt. Severen was wounded and his aircraft was damaged by the heavy ground fire.

In spite of painful wounds and extensive aircraft damage, Capt. Severen led the ensuing attack, during which he personally destroyed two heavy machine gun emplacements and killed numerous enemy troops.

This devastating attack completely destroyed or routed all opposition, enabling the friendly ground forces to advance at will.

Maj. Severen was one of 30 officers and airmen retiring from the Air Force at Ent.

Others receiving decorations upon retirement were Col. Walden A. Sundell, ADC Comptroller since 1960, who received the Legion of Merit, and S. Sgt. Lee C. Howe, who was awarded the Air Medal for meritorious achievement in Viet Nam.

The United States twice had three Presidents in one year — Van Buren, William H. Harrison and Tyler in 1841, and Hayes, Garfield and Arthur in 1881.

Wasson High School News

By CAROL JENSEN

Tuesday, Nov. 26, has been set by the Wasson counselling department, headed by George Dalgleish, as the date for the Parent Workshop. This meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium and is designed primarily for the parents of junior and senior college-bound students. The purpose of the workshop is to acquaint the parents with the problems of college admissions. Parents will be able to go over actual records of college admissions and find out what is expected of the students applying. Dick Wood, Bill Ferguson, and Hank Rase, three members of the admissions office at Colorado College, will be present at the meeting to aid the Wasson counselors in the discussion.

Dr. Thomas Ross of Colorado College spoke to the Wasson Honors English classes on "Why Shakespeare?" last Monday in the band room. He began his talk with an account of a fictional football game, using appropriate quotes from the works of Shakespeare. Dr. Ross stressed the values that people of all times can obtain from reading Shakespeare and the universal themes in these works.

On Tuesday Dr. Wilbur H. Wright, physics professor at Colorado College, spoke before the Future Scientists of America Club.

Students are urged to turn in their original, literary works to the Penman's office or to members of the magazine's staff. Poems, essays, and short stories are being accepted.

Plans are being formulated for the Roy J. Wasson High School Chapter of the National Honor Society's 1963 initiation of new members by officers of the Society and its sponsor, Miss Francis Wallingford. This assembly will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the high school auditorium. Mrs. Elma Jane Wathen, head of Wasson's math department, will be the main speaker. A reception will follow the initiation program. Invitations will be given out Monday to students selected for the society on the basis of their scholarship, character, leadership, and service at Wasson. This year's Society officers are Greg Johnson, president; Carol Cunningham, vice-president; Carol Jensen, secretary; and Bill Long, treasurer.

Seniors are reminded by the Wahian staff to have their pictures taken and proofs turned in as soon as possible in order to meet the final deadline of Dec. 3, 4, and 5.

The Guidance Newsletter, issued by the counseling department in October, contained information regarding testing. Those Wasson seniors planning to take the College Entrance Examination Board Test on Dec. 7 should send their applications for a test in by Nov. 9. A fee of $2.50 will be added if the application is sent in between Nov. 9-23, after which date no registration is guaranteed. These applications can be obtained from the Wasson registrar.

Those students planning to take the American College Test (ACT) on Feb. 15, 1964, have from Dec. 9 to Jan. 25 to register. Students should see their counselors for complete details.

The National Merit Scholarship Qualifiyng Test, primarily for juniors, will be given at Wasson on Saturday, March 14, 1964, and costs $1. This test offers students the chance to know their "individualized strengths and weaknesses in the areas measured by the examination" and a chance for scholarship awards, if their scores are high enough.

Negro Wants Freedom, State Senator Says

"Continued pressure must be expected by th nation from the American Negro," State Senator George Brown and staff writer for the Denver Post told local members of the American Civil Liberties Union at their fall meeting at Colorado College's Rastall Center early last week.

Discussing "how Americans protest", Senator Brown cited the many instances of negro-oppression in Birmingham, Alabama and the methods the Southern Negro uses to resist it.

"There have been 18 unsolved bombings in the Alabama city", Senator Brown said, while resisting Negroes heve been sentenced to "180 days and $100" for their efforts to achieve a minimum set of rights.

Brown said he himself had been rejected from a Birmingham courtroom (he is a Negro) and near the end of his stay in the southern city had heard a southern judge sentence seven negroes in three minutes for their resistance efforts.

Asked about the recent passage of a compromise civil right bill thru the House Judiciary Committee, Senator Brown said he felt there would be "no legislation without compromise" but that the pressure would remain. "The negro wants freedom now", he said.

Charles Guy, chairman of the newly formed Human Rights Action Committee also spoke. Donald King, current local ACLU chapter president, presided at the meeting.

U.S. Foreign Aid Bill Is Facing Long Siege

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP)—A long siege appeared ahead today for the $3,817,365,000 foreign aid bill after weathering its first Senate battle enlivened with angry sniping.

The Senate inched ahead Friday by rejecting, 46 to 29, a motion by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., to send the foreign aid measure back to the Foreign Relations Committee for major surgery.

"The fight has just started," Morse, a leader of the foreign aid revolt, said afterward.

He told newsmen the final bill "will be reasonably close" to the compromise amendment he and Mansfield offered Thursday when they proposed a $385-million reduction in the $4.2-billion bill reported by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Dirksen ridiculed Morse's suggestion that something might be accomplished by a second look by a committee which had the bill since the middle of June and held 18 markup sessions.

Morse's motion would have instructed the committee to report the bill back no later than Nov. 8, Dirksen noted, but then the Senate still would have to deal with a batch of amendments Morse has proposed.

More than 50 proposed amendments await action.

There was one break in leadership ranks. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, assistant Democratic leader, told the Senate Friday night he would fight the proposed compromise cut from $650 million to $525 million in funds for the Alliance for Progress program in Latin America.

Humphrey was not in on a huddle at which Mansfield, Dirksen and ranking Republican and Democratic members of the Foreign Relations Committee worked out the compromise in an effort to head off heavier cuts.

Club to Hear World's Most Traveled Man

Dr. John Furbay, an educated Fellow with a PhD from Yale and sundry other educational degrees, who is said to be the world's most traveled man — 15 times around the world — and who represents TWA as its director of Air World Education in 26 countries, will be the guest of the Knife and Fork club at its 7 p.m. meeting Wednesday evening at the Broadmoor Hotel.

One of America's known platformists with an international following, Furbay travels almost a quarter of a million miles annually, making addresses and carrying on his assignments for TWA.

His various activities and contributions to aviation earned him the award as "Man of The Year in Aviation for 1955". He received the "Oscar", symbolic of that recognition, from President Eisenhower at a mammoth dinner in Washington on the anniversary of the Wright Brothers' historic flight.

One of the best educated speakers on the American circuit he is an author of note, a Fellow of the Royal Geographic Society, London and of the Royal Anthropological Institute.

In constant demand by TV, Furbay appears with almost clocklike regularity on a variety of network programs and is scheduled for further appearances. He was consultant for the Disney picture on aviation and its effect on the modern world. Presently he is writing a book, "The Global Concept Takes the Stage."

Drastic Change Is Forecast in Braceros Plans

By PAT KEEBLE

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Drastic changes may lie ahead for both growers and consumers of millions of dollars worth of fruits and vegetables if Congress permits the Mexican bracero farm labor program to die at the end of this year.

This view is expressed by proponents of the program, who are asking Congress where they will get nearly 200,000 extra workers they will need at peak of harvest when they are utilizing all available American workers.

If Mexican bracero labor is not available, they say, there will be changes in crop patterns that could affect almost every dinner table in the country.

Opponents of the braceros say the end of the program will open up jobs for American workers, and that crops need not be affected.

The state of California, one of the heaviest users of harvest labor, both foreign and domestic, is doing something to solve problems on both sides.

The State Department of Employment, the University of California's agricultural economists and legislative labor committees have in separate studies during the last few years testified there are not enough American workers during the harvest season to pick the peaches, pears, apricots, oranges, celery, walnuts, almonds, olives, lemons and scores of other fruit and vegetable specialty crops for which the state is noted.

Many growers of such stoop labor crops as tomatoes, lettuce, asparagus, melons and strawberries have seriously threatened to simply stop growing such crops if their labor supply is not assured by extension of the bracero program. The program is due to expire Dec. 31.

Albert Tieburg, state employment director, said after the House of Representatives defeated a bill to extend the bracero program, "we are going on the assumption that there will be no bracero program in 1964."

This meant, he said, that the department of employment will be forced to accelerate a number of programs that it has been working on for three years. It had hoped for five years' time to develop them.

The programs were aimed at cutting down on a number of complaints by both farmers and labor.

Growers, on the one hand, said that, with the braceros, they got ready-made farm crews consisting entirely of single, able-bodied and skilled men who came to their farms only to do a job.

With the domestic crews, they said, a work group may consist of men, women and youths, with various abilities to do hard work and various degrees of skill. Turnover is high and there is no assurance the workers will stay on the job until it is done.

The workers, on the other hand, suffer from the fact that large numbers of hands are needed only during the relatively short harvest season. There has been little effort to provide them with jobs during the remainder of the year.

The departments programs are an attempt to stabilize the entire farm labor picture, for the benefit of both workers and growers. Its plans include:

—The annual worker plan, under which states join in making out itineraries for family and other worker groups, programming specific work periods at specific farms during the entire harvest season. The program was started by the U.S. Department of Labor.

—Worker registration, under which farm workers, as other job seekers, are registered with the state employment service and categorized as to job preference, skills and reliability.

—Youth employment, aimed at boys and girls who cannot find jobs in cities and towns during summer vacations.

—Employment of the unemployed in business and industry.

The latter problem has been a bone of contention between opponents and proponents of the bracero program. Those against the program argue that the United States should not be importing workers when its own citizens are jobless. Farmers say they cannot get urban workers to do the hard field labor, particularly for the so-called stoop labor crops.

Don Larin, deputy director of the employment department, in charge of farm labor, said the state will try to employ urban workers on farms next year, but he admitted: "I don't know what we'll get."

"We get a lot of people out of some areas who seasonally come out for farm work, but it won't work generally," he said.

Larin said that during a widespread construction strike last year, a number of striking construction workers did harvest work until the strike was over.

But he said older workers, white collar workers and those with industrial skills generally could not be lured from the cities to the farms in the San Joaquin Valley's 100 - degree - plus temperatures.

The 1963 season marks the third full year that the annual programs have been used in California.

Last year 595 groups, migrating within California and from other states, participated in the annual worker plan. The groups included 5,200 persons, of whom 3,888 were workers. Of the total number of groups, 184 had participated in the plan in 1961. Larin said he hoped for at least a similar increase when the 1963 figures were in.

The registration-selection plan has been a hit with California farmers because it gives them an idea of the skills of the workers they hire. Larin said the plan is going a long way toward ending complaints that any jobless workers were simply herded into buses, with no attempt made to determine whether they were qualified for their jobs.

He said the plan also has served to give some identity to the worker himself, something which has never been seriously undertaken before.

The youth employment plan has been an astonishing success. Starting with the placement of 1,787 high school students in 1961, the program has led to placement of more than 10,000 students this year.

The department works through schools to get to students who have no connections with agriculture. School teachers and other youth leaders are employed as crew leaders for the youngsters.

California farm workers also enjoy among the nation's highest wage rates, workmen's compensation and, in many areas, a firm health and medical program. Steps are also being taken to improve educational opportunities for migrant children.

California farm leaders concede that the programs are merely steps in the right direction. But they hope they will serve to lend stability to the worker and the labor needs of the nation's top agricultural state and major supplier of much of its food.

OLDSTERS' INCOME

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Incomes of persons 65 and over stand at less than half those of younger persons, Dr. Donald P. Kent, director of the U.S. Office of Aging reports.

Half the 4 million older individuals had total money income of less than $1,106 in 1961 — about two-fifths the $2,589 median income of their younger counterparts. Forty five per cent of the older persons had incomes of less than $1000.

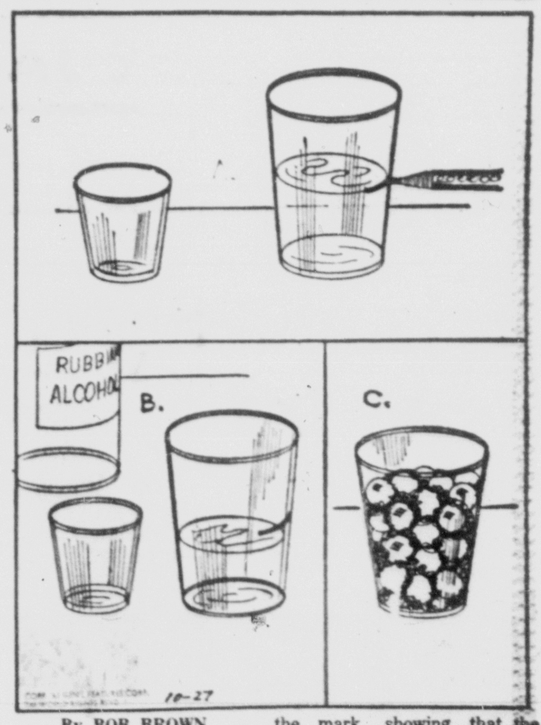
Science for You



By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: Space Between the Molecules.

NEEDED: A small glass, a larger one, a wax marking pencil, some water and some rubbing alcohol.

DO THIS: Fill the smaller glass level full with water two times, and pour the water into the larger glass. Mark carefully on the glass where the surface comes.

Now fill the smaller glass once with the rubbing alcohol and once with water, and pour into the large glass. Be careful each time to fill the smaller glass to the same degree of fullness. The surface will be below the mark, showing that the mixture does not take as much space as the water.

WHY? The molecules of water and alcohol are not the same size, and so the smaller molecules can fit somewhat into the spaces between the larger ones. An experiment to demonstrate this: Pour equal volumes of marbles and sand into a container, and see how the sand fits into the spaces between the marbles.

A collection of these scientific puzzles is in book form under the name "Science Circus." It is in bookstores and libraries.

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — It looked like a white Christmas tree ball, lying there in the weeds of a parking lot.

Police said George E. Hale, 16, told them he threw the bomb into the weed patch after one just like it exploded prematurely and mangled the hand of a friend, Gary L. Lathem, 14, on Halloween.

The youths had made the bombs themselves.

You Wont Find One In CRYSTAL HILLS

There are no poles in Crystal Hills to mar your view! How is it done? Simple. All utility lines are buried underground — out of sight. And it's typical of the attention that is given to the things that make home buying and home owning more pleasureable.

Crystal Hills

No poles is just part of the story! Beautiful custom built homes that inspire gracious mountain living are the only homes you will find in Crystal Hills. Prices range from $20,000 to $28,000, or you can build your own home above this price range too. We invite you to trade your present property for a home in Crystal Hills. Make your next address Crystal Hills. For you horse lovers, there are stables available for boarding, or you can rent a horse and ride the many scenic trails that surround this outstanding area.

Persistence Pays In Sweepstakes

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. William L. Parker followed the admonition to try, try again and finally won the Grand Sweepstakes Trophy at the Portland Rose Society's fall show.

The Parkers have been entering roses in Northwest competition for nine years and have won lesser trophies, but their pale pink hybrid tea rose, Silver Lining, was their first sweepstakes winner.

By TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON (NEA) — Britain's new prime minister, Lord Home (pronounced "hume") may have carried the day in a skirmish within his own Conservative party, but the big tussle is coming up. Tough and popular Labor party leader Harold Wilson awaits by the campfires with lance sharpened.

Home's past successes in the international field as British foreign secretary will count for little when he meets Wilson in next year's general elections. At issue will be largely domestic questions.

Upon Home's ability to project himself as the leader of Britain's scientific and technilogical revolution will depend not only his own fate but that of the Conservative party.

Home, despite his slender size and calm nature, is no stranger to a fray. He comes from a long line of kilted Scottish earls who won their spurs fighting the English in the so-called border wars.

This fighting quality has stood the 60 - year - old Lord Home in good stead in his dealings with the Russians, where he has sown a toughness which his predecessor, Harold Macmillan, lacked.

Lord Home stood up to Khrushchev on the Berlin question. He has also given the United States staunch backing in its showdown with Russia over Cuba. More recently Lord Home had a chance to show his astuteness as British Foreign Secretary in the tricky negotiations with Russia over the nuclear test ban treaty.

As a result, Lord Home's reputation as a statesman abroad is greater than it is here in Britain. While the Americans laud him and the Russians respect him, he is still largely a question mark to the average Briton. He has still to create an image of himself as a national leader.

One of the obstacles he will have to hurdle if he is to succeed as prime minister is the fact that he was born an aristocrat. Being the 14th holder of a Scottish earldom might have helped Lord Home at one time, but in Welfare State Britain the move is towards a classless society in which peers have little influence.

Also, Lord Home may find his wealth to be a polticial handicap. The Scottish earl is a millionaire many times over and owns vast estates in Britain, a fact which the British Labor party will exploit in an effort to create an image of him as a Tory plutocrat.

As leader of the opposition, Wilson is one of the most formidable politicians since the war. With the general elections less than 12 months away, Wilson will give no quarter, and will harry Lord Home mercilessly on every issue.

Recent public opinion polls indicate that Wilson is acceptable to 57 per cent of the electorate as Britain's next premier.

Lord Home, who provided Britain with a major political upset when he succeeded ailing Harold Macmillan, was first elected to Parliament at the age of 28.

His parliamentary career was interrupted shortly after the outbreak of the war when he was stricken with tuberculosis of the spine.

Defeated in the Labor Party landslide of 1945, Lord Home spent the next five years in butterfly - spotting, bird-watching and other country pursuits. When he did get back into politics, it was as a member of the House of Lords, where he became minister of state for Scotland.

Before the war, Lord Home served as private secretary to Neville Chamberlain, and as such he was closely identified with the Munich agreement to appease Hitler. Unlike many other British politicians, Lord Home appears to have profited by experience, for he has since been an outstanding foe of appeasing the Russians. In fact, abroad if not at home, Lord Home is known as the British David, who has proven himself to be more than a match for Khrushchev's Goliath.

Rodeo Group Names Rookie of the Year

DENVER (AP) — Billy Kornell, 19, of Palm Springs, Calif. was named Saturday as Rookie of the Year by the Rodeo Cowboys Association.

He is a leading contender for the season's championship bull riding and won $13,323 in his speciality. The bull riding title will be decided in a rodeo in Los Angeles Nov. 26-Dec. 1. Kornell has a $1,276 edge in the latest national standings.

The 145-pound Kornell first competed in high school rodeos and turned professional last year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Kornell of 3337 Frankie Drive, Newberry Park, Calif.

Nurse's Pin Found In Central Park

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Mrs. Elizabeth Shupp, Tampa public health nurse, has her nursing graduation pin back, 24 years after she lost it in New York City's Central Park.

The dime-size pin has her maiden name, the date 1933 and The Children's Hospital, Boston, where she trained, inscribed on the back. It was forwarded to her from the director of nurses at the Boston hospital with a note saying it had just been found in Central Park, where Mrs. Shupp had fruitlessly hunted for it when she lost it, June 30, 1939.

Leaking Gas May Be Cause of Big Indianapolis Blast

By BOYD GILL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)— Investigators today worked on the theory that leaking gas ignited by a concession stand stove caused the Halloween evening explosion that killed 64 persons at an ice show here.

A total of 340 persons were injured in the disaster, one of the worst in the history of this city. Officials said there was a possibility the death toll would rise. At least 18 of the injured remained in critical condition.

State Fire Marshal Ira Anderson, who headed a four-man blue ribbon investigating team, said food heating equipment at refreshment counters in the coliseum may have ignited butane gas leaking through a broken valve.

As cranes pulled apart the debris inside the big coliseum at the Indiana State Fair grounds, investigators found a half-dozen butane gas tanks. Two of them were ruptured. At least four were impounded.

There were "wild rumors" galore, Anderson said. Some said no permits had been issued for the butane gas. Anderson said investigators were checking out reports a concession worker "discovered hissing gas, saw the fog and yelled 'clear out'."

The explosion originated in or near the refreshment counters below the south tier of seats in the huge oval-shaped auditorium. It ripped through the concrete floor beneath a section of $3.30 seats, best in the house.

The blast flung men, women and children, and chairs, and huge chunks of concrete 50 feet into the air onto the rink where "Holiday on Ice" skakers were pirouetting in the grand finale before an audience of 4,600. Then came flames.

The victims included Dwight Kein, former mayor of West Lafayette, Ind.; Herman Schmitz, former commandant of the Indiana State Soldiers Home, and his wife; Earl H. Myer, executive vice president of the Indiana Farmers Mutual Insurance Co., and his wife; George Schumaker, an advertising executive for the Indianapolis News and Star; and Drs. Marshall McClung and Jesse Staten.

One observer said shock followed the nightmare of the worst tragedy ever to hit Indianapolis. Then came the tears.

Fred Kortepeter, 62, Indianapolis, collapsed and died while apparently looking for a relative or friend at the temporary morgue set up on the ice of the coliseum.

The Church Federation of Greater Indianapolis planned a memorial service for next Friday in Christ Church Cathedral in downtown Indianapolis. The flag at the state capitol flew at half-staff.

The State Fair Board ordered the coliseum closed indefinitely. A board member, Robert Weedon, estimated damage to the structure at up to $1 million.

Nitrogen Gas Used For Fruit Growth

CHICAGO (AP) — Nitrogen gas is being used to control the atmosphere for fruits and vegetables to preserve them during transit.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company recently demonstrated how Controlled Atmospherg involves the use of nigrogen gas to maintain high nitrogen - low oxygen atmosphere within the refrigerated piggyback trailer.

The nitrogen puts the lettuce to sleep by sharply reducing the high natural respiration of the leafy stuff. The technique also can be applied to other fruits and vegetables.

Apple shippers have used the hitrogen gas atmosphere for shipping and say they have extended the marketing season of high perishable MacIntosh apples to 10 months instead of 2.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union was organized Nov. 18, 1874, in Cleveland.
